GOVERNMENT.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 4th.—We understand that Messrs. Spence, Minister to Turkey; Mason, Minister to France, and Mr. Lane, Commissioner to China, are expected to receive their instructions to-morrow. The former is to sail with his family in the United States steamer Saranac, direct for Constantinople, on Monday or Tuesday next. The last two will sail on the 19th inst.

Gov. Seymour of Connecticut, is expected here in a few days to receive his instructions for St. Petersburg.

The Star publishes an order from the Adjutant General, abolishing the geographical division of the military departments and substitutes the following:

Department of the East—Country east of the Mississippi. Head-quarters at Baltimore.

Department of the West—Country west of the Mississippi and east of the Rocky Mountains. Head-quarters at St. Louis.

Department of Texas. Head-quarters at Corpus Christi.

Department of New Mexico. Head-quarters at Albuquerque.

Department of Pacific—Country west of the Rocky Mountains, except Utah and New Mexico. Head-quarters at San Francisco.

The order concludes as follows:

And the President further directs that officers of rank and experience be placed in command of the several departments established.

BANK FAILURE.—New York, Nov. 5.—The Oswego Bank, a safety fund institution, failed yesterday, in consequence, it is said, of the suspension of Henry Dwight, jr. Its capital was $200,000.

MORE FAILURES.—Leggett & Brothers, paper dealers in Pearl street, failed yesterday. Liabilities about $420,000. They accepted for a number of country paper mills.

Henry Dwight, jr., railroad broker, also suspended yesterday. Liabilities said to be heavy, principally in Chicago and Mississippi railroad stock.

BARNBURNERS.—The Barnburners had a ratification meeting in Tammany Hall, last evening, John Cochrane presiding. John A. Dix and John Van Buren were the principal speakers. The hall was well filled, and the speeches enthusiastically responded to.

DESTRUCTIVE FIRE.—The large store, Nos. 18 and 20 Liberty street, was burnt last night. It was occupied by Herman & Schloss, A. Mettenfield, John Ryle, Jaques Goldsmith and others, importers of cloths, silks, &c.—Loss about $30,000.

FROM HALIFAX AND ST. JOHNS N. F.—The proposed enterprise of a direct communication with England, still engaged public attention, especially in St. Johns. Little encouragement for it, however, appears to have been received in England.

The combined effects of a short fishery, the potato blight, and a suspension of the Telegraph works, are beginning to be severely felt among the poor, and it is feared that they will suffer severely during the coming winter.

Several vessels from Labrador have arrived at St. Johns, with pretty good fares; but the fall business, upon the whole, has not been considerable.

A purse containing £50 was lately presented to Mr. Bacon, an old and faithful School Master of St. Johns, on the eve of his departure for the United States. The Wesleyans also presented him with 20 Sovereigns for voluntary musical service in their Church.

FROM RIO JANEIRO.—Rio Janeiro dates of the 15th of September states that coffee was firm and sales large, the total for the fortnight being 41,000 bags, of which 15,000 were for the United States. The stock on hand was 150,000 bags.

The British ship Liverpool, from Shields for New York, foundered at sea, taking down the captain, Williams, his wife, one lady passenger and thirteen of the crew.

The first mate and four of the crew were picked up and carried into New Orleans.

TRAGEDY.—It is stated that a Prof. Butler has died from the effect of a shot wound, inflicted by Matthew Ward in Louisville, Ky., on Wednesday last. The Ward family is a somewhat notorious one, not alone in the beautiful city of Louisville, or the gallant State of Kentucky, but of other parts of the country. It is from this same circle that emenated that eccentric but beautiful young lady who figured rather conspicuously in a domestic difficulty with a Boston family. Matthew, who is now in prison for imbruing his hands in the blood of a fellow man, was recently married to a young and accomplished lady in Louisville. In person he is of a slight frame, and has hitherto passed for a man of amiable disposition.

THE TARTARS SUMMONED TO THE DEFENCE OF CHINA.—Among other matters mentioned in the late China news, is the fact that the Emperor has, for the first time, summoned the Princes of Mongolia to his assistance. There is a large number of Tartar troops in the Imperial Chinese armies, but they have been a long time in the country and have become enervated. A despatch from Washington says that the official accounts received there indicate the fall of Pekin.

THE GEORGIA SENATOR.—A paragraph in the Savannah Courier states that there is a growing disposition among the leading members of the Democratic party in Georgia to confer the post of United States Senator upon Howell Cobb, the Governor of that state, as a reward for the efficient services he rendered the party in defeating Jenkins, the Unionist, and electing Johnson, the Disunionist, Governor.

INSURANCE.—The New York Mirror states that "the statistics of the Fire Records of that city will justify the statement that the frequency of disastrous fires bears a remarkable proportion to the the tightness of the money market." Whatever truth there may be in the above statement, we believe it is a proverb among the Boston insurance offices that when the business of manufacturing is good but few Factories happen to be destroyed by fire. It is matter of history that after the establishment of insurance offices in London, the number of fires increased to a considerable extent and excited great comment.

The Cheapest and Best.

THE approach of another Winter, with its usual leisure for Farmers and others, induces the publishers again to call attention to the

WEEKLY CHRONICLE,

AN INDEPENDENT FAMILY NEWSPAPER,

At $1 per Annum, in advance.

Being published in connection with the DAILY MORNING CHRONICLE, we are enabled to offer a record of news more thorough than Weeklies generally; and being entirely independent of the "arbitrary sway" of any and all parties and sects, our record of passing events we trust is clear and impartial.

The coming year seems big with events of great political interest, and a paper having no party bias will be found interesting as a chronicle of the doings of ALL parties.

LOCAL MATTERS

Have a prominent place in the Weekly Chronicle, so that natives of Portsmouth resident at home or abroad, will here find mention of all matters of interest in this vicinity.

The Weekly Chronicle is of medium size, printed on good paper, and contains but few advertisements—giving twenty columns of news and miscellaneous reading each week, at the low price of one dollar a year.

Dr. J. P. Woolley's All-Healing and Strengthening Salve.

THIS salve is a sovereign remedy for lame back, local rheumatism, pain in the side and breast, scalds, burns, freezes, fresh wounds, bruises, sprains, weakness in the joints, crick in the back, old sores, chilblains, swellings, numbness, ague in the face and chest, cracked hands, biles, corns on the feet, and occasional sores of most kinds which the human kind is subject.

This Salve is a rare and valuable combination of warm, stimulant and anodyne ingredients, and will be found far superior to any other article of the kind heretofore discovered for the above complaints. There has never appeared a medicine which possesses the penetrating and healing power in so great a degree, while at the same time it cannot by any possibility produce injurious effects. By its action on the skin it moves all obstructions to the insensible perspiration—excites a healthy circulation of the blood—strengthens and invigorates the nerves—gives elasticity to the joints, and imparts strength to any part of the system which may have been weakened by sedentary habits or disease. Bay State Stoves.

THE Subscriber would inform his friends and the public, that he has for sale all sizes of this favorite Stove. Having sold them in this city for five years past, they have been thoroughly tested with wood and coal, and are found perfect in every respect.

Those put in operation four and five years since have had no repairs made upon them, and are to all appearance as good as ever. So great is the popularity of these Stoves, that many imitations of it are put into the market, such as the Granite State, Empire State, &c.; but none of them are equal to it in weight or quality of castings, cooking facilities, or economy of fuel.

To all who are in search of a GOOD Cooking Stove, we would say—buy a BAY STATE, and you are sure to get THE BEST STOVE IN THE WORLD.

The subscriber has for sale, also, a variety of other Cook Stoves, Cooking Ranges, Parlor Grates, Office and Parlor Stoves. Funnel, &c. for sale low for cash. E. A. STEVENS, s16 12 and 14 Daniel st.

The "Sagamore."

THIS is the name of a new and beautiful COOKING STOVE, manufactured expressly for the subscriber, of the best quality of castings,—and which he offers to a discriminating public for their approval and favor, believing that an examination of this the latest production of the oldest Stove establishment in the State, will meet the wants of all interested in this important culinary apparatus.

PATENTS.
American and Foreign Office.
AGENCY FOR BUSINESS
With the U. S. Patent Office, Washington,
No. 322 State Street, Boston.

IMPORTANT INFORMATION TO INVENTORS. The Subscriber (late Agent of the U. S. Patent Office, under the Act of 1837) determined to present advantages, in applying for Patents, superior to those offered to inventors by others, has made arrangements whereby on applications prepared and conducted by him, THIRTY DOLLARS (instead of twenty, as paid back by others,) will be remitted by him in case of failure to obtain a patent, and the withdrawal thereof by him within thirty days after the rejection. Caveats, Specifications, Assignments and all necessary papers and drawings, for procuring patents in this and foreign countries prepared, and advice rendered on legal and scientific matters respecting inventions, and infringement of patents.

Inventors can not only here obtain their specifications on the most reasonable terms, but can here avail themselves of the experience of 20 years' practice, an extensive library of legal and mechanical works, and correct accounts of patents granted in this and other countries; besides being saved a journey to Washington, the usual great delay there, as well as all personal trouble in obtaining their patents. Copies of claims of any patent furnished by remitting one dollar.—Assignments recorded at Washington.
R. H. EDDY,
Solicitor of Patents.

"During the time I occupied the office of Commissioner of Patents, R. H. Eddy, Esq., of Boston, did business at the Patent Office, as Solicitor of Patents. There were few, if any persons acting in that capacity, who had so much business before the Patent Office; and there were none who conducted it with more skill, fidelity, and success. I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the best informed and most skilful Patent Solicitors in the United States, and have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a person more competent and trustworthy, and more capable of putting their application in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office.
EDMUND BURKE,
Late Commissioner of Patents."

PROF. ALEX. C. BARRY'S
Tricopherous, or Medicated Compound.

It is unnecessary to present at length the evidences of the wonderful properties of the Tricopherous when the public have furnished such an endorsement as this. The cheapness of the article, and the explanations given of its chemical action upon the hair, the scalp, and in all cases of superficial irritation, first recommended it to the attention of the people. This was all that the inventor desired. Every bottle advertised itself—The effects of the fluid exceeded expectation. It acted like a charm. The ladies would not be without it. Country dealers in every section of the United States found they must have it; and thus was built up a wholesale trade of an extent hitherto unheard of as regards articles of this kind.—The highest point has not yet been reached, and it is believed that the sales this year will be a million and a half of bottles.

Liberal discount to purchasers by the quantity, and by all the principal Merchants and Druggists throughout the United States, and Canada, Mexico, West Indies, Great Britain, France, &c., and by Weeks & Potter, Brewers, Stevens & Cushing, and Wm. Brown, Boston.

DR. CONINE'S
SYRUP OF GINSENG & MALVA.
The Great Chinese Remedy.

THIS Medicine depends more upon its own virtues and actual merit than any other ever before offered to the public.

The recipe is from Dr. CONINE, a gentleman who travelled many years in China, and in the islands of that vicinity where this compound is the potent and effectual remedy for the numerous diseases arising from a disordered or debilitated stomach, and

Affections of the Lungs.

But what will particularly attract attention is its astonishing

DISSOLVENT POWER.

By which it at once removes ALL PHLEGM or extraneous matter from the Throat, Stomach or Lungs. It is therefore

Anti-Expectorant,

And from attentions of trial here, it is now offered as NATURE'S KINDEST REMEDY for the removal of Consumption, Whooping Cough, and all Coughs, by precipitating the Phlegm, instead of creating irritation by expectoration.

It is AROMATIC, and increases the general warmth, possessing the exhilarating qualities of the Tea Plant, which is one great cause of its universal popularity in all India beyond the Ganges, where as an

APPETISER

It probably has no equal in the Vegetable Kingdom AS A DYSPEPTIC REMEDY, IT IS UNEQUALLED.

Its natural, genial warmth keeps the digestive powers ever in proper tone, soothing all irritation of the nerves, &c.

It will prove a more pleasant, safe and effectual Tonic than any Sarsaparilla or other boasted tonic remedy, and even nutritious, as well as exceedingly palatable. It will continue to be prepared in the best manner—no expense being spared—and in quart bottles.

Besides the numberless testimonials which we are receiving daily, of the good effect of the above medicine, we are allowed to refer to several physicians, who are now using the Syrup of Ginseng and Malva with great success.

DR. HAMPTON'S
VEGETABLE TINCTURE!

The Great Restorative and Invigorator of the System.

THIS article, which has made so many wonderful cures, was discovered by DR. JESSE HAMPTON, of Louisville, Ky., now in fine health in the 79th year of his age, and is acknowledged by those who have used it to be the BEST family medicine in use, and is WARRANTED FREE FROM ALL MINERAL SUBSTANCES. By its mild action on the STOMACH, LIVER and KIDNEYS, it will cure the diseases of those organs, with all chronic complaints, as

Dyspepsy, Cough, Asthma, Bronchial & Lung Affections, Pains in the Back, Side and Breast, Consumption, Scrofula, Fits, Rheumatism, Gout, Neuralgia, Fistula, Fits, Bowel Complaint, Worms, Nervous Debility,

With all Diseases arising from Impure Blood.

As a FEMALE MEDICINE it has no equal! It will change the Complexion from a palid to a blooming one.

Wherever introduced its success is unbounded. It has certificates from Hon. Henry Clay, Hon. R. M. Johnson, Vice President of the United States; Hon. John H. T. Jerome, Mayor of the City of Baltimore; the Spanish Consul; Judge Davis; Lund Washington; from a Chaplain of the U. S. Navy; from the State Department, Washington; from the brother of the Physician to the Emperor of France, who was cured by it after all other remedies had failed; and from hundreds of others, making up an amount of Testimony never before given to any other discovery of Medicine. A trial of it will convince the most skeptical.

We invite the public to call and get Pamphlets and see certificates of Cures. Read the following certificates of undoubted testimony:

From Hon. John H. T. Jerome, Mayor of the City of Baltimore.

MAYOR'S OFFICE, Baltimore, Aug. 23, 1852.

I take great pleasure in stating, that I have examined the names of those who have signed certificates respecting Hampton's Vegetable Tincture, and among them I recognize gentlemen of the first respectability, viz: Jos. K. Stapleton, William A. Schaffer, G. Dumas, and others. I also cheerfully testify to the high standing of the house of Messrs Mortimer & Mowbray, who, for the past twenty years, have enjoyed the entire confidence and esteem both of our merchants and citizens generally.

JNO. H. T. JEROME.

U. S. SHIP CUMBERLAND, Genoa, Sardinia, January 17, 1853.

Messrs. Mortimer & Mowbray—Gentlemen: The first Lieutenant of my ship, who has been suffering many years from the Dyspepsia, and who has been nearly restored to his usual health by the use of "Hampton's Vegetable Tincture," desires you to send him one dozen bottles of that medicine.

Lieutenant —— of the U. S. Navy, now on board this ship, also wishes you to send him one dozen of "Hampton's Vegetable Tincture," by the store ship which leaves the United States in February or March, for Spezzia.

The Tincture you sent me was received in good order, and I take pleasure in informing you that it has been used with great success by several of our officers in cases of DYSPEPSIA.

I am respectfully yours,

"A Splendid Remedy."

THE GREAT REMEDY is at last discovered. Consumption can be cured!! and Coughs and Colds, the parents of that fell disease that so often brings woe to the homes of our land, vanish, as if by magic, before this SOVEREIGN REMEDY. This is that which has so long been sought for, and is in full faith offered to the public as a certain cure for Coughs, Colds, Whooping Cough, Croup, Asthma and Consumption, and will in any case where lungs sufficient are left to sustain life, check the ulceration and raise the patient to health. This is not an idle boast, nor is this remedy sent into the market without a thorough trial, but has proved beyond a doubt that what has been asserted CAN BE DONE!

N. B.—BEWARE OF COUNTERFEITS, and observe the following Promissory Note, with the fac simile signature of the proprietor, on every genuine box:

"($800 00) On demand I promise to pay to the bearer FIVE MILLS for value received.

KNUD IVERSON,

THE BOY THAT WOULD NOT STEAL.—We have heard doubts expressed whether the facts so often stated in reference to the death of this little Norwegain boy were really true. A paragraph in one of our city papers has called out the following from the Rev. Paul Anderson, Pastor of the Evangelical Lutheran Church, which we think will satisfy the public, if any there be who have doubts, in reference to this whole matter. The particulars which he gives are important in several respects, and the whole character of the boy was in keeping with his tragical and noble death.

Messrs. Editors.—I hope it may not be deemed improper in me to present a few facts to the public, in regard to the unfortunate Knud Iverson, as it seems from certain statements in some of the city papers of yesterday, persons are in doubt as to whether the boy really suffered for righteousness sake. I was not at home when the affair took place, and have not been until the 23d inst, and of course I cannot speak from observation in regard to anything else than the character of the boy.

As to the fact of his being murdered by some boys, I refer the doubting to the evidence as elicited before the Coroner's jury. Of the circumstances of his death, I have learned the following:

Knud was sent after the cows, and another boy was with him. When up by the toll gate or between the toll gate and the river, they (Knud and the other boy) met some larger boys, who talked to them about getting apples out of Mr. Elston's garden; but as to their being frightened off by Mr. Elston, as stated in the paper yesterday, I think it is a mistake. Knud refused to go and steal as requested by the boys. They then enticed him with them to the river to swim, but the other boy went off, and Knud they got with them. And from the evidence of a German boy who saw them and he was on the bank of the river at a short distance off, when the murderers had "ducked" him, it seems that they renewed their request that he should go and steal apples for them, as he was an entire stranger, having never been on the premises; and on his positively refusing, they took and "ducked" him until he was dead. When those boys came on shore, the German boy asked what they had done with Knud, if they had killed him, &c. They told him that he was dead, and that he should not tell his father of it, they then ran off in the greatest fright. This boy having took Knud's clothes, carried them to his (Knud's) father, and told him "These are Knud's clothes, and some boys drowned him up in the river."

This, I understand, is the statement made by the German boy who was there and saw them. This same German boy says he knows those boys by sight, as they all attended the public school together last winter; but he does not know their names. He further states that he has never been able to get his eye on but one of them since; and although search has been made, even he has been missing since the German boy discovered a house where he went in.

This is a brief statement of the circumstances, as I have learned them since my return home on last Friday.

But my main object in presenting any facts to the public, touching the matter, was to say something about the boy's character. I have known him since I have been in Chicago, now nearly six years; his parents have been, during the whole of that time, members of my church, and being pious people, they trained their children in the fear of God—Knud has not only been a faithful member of the Sunday School in our church, but, as it is a universal practice in the Lutheran Church to catechise all the children, Knud was also instructed in the principles and doctrines of Christianity there. For several years I did not miss him, when the children came to my house every Wednesday through the whole winter; and we shall commence those exercises again next week, but alas! Knud will not be among us. He had learned that no "thief shall enter the kingdom of heaven."

From the knowledge I have of his character, it is utterly impossible that he would yield to threats or promises in doing a willfully wrong act. Nay, whenever anything happened to him and his surviving brother which their parents would not approve of, Knud always went from a consciousness of duty, and confessed the whole. But I need not enlarge; this is by no means the only circumstance that testifies of his character. He was known by his fruits, long before he fell a martyr to honesty; and I doubt whether he or any one would have stood the test without a thoroughly established character before; and his previous conduct it the most conclusive evidence to us.

This is not the place for me to speak of the effect which the interest mahifested by our fellow citizens in this matter, has had upon us in a land of strangers.

May the Lord overrule this, to us, so sad occurrence, for the furtherance of His glory, for what "was our loss, was His gain."

Respectfully, &c., P. ANDERSON.

SIGNS OF THE TIMES.

BY FANNY FERN.

E-q-u-i—equi, D-o-m-e—dome, 'Equidome.' Betty, hand me my dictionary.

Well now, who would have believed that I, Fanny Fern, would have tripped over a "stable?" That all comes of being "raised" where people persist in calling things by their right names. I'm very certain that it is useless for me to try to circumnavigate the globe on stilts. There's the "Hippodrome!" I had just digested that humbug: my tongue got all knicked up trying to pronounce it; and then I couldn't find out the meaning of it; for Webster didn't inform me that it was a place where vicious horses broke the necks of vicious young girls, for the amusement of vicious spectators.

—"Jim Brown!" What a relief. I can understand that. I never saw Jim, but I'm positively certain that he's a monosyllable on legs—crisp as a cucumber.—Ah! here are some more suggestive signs.

"Solomon Teats—Milkman!!" Robert Link—Bird Fancier."—I suggest that it be changed to Bob-o'-link; in which opinion I shall probably be backed up by the Musical World & Times.

Here we are in Broadway junior, alias the "Bowery." I don't see but the silks and satins and dry goods generally are quite equal to those in Broadway; but, of course, Fashion turns her back upon them, for they are only half the price.

What have we here, in this shop window? What are all those silks, and delains and calicos, ticketed up that way for?—Superb, Tasty, Beautiful, Desirable, Cheap, for 18.; Modest, Unique, Genteel, Grand, Gay! It is very evident that Mr. Yardstick takes all women for fools, or else he has had a narrow escape from being one himself.

There's a poor distracted gentleman in a milliner's shop, trying to select a bonnet for his spouse. What a non compos! See him poise the airy nothings on his great clumsy hands! He is about as good a judge of bonnets as I am of patent ploughs. See him turn in despairing bewilderment from blue to pink, from pink to green, from green to crimson, from crimson to yellow. The little witch of a milliner sees his indecision, and resolves to make a coup d'etat; so, perching one of the bonnets (blue as her eyes) on her rosy little face, she walks up sufficiently near to give him a magnetic shiver, and holding the strings coquettishly under her pretty little chin says:

"Now, I'm sure you can't say that is'nt pretty!"

Of course he can't!

So, the bonnet is bought and bandboxed, and Jonathan (who is sold with the bonnet) takes it home to his wife, whose black face looks in it like an overcharged thunder-cloud set in a silver lining.

Saturday evening is a busy time in the Bowery. So many little things wanted at the close of the week. A pair of new shoes for Robert, a tippet for Sally, a pair of gloves for Johnny, and a stick of candy to bribe the baby to keep the peace while mamma goes to "meetin" on Sunday. What a heap of people!—What a job it must be to take the census in New York. Servant girls and their beaux, country folks and city folks, big boys and little boys, ladies and women, puppies and men! There's a poor laboring man with his market basket on one arm and his wife on the other. He knows that he can get his Sunday dinner cheaper by purchasing it late on Saturday night, when the butchers are not quite sure that their stock will "keep" till Monday. And then it is quite a treat for his wife, when little Johnny is asleep, to get out to catch a bit of fresh air and a sight of the pretty things in the shop windows, even if she cannot have them; but the little feminine diplomatist knows that husbands always feel clever of a Saturday night, and then's the time "just to stop and look" at a new ribbon or collar.

See that party of country folks, going to the "National" to see "Uncle Tom." Those pests, the bouquet sellers are offering them their stereotyped, cabbage-looking bunches of flowers, with:

"Please buy one for your lady, Sir."

Jonathan don't understand dodging such appeals: beside, he would scorn to begrudge a "quarter" for his lady! So he buys the nuisance, and scraping out his hind foot, presents it, with a bow, to Araminta, who "walks on thrones" the remainder of the evening.

There's a hand organ and a poor, tired little girl, sleepily playing the tambourine. All the little ragged urchins in the neighborhood are grouped on that door step, listening. The Musical World & Times might criticise the performance, but no Cathedral Te Deum could be grander to that unsophisticated little audience. There is one little girl, who spite of her rags, is beautiful enough for a seraph.—Poor and beautiful! God help her.—N. Y. Musical World and Times.

DEATH OF CAPTAIN KNIGHT.

Died at San Francisco, Oct. 14, Captain Eben. Knight, aged 43. Such was the burden of a telegraphic despatch received by his friends in this city last evening. The last intelligence before this, encouraged us to hope for his speedy return, but this hope was mingled with the fear that the indisposition which made his return apparently necessary, might also prevent it.

Captain Knight was a native of Corinth, Vermont, and was in his youth an apprentice to the hatter's business with his brother Daniel Knight of this city. His active ingenuity made him a good mechanic; his lively manliness made him a favorite among his shopmates; and his nobleness of character gained friends for him among the citizens wherever he was known.

His health and constitution called for a sea faring life; and before he had completed his first voyage, he was as much a favorite both in cabin and in forecastle, as he had been on shore, and was no less popular with the old salts than he had been with the hatters. Going to sea under favorable circumstances, his real merits were appreciated, and he rose rapdly, not only to the command of a ship, but to an eminence among merchant captains, second to no other. His frequent voyages across the Atlantic, almost without accident; his readiness and skill in affording aid to distressed vessels and ship-wrecked mariners; and the uniform propriety and dignity, as well as energy, which he displayed on board ship and on shore, gave him as an Atlantic Packet Master, a world wide fame.

When system, conjoined with energy, was wanted in the steamship operations on the Pacific, it was natural for an American steamship company to select him as the man for their place. Truly he was so: but in their service, and almost with his harness on, he closed his life;—a short one indeed, if we measure its length by years—but not short, if measured by his deeds.

He was indeed, not a native of this city—the Green Mountains claim him as their son—but we claim him as our citizen; here he married; here he became a member of the visible church [the North in this city;] hither he loved to return, when his busy life abroad gave him a short vacation; and here he will be sincerely mourned by as large a circle of friends as any one ever made here in a residence as brief and unpretending.

But New York also will claim him as belonging to her commerce; and so he did.—Brooklyn will claim him as part of her social system; and so he was. Liverpool and London will claim him; for his keen look and active figure belonged to their marts of commerce, and not only moved in their tide of life, but helped move it.

San Francisco will claim him; for there he died; and there he will be mourned; for gold, powerful as it is, will fail to make man stupid when the best and bravest fall. He will be mourned by the sailor in his rough garb, and the silent but eloquent tear will course down his weather-beaten cheek, when his messmate tells him Eben. Knight is dead. And these are sailors and some of them are strangers: but there are those nearer, who need not be told what he was, as a husband, father, brother, son. To those who did not know him thus, let as say, such as he was in public stations and great trusts—such and more was he in private life. His family circle then must mourn: they would neither be men nor Christians if they did not: but they sorrow not as those who mourn without hope—but rely on the sure and certain hope of the resurrection of the dead and of the life everlasting.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 6.—A fugitive slave case was tried yesterday before Judge Thompson, in which Edward Huddeford of Louisiana was charged by Abolitionists with restraining the person of the slave. The master stated that the slave was brought to Philadelphia for his health, that he had run away from him, and that he was not desirous of his return, as he was an unprofitable servant. The case ended without agitation.

We should think so, from the nature of the case. If the slave was first legally made free by being brought into a free State, as he seems to have been; if next he ran away; and if lastly his master did not want him back,—all is well. But if he took pains to bring such a worthless negro all the way from New Orleans for his health, he must either be a very kind master, or else—tell a very tough story.

Miss Cunninghame, the lady who was imprisoned in Tuscany for distributing Protestant tracts, was so ambitious of martyrdom, that when the order came for her release, she refused to leave prison, and had actually to be turned out.

Then she must be partially deranged.

GOOD SHOT.—Artemas Leonard, of Saxton River, Vt., recently placed a piece of white paper, three inches long by two inches wide, a distance of one hundred yards, and in five successive shots drove the nail twice, and the other three balls struck within a quarter of an inch of the exact centre.

NEW HAMPSHIRE.

A call was made, at the late New Hampshire festival, for Mrs. Partington. The good dame, upon being informed of the honor done her, regretted exceedingly that no one was present to "despond" for her. Her regret concentrated in a tear, that left her weather eye and rolled down a channel in her cheek, and dropped—completely drowning the bird of Paradise that looked up at her from the cover of her snuff box. Prof. Wideswarth immediately wrote, upon the crown of his hat, the following, which might have been delivered had he been present:—Boston Post.

A VISION ABOUT NEW HAMPSHIRE.

'Twas on a time—no matter when—
I hate all stiff precision—
There came across my dreaming ken
A very truthful vision.

And this the rhymer's art confest—
A great one he esteems it—
A thought is ripe to be expressed—
He goes straightway and dreams it.

And I, like Job, upon my bed,
With midnight fancies teeming,
Had crotchets dancing through my head,
That wove themselves in dreaming.

I saw enthroned in matron guise,
Our Mother State, God bless her,
And gleamed within her gentle eyes
The love that did possess her.

A smile played kindly round her mouth,
And spread her features over;
Her breath was sweet as breezes south
That waft o'er fields of clover.

She sat upon a "gentle rise"—
Mount Washington, it may be—
A seat a stately dame might prize,
To tend a mighty baby.

Her feet reposed upon the plain,
Where golden flowers were shining;
Her glance embraced her broad domain,
In peace and joy reclining.

She called her children far and near,
And then, from many quarters,
Her guiding matron voice to hear,
Came troops of sons and daughters.

They filled the valleys' fertile length,
They thronged the mountains hoary,
The ground shook neath their sturdy strength,
That told a granite story.

Then rose the dame, her mighty arm
In graceful power extended:
"Children!" she spoke, and through the calm
Her gentle tones descended.

"Children, I've called you to my side,
To test your warm devotion;
To send you on a mission wide,
O'er many a land and ocean;

To act in forum or in mart,
Where duty's voice is loudest;
To mingle in life's active part
If humblest or if proudest;

To make my name an honored word,
Where'er that word is spoken;
A guaranty wherever heard,
Of faithfulness unbroken."

* * * * *

Thus ran the dream—'twas but a dream—
A figment all ideal—
And yet so truthful did it seem,
I could but deem it real.

I heard a sound—the nations spoke—
And, as if thunders muttered,
One voice in mighty accents broke—
'Twas WEBSTER's name it uttered.

I saw on many a battle plain,
Where Freedom's star was beaming,
Mid falling showers of deadly rain,
New Hampshire's banner streaming;

Where busy science tried its skill,
Where art essayed its cunning;
Where trade contrived its pouch to fill,
Where railroad wheels were running;

Where poesy its numbers sung,
Where eloquence was thrilling;
Where white winged ships like coursers sprung,
Where fertile lands were tilling;

Where wealth delighted turned to flowers,
Where health dispensed its treasures;
Where love made glad domestic bowers,
The crown of all our pleasures—

New Hampshire's honored name was known,
And crowned with many a token;
Her fame had like her eagles flown—
Was reverenced where'er spoken.

'Twas but a vision, recollect,
That came to me in dreaming;
But may not waking retrospect
Now reconcile its seeming?

I drop the metaphor and wake—
I heed your looks imploring—
'Twere too great sacrifice to make
Your holocaust by boring.

May we around our natal state
Stand, like those ramparts Grecian—
A wall whose strength shall ne'er abate,
But stick with firm adhesion.

Should foes around her gather thick,
Or trouble's clouds enfold her,
Each in that wall would prove a brick—
An adamantine boulder.

May peace within her bosom reign—
No violence distress her—
Let every one this toast now drain—
OUR MOTHER STATE, GOD BLESS HER!

MERITED TESTIMONIAL.—The Presidents of Boston insurance offices, have written a complimentary letter to Captain Charles P. Treadwell, of the ship Flying Arrow, relative to his praisworthy conduct in trying circumstances, and conveying a present of five hundred dollars, as an expression of their approbation.

FINED AGAIN.—Timothy Paine, an old negro, in Boston, who at different times has paid upwards of $2500 as fines, for violations of City Ordinances, was brought before the Police Court, on Saturday, and fined $5 and costs for keeping swine without a license.

This old black fellow is opposed to all "sumptuary laws," probably deeming them unconstitutional.

LOCAL.

LYCEUM AT THE TEMPLE.

We anticipate a full house to-night at the Temple, to listen to the opening lecture of the Rev. T. Starr King, who is always a favorite. His subject is not known.

The second lecture is to be by Hon. Josiah Quincy, jr. There could not be more acceptable lecturers than these gentlemen; and we judge from the well known reputation of the entire list of lecturers, as announced, that the whole course cannot but be interesting, instructive and profitable. Therefore, we say to all be sure and secure tickets to-day—before night. This is the last chance, and let no one delay till it shall be too late.

The lectures are to commence at half-past seven. See adv.

LAW CLUB.—Messrs. Editors:—Your reference to the Forensic Club reminded me of one other association which existed in this City at about the same time—the Law Club. George M. Mason, Samuel P. Long, Wm. H. Y. Hackett, Franklin Pierce, Wm. Adams Walker, Charles W. Cutter, Alfred W. Haven, Joseph W. White, Lory Odell, Hampden Cutts and Thomas Currier, as near as is now recollected, were members. They formed a Moot Court, upon which many of the questions of law pending before the Supreme Court were argued and determined. The Club sat one evening in two weeks, and the members presided in rotation.

EARLY RISING.—The readers of the Daily Morning Chronicle, generally, desire to have their papers at or before breakfast; and of course we wish to accommodate them. But it is somewhat of a job for four carriers to deliver papers, (and that thickly,) from Noble's Island to New Castle toll-house, and from Piscataqua river to the Creek, to the old Harris house on Middle road, and the Cutts mansion on Christian Shore; and we have always found it difficult to get boys to do this in season. We suppose our carriers are as good as anybody's—but they rarely wait for their lists' supply. Our office is open about five o'clock every morning, and we try to send out the news soon after six. After several years' experience in printing newspapers in the morning—not in the forenoon, we have become convinced of one thing: that the sun rises too early, or the people too late—and if our readers are not all served in season, it will be on account of our carriers going in for a morning snooze with the majority.

☞ Our Auction column of to-day is of general interest.

THE GAVZZI RIOT CASES AT MONTREAL.—The Montreal Pilot of the 2d inst. contains a full report of the trial of Augustus Heward and Murdoch Morrison, charged, the first as principel, the second as an accessory to the murder of James Walsh. The jury acquitted Heward, without leaving their seats, and of course the attorney General immediately entered a nolle prosequi as to Morrison.

We are glad to hear this, as the difficulty of identifying the persons in the dark, must be considerable; and the question whether any one really had a murderous intent, is somewhat doubtful. The riot was a sad affair; but would not be much bettered by hanging anybody, especially on uncertain evidence.

SLAVERY IN SCOTLAND.—Until toward the close of the last century, while slavery existed in Scotland; all colliers and salt makers being attached as serfs to the soil; the writers of the time justifying serfdom "as a necessary though unfortunate condition of the existence of society!" It was quite common before the American revolution to give persons capitally convicted in Scotland, the alternative of being shipped to America as slaves for life. The kidnapping of young men, to be sold abroad as slaves, was also common in the sea ports. Peter Williamson, a boy, thus seized at Aberdeen, and sold to an American planter, having returned and related his adventures in the form of public lectures, caused a great sensation, and gave an impulse, which finally led to the abolition of slavery in Scotland.

The Bondage of Serfdom as well as all other forms of slavery, is a relic of barbarism. The highest civilization of heathen countries did not abolish it any where; but the tendency of Christian Civilization is inevitably toward its ultimate and final extinction. The selling of prisoners for crimes, however, has as little to do with chattel slavery or serfdom, as the hanging of a murderer has to do with the crucifixion of a martyr.

SUICIDE OF A MULE.—On Friday evening some of the workmen at the puddling furnaces in the Trenton rolling mill, in consequence of some interference in the work were compelled to pour the melted metal into a place which had been scooped out in the ground. Some time during the night a stray mule found his way into the mill, and deliberately laid himself down upon this body of melted iron, and of course was soon roasted to death.

THE KOSTA AFFAIR.—It has been positively stated in the English journals that M. Kosta, the Hungarian, had embarked in an American vessel for the United States. The following letter from Smyrna, dated the 5th, in the German Journal of Frankfort, shows that this statement was unfounded:

Kosta is still in the French Hospital, and his affair has assumed a new appearance.—The Consul of the United States has declared to the Consulate General of Austria that Kosta was either Austrian or American; that, if an Austrian, he ought to be given up to Austria, but if an American, he could, as a freeman, go or stay where he pleased. The Consul added that he had no orders to receive from the American embassy at Constantinople, but solely from his government. In consequence he refused to receive and send off M. Kosta.

Mr. Brown, Secretary of the American legation at Constantinople, then demanded from M. Pinchon, consul of France, that Kosta should be given up; but M. Pinchon refused, saying that he only undertook to give up Kosta to one of the parties with the consent of the consuls of Austria and the United States. Mr. Brown thereupon obtained from the ambassador at Constantinople, an order addressed to M. Pinchon to give up Kosta, even without the consent of the consul of the United States. Kosta, on his side, declared that under the circumstances he would not quit his prison. Mr. Brown accordingly returned to Constantinople without having obtained anything, and the affair, far from being arranged, tends to become more complicated.

GREECE.—The greater part of the population of Achaia and Patras in Greece, are reduced to destitution by the complete failure of the currant crop. Accounts say that the yield is not one fifteenth of an average, and that the loss to Greece will be equal to 200,000,000 of francs,—a manifest exaggeration.

ACCIDENTS ON THE NEW BEDFORD RAILROAD.—The first train out from Boston, on Saturday morning, for New Bedford, ran over a cow, just this side of Canton, and cut her to pieces; no other damage was done.—Another train, just this side of New Bedford, ran over an animal known as an "essence pedlar," who incautiously ventured upon the track, killing him instantly, and destroying his whole stock of wares,—the demolition of which caused a perfume, anything but fragrant. The train was pretty thoroughly scented, so as to render it necessary to give the cars an airing. We did not hear of any "inquest" being held on the remains; and the only official notice taken of the affair, was an earnest remonstrance on the part of the conductor to the engineer, to give gentlemen of that class, a wide berth in future.

ARRIVAL OF THE DANIEL WEBSTER.

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 5.—The steamer Daniel Webster, from San Juan, has arrived at the South West Pass, bringing California dates of Oct. 16; 160 passengers and $50,000. The D. W. connected with the Sierra Nevada at San Juan, which brought down $1,200,000 in gold.

The Golden Gate and the Uncle Sam sailed from San Francisco on the 16th ult., with $1,130,000 in dust.

One third of the city of Sonora has been destroyed by fire. Loss $1,500,000. [Another report states that the entire town was burnt.]

The Mining news is encouraging.

John Mitchell arrived at San Francisco Oct. 12th from Australia, via the Sandwich Islands.

The Star of the West arrived at San Juan 31st of Oct. and started on her return on the afternoon of the same day.

A public dinner has been tendered to John Mitchell before his departure for New York, which was accepted.

The Supreme Court of California has made an important decision, declaring valid all grants made in accordance with the Mexican law. The effect of this will be to oust hundreds from lots held by them for years, and restore them to the original grantees. It is considered a death blow to the squatters, and will cause millions of property to change hands by the mere operation of the law.

The magnetic telegraph is working from San Jose to San Francisco.

A public dinner has been given by citizens of San Francisco to General Hiram Wallbridge of New York. Murders and outrages are occurring throughout the State to an alarming extent. The old city government of San Francisco had retired after contesting the election, and the new one been finally organized.

The improvements in the city were progressing at a wonderful rate. Bigler's majority throughout the State is only 1805 votes.

FROM SANDWICH ISLANDS.—The news is highly important and interesting. Dr. Judd had been removed from the office of Minister of Finance, and Elisha A. Allen appointed in his place. A decided step had been taken towards annexation to the United States.—the French and British Consuls had protested to the King against such an act, and the American Commissioners had replied in a firm but dignified manner. This movement had caused the greatest excitement in the Island.

TERRIFIC POWDER MILL EXPLOSION.—Five Men Killed!—A powder mill explosion took place at Spencer, Mass., on Friday morning, at about ten o'clock. Five men lost their lives, and sixty kegs of powder were destroyed. We learn from the Worcester Spy that the mill was known as the "Corning Mill," and was owned by Lewis Bemis, who is also proprietor of a mill that exploded in September. The explosion was distinctly heard in Worcester. A horse and wagon stood near the mill, and the wagon was blown to atoms, while the horse was uninjured.—Spencer is noted for its powder mill explosions; within eight years, ten men have lost their lives by this cause.

PRESENT.—Messrs. Rudd & Co., of this city have made six gold watches, worth $100, to be presented by "citizens of Buffalo" to the six gallant men who aided Captain Hazard, of the steamboat Mississippi, in the attempt to rescue Louis Wakelee from the wreck of the schooner Onedia, off Long Point, some three weeks ago. We have already mentioned that a service of plate has been presented to Capt. Hazard.—N. Y. Com. Adv.

FOUNDLING.—At about half past 9 o'clock on Thursday evening, a citizen pasing along Eastern Railroad wharf, Boston, heard the cries of an abandoned infant. It was a female child, neatly dressed, apparently about two months old. The child was conveyed to the North Watch House, when Constable John C. Harrington took charge of it, and conveyed it to his home, intending to adopt it.

FATAL MARINE DISASTER.—Schooner Oliver Burnham, of Gloucester, from the Bay of St. Lawrence for home, was towed into Tremont, Me., last week, dismasted. She shipped a heavy sea during the gale of the 24th and 25th ult., which washed overboard Isaac Atwood of Rockport, master; Andrew Herleng of Gloucester, Henry Wiles, Michael Wall, and a Mr. Cavender.

Springfield, Nov. 5.—There were four seizures of liquor to-day, in this city. The York House, kept by Lyman Orcutt; the Empire House, kept by W. A. Winslow; the Fountain House, by D. S. Butterfield, and a saloon, kept by F. E. J. Pember, were visited, and one hundred gallons of spirits were seized. These are all drinking houses of a low order.

THE SUNDAY LAW IN BALTIMORE.—In consequence of the election of the Maine law ticket to the Legislature, nearly all the taverns in this city were closed to-day, the proprietors anticipating a rigid enforcement of the law.

CONVICTION.—Michael Mooney, tried at New Haven, for killing his brother Daniel in a quarrel, has been convicted of murder in the second degree, the punishment for which is confinement in the state prison for life.

Baltimore, Nov 6.—The slave schooner Advance, captured some time since by the U. S. ship John Adams, on the Coast of Africa, has been condemned by the District Court at Norfolk.

ROCHESTER FLOUR MILLS.—The Rochester Union states that the flour mills in that city turn out daily 7000 barrels of flour, and that the quantity of wheat consumed daily amounts to 31,000 bushels.

New Orleans, Nov. 5.—An arrival from Campeachy reports cholera to be raging terribly in Yucatan. There were one hundred deaths in the town of Moyda.

Buffalo, Nov. 5.—Rumors are current of the failure of a prominent forwarding house on the dock, this morning; large liabilities.

ADVANCED AGE.—Judy, a slave, died in Bradley county, North Carolina, on the 15th ult., aged one hundred and ten years.

The Cheapest and Best.

THE approach of another Winter, with its usual leisure for Farmers and others, induces the publishers again to call attention to the

WEEKLY CHRONICLE,

AN INDEPENDENT FAMILY NEWSPAPER,

At $1 per Annum, in advance.

Being published in connection with the DAILY MORNING CHRONICLE, we are enabled to offer a record of news more thorough than Weeklies generally; and being entirely independent of the "arbitrary sway" of any and all parties and sects, our record of passing events we trust is clear and impartial.

The coming year seems big with events of great political interest, and a paper having no party bias will be found interesting as a chronicle of the doings of ALL parties.

LOCAL MATTERS

Have a prominent place in the Weekly Chronicle, so that natives of Portsmouth resident at home or abroad, will here find mention of all matters of interest in this vicinity.

The Weekly Chronicle is of medium size, printed on good paper, and contains but few advertisements—giving twenty columns of news and miscellaneous reading each week, at the low price of one dollar a year.

Dr. J. P. Woolley's All-Healing and Strengthening Salve.

THIS salve is a sovereign remedy for lame back, local rheumatism, pain in the side and breast, scalds, burns, frozen feet, fresh wounds, bruises, sprains, weakness in the joints, crick in the back, old sores, chilblains, swellings, numbness, ague in the face and breast, cracked hands, biles, corns on the feet, and occasional sores of most kinds which the human flesh is subject to.

This Salve is a rare and valuable combination of warm, stimulant and anodyne ingredients, and will be found far superior to any other article of the kind heretofore discovered for the above complaints. It has never appeared a medicine which possesses the penetrating and healing power in so great a degree, while at the same time it cannot by any possibility produce injurious effects. By its action on the skin it moves all obstructions to the insensible perspiration—excites a healthy circulation of the blood—strengthens and invigorates the nerves—gives elasticity to the joints, and imparts strength to any part of the system which may have been weakened by sedentary habits or disease. A READABLE ADVERTISEMENT.—The scrap we give below is so good, we must clip it from the Worcester Spy. It relates to Pollard's patent blind-fastener, and is a vast improvement on the generality of rhyme-advertisements.

A're wha wad sleep wee o'nichts,
Nor dream o' ghaist, and unco sichts
An sair disasters,
Just sit, and pit upon yur blinds,
To stop their clatter i' the winds,
Pollard's fasteners.

An' wad ye keep frae rain and snaw,
And wintry winds that rudely blaw,
Your head an' shoulders
Nor risk your neck, nor yet your spine
By raxing out to close your blinds,
I'll use nae ithers.

When the Hon. Mrs. Norton was applied to on Hood's death, with a subscription paper for his destitute widow, headed by Sir Robert Peel with the magnificent donation of £500, she promptly sent a liberal subscription, with the following lines, (never before published.)

"To cheer the widow's heart in her distress,
To make provision for the fatherless,
Is but a christian's duty, and none should Resist the heart's appeal of Widow Hood."

Poetry, punning, piety, and all of the genuine sort, are not often thus happily united.

If solid happiness we prize,
Within our breast the jewel lies,
And they are fools who roam;
The world has nothing to bestow,
From our own selves our joys must flow,
And that dear hut—our home.

Bay State Stoves.

THE Subscriber would inform his friends and the public, that he has for sale all sizes of this favorite Stove. Having sold them in this city for five years past, they have been thoroughly tested with wood and coal, and are found perfect in every respect.

Those put in operation four and five years since have had no repairs made upon them, and are to all appearance as good as ever. So great is the popularity of these Stoves, that many imitations of it are put into the market, such as the Granite State, Empire State, and others, but none of them are equal to it in weight or quality of castings, cooking facilities, or economy of fuel.

To all who are in want of a GOOD Cooking Stove, we would say—buy a BAY STATE, and you are sure to get THE BEST STOVE IN THE WORLD.

The subscriber has for sale, also, a variety of other Cook Stoves, Cooking Ranges, Parlor Grates, Office and Parlor Stoves, Funnel, &c. for sale low for cash. E. A. STEVENS, a16 12 and 14 Daniel st.

The "Sagamore."

THIS is the name of a new and beautiful COOKING STOVE, manufactured expressly for the subscriber, of the best quality of castings,—and which he offers to a discriminating public for their approval and favor, believing that an examination of this the latest production of the oldest Stove establishment in the State, will meet the wants of all interested in this important culinary apparatus.

PROF. ALEX. C. HARRY'S
Tricopherous, or Medicated Compound.

FOR beautifying, curling, preserving, restoring and strengthening the Hair, relieving diseases of the Skin, curing Rheumatic Pains and healing external wounds. Bounded by no geographical lines, the reputation of Barry's Tricopherous pervades the Union. The sales of the article of late years have increased in a ratio that almost exceeds belief. Prof. Barry, after a careful examination of his sales book, finds that the number of bottles delivered to order, in quantities of from half a gross upward, during the year 1852, was within a trifle of 950,000.

It is unnecessary to present at length the evidences of the wonderful properties of the Tricopherous when the public have furnished such an endorsement as this. The cheapness of the article, and the explanations given of its chemical action upon the hair, the scalp, and in all cases of superficial irritation, first recommended it to the attention of the people. This was all that the inventor desired. Every bottle advertised itself.—The effects of the fluid exceeded expectation. It acted like a charm. The ladies would not be without it. Country dealers in every section of the United States found they must have it; and thus was built up a wholesale trade of an extent hitherto unheard of as regards articles of this kind.—The highest point has not yet been reached, and it is believed that the sales this year will be a million and a half of bottles.

Liberal discount to purchasers by the quantity, and by all the principal Merchants and Druggists throughout the United States, and Canada, Mexico, West Indies, Great Britain, France, &c., and by Weeks & Potter, Brewers, Stevens & Cushing, and Wm. Brown, Boston. d&wfm je22*

DR. CONINE'S
SYRUP OF GINSENG & MALVA.
The Great Chinese Remedy.

THIS Medicine depends more upon its own virtues and actual merit than any other ever before offered to the public.

The recipe is from Dr. CONINE, a gentleman who travelled many years in China, and in the islands of that vicinity where this compound is the potent and effectual remedy for the numerous diseases arising from a disordered or debilitated stomach, and

Affections of the Lungs.

But what will particularly attract attention is its astonishing

DISSOLVENT POWER,

By which it at once removes ALL PHLEGM or extraneous matter from the Throat, Stomach or Lungs. It is therefore

Anti-Expectorant.

And from attentions of trial here, it is now offered as NATURE'S KINDEST REMEDY for the removal of Consumption, Whooping Cough, and all Coughs, by precipitating the Phlegm, instead of creating irritation by expectoration.

It is AROMATIC, and increases the general warmth, possessing the exhilarating qualities of the Tea Plant, which is one great cause of its universal popularity in all India beyond the Ganges, where as an

APPETISER

It probably has no equal in the Vegetable Kingdom AS A DYSPEPTIC REMEDY, IT IS UNEQUALLED.

Its natural, genial warmth keeps the digestive powers ever in proper tone, soothing all irritation of the nerves, &c.

It will prove a more pleasant, safe and effectual tonic than any Sarsaparilla or other boasted tonic remedy, and even nutritious, as well as exceedingly palatable. It will continue to be prepared in the best manner—no expense being spared—and in quart bottles.

Besides the numberless testimonials which we are receiving daily, of the good effect of the above medicine, we are allowed to refer to several physicians, who are now using the Syrup of Ginseng and Malva with great success.

DR. HAMPTON'S
VEGETABLE TINCTURE!

The Great Restorative and Invigorator of the System.

THIS article, which has made so many wonderful cures, was discovered by DR. JESSE HAMPTON, of Louisville, Ky., now in fine health in the 79th year of his age, and is acknowledged by those who have used it to be the BEST family medicine in use, and is WARRANTED FREE FROM ALL MINERAL SUBSTANCES. By its mild action on the STOMACH, LIVER and KIDNEYS, it will cure the diseases of those organs, with all chronic complaints, as

Dyspepsy, Cough, Asthma, Bronchial & Lung Affections, Pains in the Back, Side and Breast, Consumption, Scrofula, Fits, Rheumatism, Gout, Neuralgia, Fistula, Fits, Bowel Complaint, Worms, Nervous Debility,

With all Diseases arising from Impure Blood.

As a FEMALE MEDICINE it has no equal! It will change the Complexion from a pallid to a blooming one.

Wherever introduced its success is unbounded. It has certificates from Hon. Henry Clay, Hon. R. M. Johnson, Vice President of the United States; Hon. John H. T. Jerome, Mayor of the City of Baltimore; the Spanish Consul; Judge Davis; Lund Washington; from a Chaplain of the U. S. Navy; from the State Department, Washington; from the brother of the Physician to the Emperor of France, who was cured by it after all other remedies had failed; and from hundreds of others, making up an amount of Testimony never before given to any other discovery of Medicine. A trial of it will convince the most skeptical.

We invite the public to call and get Pamphlets and see certificates of Cures. Read the following certificates of undoubted testimony:

From Hon. John H. T. Jerome, Mayor of the City of Baltimore.

MAYOR'S OFFICE, Baltimore, Aug. 23, 1852.

I take great pleasure in stating, that I have examined the names of those who have signed certificates respecting Hampton's Vegetable Tincture, and among them I recognize gentlemen of the first respectability, viz: Jos. K. Stephen, William A. Schaffer, G. Dunan, and others. I also cheerfully testify to the high standing of the house of Messrs Mortimer & Mowbray, who, for the past twenty years, have enjoyed the entire confidence and esteem both of our merchants and citizens generally.
JNO. H. T. JEROME.

A Voice from the Birth-place of Christopher Columbus, the Discoverer of America.

U. S. SHIP CUMBERLAND,
Genoa, Sardinia, January 17, 1853.

Messrs. Mortimer & Mowbray—Gentlemen: The first Lieutenant of this ship, who has been suffering many years from the Dyspepsia, and who has been nearly restored to his usual health by the use of "Hampton's Vegetable Tincture," desires you to send him one dozen bottles of that medicine.

Lieutenant ——, of the U. S. Navy, now on board this ship, also wishes you to send him one dozen of "Hampton's Vegetable Tincture," by the store ship which leaves the United States in February or March, for Spezzia.

The Tincture you sent me was received in good order, and I take pleasure in informing you that it has been used with great success by several of our officers in cases of Dyspepsia.

I am respectfully yours,

"A Splendid Remedy."

THE GREAT REMEDY is at last discovered. Consumption can be cured! and Coughs and Colds, the parents of that dreadful disease that so often brings woe to the homes of our land, vanish, as if by magic, before this SOVEREIGN REMEDY. This is that which has so long been sought for, and is in full faith offered to the pub ic as a certain cure for Coughs, Colds, Whooping Cough, Croup, Asthma and Consumption, and will in any case where lungs sufficient are left to sustain life, check the ulceration and raise the patient to health. This is not an idle boast, nor is this remedy sent into the market without a thorough trial, but has proved beyond a doubt that what has been asserted CAN BE DONE!

N. B.—BEWARE OF COUNTERFEITS, and observe the following Promissory Note, with the fac simile signature of the proprietor, on every genuine box:

"($00 05) On demand I promise to pay to the bearer FIVE MILLS for value received.

SHADY SIDE.

Many of our readers may have seen a novel called Shady Side, which represents the dark side of the pastoral relation; and all of them have seen the newspaper scraps about Rev. Mr. Hubbell, who was dismissed from his parish in Avon, because his wife wrote and published the aforesaid "Shady Side," thereby scandalizing the good society of said Avon. A writer in the Newburyport Herald, takes the following notice of Mr. Hubbell's farewell sermon to the Avon people.

A TWELVE YEARS' MINISTRY REVIEWED, BY REV. STEPHEN HUBBELL.—Most of our readers who have lingered with interest over the pages of "Shady Side," know that the pictures there were considered portraits by the Parish of Avon, Conn. where the author, Mrs. Hubbell, resided, and that in consequence of them, Mr. Hubbell resigned his ministry among the people. This sermon was his farewell discourse to them, and is full of unvarnished truth, pervaded by a spirit of Christian charity. One or two extracts may not be uninteresting to your readers. The text was from Acts 20: 18, "ye know from the first day that I came into Asia, after what manner I have been with you at all seasons." In reviewing his twelve years among them, the author touches upon the qualities demanded in pulpit performances, in which he has many excellent thoughts, and in pastoral intercourse. On the subject of financial relations, he says:

As your true friend I warn you, that if you would realize largely the blessings of your religious institutions, you must make them cost you more than hitherto. This is a vital point, and one on which Paul dwelt largely in his review of his labors among the Corinthian Christians. Hear what he says to them on this point, alluding to the fact that he had preached the Gospel to them without charge—"What is it wherein ye were inferior to the churches, except that I myself was not burdensome to you? forgive me this wrong." And again, "I robbed other churches taking wages of them to do service—when I was with you and wanted, I was chargable to no man, for that which was lacking to me, the brethren of Macedonia supplied."

In giving the reason for this, he says, "not that I have not power, but to cut off occasion from them that desire occasion." Yet it seems he afterward thought it a wrong and asked their forgiveness. Or, if we suppose him to speak ironically, we have only to read, his letters to that Church, to see for ourselves the evil consequences of their penuriousness towards the Apostle. No body of Christians to whom he wrote, seemed so feebly to appreciate their religious privileges. None seemed so captious, so inconsiderate of the Apostle's feelings, so narrow in their views and spirit.—It would be interesting to trace the Epistles to the Corinthians with an eye on this point. It was that Church in which there were parties clamorous for its favorite teacher—one of Paul, another of Apollos, a third of Cephas. It was there, "brother went to law with brother, and that before the unbelievers." It was there that the Apostle gave a labored argument on the duty of the Church to support well its pastors. It was they who doubted his Apostleship, and demanded of him proof.

It was to them he said, "Ye compel me to commend myself, when I should be commended of you." It was they who treated him contemptuously, acknowledging that his letters were weighty and powerful, but claiming that his bodily presence was weak and his speech contemptible. (It would seem they liked him best at a distance.) And to cap the climax of injustice, all this while that he preached to them gratuitously, some of them suspected that he was crafty at heart—catching them with guile, and designing somehow to make gain of them! No marvel he said to them sorrowfully, the more abundantly I love you, the less I be loved." How should they appreciate such a noble, generous, self-forgetting man as Paul, or estimate aright the value of the gospel, when, with what ability they had, they never paid a cent towards its support?

The only allusion to "Shady Side" in the sermon is in what follows:

"If any think the department of the pastoral relation just traversed, delicate ground, they may call it temerity in me to approach a still nearer topic, and allude to the recent incidents connected with our present position, and antecedent to a dissolution of our official union. But the publicity you have yourselves given the matter, removes from my lips the imposition of silence.

Well said our clerical and lay brethren, when summond hither, that "the case was not an unprecedented one in ministerial history." A pastor, allowed to be strong in the confidence and affection of the people, is tumultuously arraigned before the bar of public opinion, and his case sought to be carried with unbecoming haste before ecclesiastical councils—for what? On suspicion of his having permitted some aspects of his official intercourse with his people to be united with others drawn from various fields of pastoral labor, and given to the public! For what end?—To malign any one? Nay—but to illustrate certain evils long growing in our American Zion, the exposure and overthrow of which would be acknowledged as a blessing to the church and the world. Is it so then, that while the philanthropist may explore the Union for facts to set forth the enormities of slavery—while the Temperance orator may ransack city and village, and approach your very hearthstones for exemplification of the evils of strong drink, and the need of a reformatory law—is it so, that if one of a suffering class who have long kept their grievances in their own bosom, and who have none to plead their cause, ventures to illustrate the trials of ministerial life in the same way, (from incident and fact,) the act is a scandal and a crime? Ah, my people, this was a position little to your credit—one which you took under excited feelings, and mistaken views—one which you cannot sustain in the face of the whole christian public, whose verdict is far different—one indeed, which your cool judgment and more deliberate reasoning will lead you voluntarily to relinquish. May I not add, it is a position in which you did not all participate and which many of you have already abandoned, judging from your private disclaimers, and individual assurances of continued confidence and sympathy which come to the Pastor on every side.

So far as the result is concerned, this excitement has but hastened a little, a crisis exhausted resources must have soon brought on, while as to the unjust accusations and unkind feelings generated in the commotion, the recollection shall not live in my heart. I freely forget and forgive, confident that the day will come when you will be amazed that you should ever characterize upon your public record, as an "unjustifiable, slanderous, and scurrilous publication," a book* which is hailed by the united voice of the religious community as a most needed, judicious, timely exposition of evils that the cause of Christ peremptorily demands should be remedied.—This reaction of feeling is already begun, and I can cheerfully await its completion.

TURKISH ENTHUSIASM.—A correspondent of the Paris journal Pays, states that the Divan which was held previous to the publication of the Sultan's manifesto, was composed of 280 persons of the first rank in the empire. Reschid Pacha stated the phases of the question, immediately after which the resolution declaring that "diplomatic negotiations ought to be considered as terminated," was drawn up and unanimously adopted. After the adoption of the resolution, Mehemet-Ali-Pacha, the Minister of War, stated that the regular troops on the Danube and on the frontier of Anatolia, amounted to 217,000 men, without reckoning the irregular troops and the numerous bodies of volunteers. The Minister added, that various contingents of regular troops gave, in addition, a reserve of 180,000 men, ready to march at any moment. The Minister of Marine informed the meeting of the ardent desire of the fleet to go and watch the coasts of the Black Sea. The official agent of the Viceroy of Egypt declared that his highness, Abbas Pacha, was disposed to manifest his devotedness by unlimited sacrifices.

Mohammed Ibn Naum, Cheriff of Mecca, who exercises, as a descendant of the prophet, an extraordinary influence on the tribes of Arabia, Syria and Kurdistan, stated that the Turkish clergy had already placed and would continue to place large sums at the disposal of government to carry on the war. Reschid Pacha and the heads of the Turkish clergy expressed their satisfaction at the peaceful and friendly disposition of the Christian population. At the close of the sitting a committee to receive voluntary contributions towards the expenses of the war, was appointed. The Grand Vizier, Mustapha Pacha, undertook to pay from his own resources 30,000 men; the Minister of War 5,000; the staff of the army of Roumelia, 20,000 men; and all the ministers, and high functionaries of state subscribed in proportion to their fortune. The Mussulman clergy declared that they abandoned their salaries to the army. From these facts some idea may be formed of the enthusiasm which prevails in Turkey for the defence of the liberties and sovereignty of the Sultan.

ANOTHER COALITION.

A dozen years ago, or thereabouts, a Greek Patriot came along this way. He was a good scholar in the use of the modern Greek language, and not a very bad one in the ancient Greek literature. He was, moreover, an uncommonly good English scholar for a foreigner, reading, and even writing our language correctly and readily. But he could not speak it fluently. In common conversation, on business or other topics, he could be understood by an attentive listener, but not by one that was careless. Yet he took it into his head to give a public lecture; and against the advice of those who understood the difficulty better than he could, he did lecture. He advertised his performance at the Cameneum, and of a moderate audience in all respects, we had the honor to be a part. We did not report the lecture: we think no man could do that; for the reason that no Greek nor Saxon, no Barbarian nor Scythian could understand it. It was written, as we knew by previous inspection, in intelligible English; but in the delivery, the author took pains to cut all the long words in two, and then joined the odd ends together in his pronunciation. We could often understand a word, and sometimes several words together; but to be sure of a sentence was out of the question. He lectured for an hour or so, but he was a barbarian to his hearers, and we were barbarians to him.—Nobody was the wiser or better for the discourse, except as he meant to entertain us, and we meant to understand him, but could not do it.

The condition of political parties at this present writing, puts us in mind of that Greco-English Lecture. Every party seems to be cut in two pieces, and the odds and ends are hitched together in the oddest of all possible combinations. We have had in New Hampshire a combination of freesoilers and whigs, which took for a single year the power from the democratic party. They have had in Massachusetts a coalition of freesoilers and democrats, which for a single year put down the whigs. In Vermont, there is—we were going to say a coalition, but that isn't it—a Union, between democrats and free democrats, who have chosen a governor. And last, but not least, there is now a coalition in Tennessee, Gen. Jackson's own State, between whigs and democrats; for we learn, by late telegraphic advices, that the newly elected but well known whig, John Bell of Tennessee, received 10 democratic votes, which secured his election to the United States Senate.

Will any body tell us what divisions and what combinations of parties we shall not see? And will not some benevolent politician mark out a programme of political movements for the next four years, and particularly tell us where the division fences are to run between the parties at the next presidential election. Such a plan might save many a poor fellow from rolling himself in the dirt for nothing. What sort of word shall be the Shibboleth? and how shall we screw up our mouths to pronounce it aright?

A STRANGE STATE OF THINGS.—A friend has sent us a criticism, from a Philadelphia paper, on the Guthrie and Bronson affair, which is certainly ingenious, and may be nearly true; yet we can hardly afford room for it;—as we have already given a plain view of the matter in our own words. That matter grows old, and were there not more of the same sort, would soon be forgotten. But new cases come up every day. Here is one of them.

The Worcester Transcript says:—

At the Free Soil County Convention in this city, on the 3d inst., Dr. Aurin Bugbee, of Charlton, made a flaming abolition speech, in the course of which he declared that the United States government had not power enough to compel him to assist in the execution of the fugitive slave law, and that he would do all in his power to prevent its execution; he would even do more—he would do everything he could to assist in the escape of the slaves from bondage. He most emphatically declared himself an underground railroad man, and also a Maine law man, and if there were any other similar reforms, he was for them. Yet, within two hours from the time of his making this speech, he was nominated for the Senate by the Democratic County Convention, who declared that they stood by the Baltimore platform and the President's Inaugural. Several office holders under Gen. Pierce's Administration were present as delegates to this convention, and they fully acquiesced in the nomination.

We do not know how much error there may be in these statements; but if they are correct, the Coalition Democracy of Massachusetts are slipping off the platform.

PRUDENCE.—Politics in these days, is not only a difficult, but a dangerous study.—A man may think what he pleases; but if he dares to say what he thinks, and to do what he says——take care; off goes his head.—Our neighbor of the Newburyport Union, an anti-slavery progressive democrat, is also a Custom House Officer of the port of Salem.—And seeing that political loyalty just now is as nice as a new egg, he is fearful to boil it too hard, lest it should be rejected. On the other hand, he is afraid to cook it too soft, lest it should be thrown in his face. And so he very wisely eschews politics altogether, in his paper of Monday last, and takes refuge in religious intelligence and speculations.

He heads his columns with the democratic nominations of Bishop and Dowley: but the editorials that follow, are—Progress of the Mormons—Beecher's New Theology—Consecration of three Catholic Bishops—the late Episcopal Convention—and the Second Advent Doctrine. And these comprise all the editorials, except some mere scraps.

THE MORMONS.

Driven from Nauvoo, the finger of Providence seems to have guided them to the most happy location of the interior of the continent, and planted them at just such a time, and just where the changes occasioned by the Mexican war and the discovery of gold in California required them. They have been of the greatest benefit to the overland emigration, and thousands but for them would have perished.

In Utah they have increased rapidly, and they are fast settling that rich and fertile territory. The Great Salt Lake City has now 10,000 inhabitants, and other settlements extend for 350 miles. The country has vast resources, the people great industry, shrewdness and sagacity. Mechanic arts, manufactures, education, and religion, such as it is, were never better attended to in any new state.—The tide of emigration comes in from the east and the west, for this is the home of the saints, and soon their forty thousand people will number a hundred thousand, and we shall have a Mormon State. There is no avoiding this, and there is no ground upon which we can refuse their admission to the Union, when they legally demand it. The only ground assumed is their plurality of wives;—but this peculiarity will not prevent their have a republican form of government. We shall have a fanatical state; and when they get into a civil war among themselves, as they probably will, the U. S. Government may have to march its regular army or militia into Utah, to settle a religious quarrel between two factions of a so called Church of Latter Day Saints.

Their opinions of marriage are stated in the Seer, newspaper, thus:

"Inasmuch as the Saints in Utah consider it moral, virtuous, and scriptural, to practice the plurality system, they should seek by every means to eradicate, not only from their own minds, but from the minds of their children, every erroneous, improper prejudice which they may have formerly imbibed by their association with the nations of Christendom. Parents who have daughters should seek to instil into their minds that it is just as honorable for them to be united in marriage to a good man who is already a husband, as to one that is single. They should be taught to reject the society of all wicked men, whether single or not. A father should be impartial to all his children, and cultivate the same love for them all, while each wife should instil into the minds of her own children the necessity of loving the children of each of the others as brothers and sisters. Each wife should not only care for the welfare of her husband and children, but should seek the happiness of each of his other wives and children. And likewise the children of each wife should not only respect, honor and love their own mother, but also the mothers of all their brothers and sisters. By observing these precepts, peace and tranquillity will reign throughout every department of the family, and the spirit of God will flow from heart to heart."

The Mormons display much zeal in their missionary operations. With the exception of the Jesuits, there was never a body so devoted to the work of proselyting and propagating their views. They are scattering over the whole world, and a late number of the Seer gives the following as the result of their efforts in several localities:

The Statistical Report of the Church of the Saints in the British Islands, for the half year ending June 30, 1853, gives the following total:—53 Conferences, 737 Branches, 40 Seventies, 10 High Priests, 2578 Elders, 4854 Priests, 1416 Teachers, 835 Deacons, 1776 excommunicated, 274 dead, 1722 emigrated, 5801 baptized, 30,690 total.

In the Society Islands, in the spring of 1852, the Saints numbered nealy 2000. These were scattered over some twenty islands, and were greatly persecuted by the Roman Catholics and the French authorities.

At a Conference held on the 9th of last March, on one of the Sandwich Islands, there were represented 18 Missionaries from Utah and about 1200 Saints, who dwell on different islands on the group. From a letter dated April 26, 1853, the work is rapidly progressing at Honolulu, as many as thirty-nine have been baptized in one day.

In a letter from Elder Charles W. Wandell, dated Sydney, March 29, 1852, we learn that there were upwards of one hundred Saints in Australia. A small company of 29 persons were about to sail for California, on their way to the Salt Lake.

On the 23d of July last, the French Mission consisted of four conferences, nine branches, and a total number of 337 members, including officers.

A few are being baptized into the church in several of the States, and in the British Provinces.

A large colony of the Saints is founded in Southern California, under the presidency of Amasa Lyman and Charles C. Rich, two of the twelve.

THE NEW LYCEUM.

In spite of the inclement weather and bad walking, on Tuesday evening, the Temple was nearly filled with auditors, who came to listen to the opening lecture by Rev. T. Starr King, who had every reason to be flattered with such a reception on such an evening.

His subject was Mountains, considered in connection with their Moral, Social, Political and Religious Analogies. The lecture was delivered with the author's usual ease and distinctness of utterance, and was expressed in the affluent and beautiful language which characterizes his style.

He regarded the upheaval of the mountains as the symbol of startling convulsions in government, and reformations in religion. And the elevated mountain range, which shed forth its springs to refresh the plains below, found its counterpart in the elevations of the genius, station, power and greatness of eminent men, by and through whom the masses held communion with higher thought and holier purposes and greater happiness than would fall to them were all human nature and all physical nature on a dead level.

He closed with a neat allusion to the religious elevation of the race through Jesus of Nazareth, himself elevated in moral sublimity, drawing all men unto him in cords of love, and setting before them an example of self sacrifice, patient toil and boundless hope.

THE LOST IS FOUND.—Almost every evening for a week past, some one has dropped in after tea, to advertise something lost.—Such advertisements of course have appeared in the Chronicle of the next morning, and the lost articles have also as uniformly appeared shortly afterwards. One lost article was a bunch of keys; another a purse of money; a third was a jewel; and the last article advertised was "two Bay State Mufflers." These were on our table shortly after breakfast next morning, brought in by a neighbor store-keeper. On offering the suitable reward, it was declined, as the finder happened to be a pet dog, the plaything of the juveniles, who has no wants beyond a bone, and no cares of any sort. He found the dry goods in the street, and brought them to his master. We decreed, however, that the owner owed him salvage, and ordered that he be assessed in a sum sufficient to give Watch a breakfast of beef steaks. We think there can be no doubt of his perfect honesty.

TEACHERS INSTITUTE FOR ROCKINGHAM COUNTY.

This branch of our State Board of Education assembled in Exeter on the 31st ult., and continued through the week. The number of pupils was, females 96, males 49; total 145.—This has been (says the News Letter,) the best attended, most successful, and most profitable Institute ever held in this County. It has given the cause of education a new impulse, and aroused a wholesome spirit of enthusiasm and competition among the teachers.—The follo wing resolutions were passed:

Resolved, That we, the members of the present Institute, are so conscious of having received benefit from its exercises, in the quickening of our intellects, in a higher view of the qualifications necessary for a good teacher, in a deeper impression of the moral dignity of a faithful teacher, and in the many suggestions we have received as to our work, that to us the desirableness of holding Institutes is beyond debate; and we feel assured that their pecuniary expense will be repaid a thousand fold to every part of the country.

2. Resolved, That those of us who have attended Institutes before, instead of having our sense of their importance diminished, have an increasing sense of their value.

The 3d resolution is complimentary to the several teachers of the institute: the 4th recommends the introduction of the art and science of drawing, as a study into common schools: the 5th is a card of thanks to the school Commissioner; and the 6th, a similar card to the First Parish in Exeter for the free use of their vestry, and to the families of the place, which entertained the teachers.

7. Resolved, That we have been gratified by the encouragement which the people of the place have given by their attendance on the exercises, and by the sympathy which they have thereby expressed in our employment as teachers.

8. Resolved, That our sense of the value of Institutes is so great that we cannot fail to recommend to the Board of Education, and through them to the Legislature, the establishment of Normal Schools, which shall be a kind of Teachers' Institute, continued the year through.

SHOOTING CASE.—The Exeter News Letter says, the Kensington Shooting Case, a brief account of which we published last week, probably will not terminate fatally, the mother and child being both alive, and the former out of danger. It appears that Mrs. Tibbets was driven by the brutality of her partially intoxicated husband to seek an asylum among her neighbors, and had left the house for that purpose, when he ran up stairs, and seized the gun, and fired through the window with the result before mentioned. A few moments after, Tibbetts left the house with the apparent intention of making his escape, but he was speedily overtaken by the neighbors and secured. It is said that he now manifests great penitence for his crime.

THE FREE EVENING SCHOOL.

The School for this season commenced on the 31st of October. The first evening there were 48 scholars present, the second 100, and the third 120. This, for number of scholars, has an encouraging appearance.—There have also been a goodly number of female teachers; but a number more of faithful male teachers could be usefully employed, and indeed are almost essential to success. A number of School Books have been sent in, which are gratefully acknowledged; but there is need of many more, particularly arithmetics and reading books. Any persons or families having such books to spare, would confer a favor by sending them in as soon as possible t Mr. Foster's book-store.

☞ The preliminary survey of the Portsmouth & Dover Railroad is nearly completed, so that the Railroad commissioners will proceed to locate the road next week. We learn that as soon as it is located the whole line will be put under contract and the work pushed forward with all possible speed.

DOVER LIBRARY.—The Cocheco Manufacturing Company have recently made a donation of $500, to the Dover Library, for the purchase of books. The number or volumes in the Library is now about 1500.—Enquirer.

Sch Marcia, Murch, Saco.

Sch Orland, (of Beverly) Pendleton, fm Rondout for Portsmouth or Dartmouth, with coal, was in contact on Friday night last, near Gull Island, Long Island Sound, with brig Eugene A. Reed, from Lubec for New York, and was so much injured that she soon after sunk. The crew saved themselves in the boat, and were taken on board the brig, having lost everything but what they stood in. Capt. Pendleton also lost his freight money for the last trip; amounting to about $250. The E. A. Reed was damaged and put into New London on Saturday morning for repairs.

REMOVAL OF COALITION OFFICE HOLDERS.—Washington, Nov. 8.—The President has ordered the removal of Mr. Stiles, Postmaster at Bradford, Mass., and Mr. Merrill, Postmaster at South Andover, on account of their coalition principles. Mr. Hobart Clark has been appointed in the place of Mr. Merrill, and Henry B. Gleason in the place of Mr. Stiles. Calvin H. Jerry has been appointed Postmaster at Natick, Ms.

NEW YORK, Nov. 5.—In the Supreme Court this morning Yankee Sullivan was surrendered to take his trial before the Courts of Massachusetts, and was delivered over to Sheriff Willis of Mass., for that purpose. A process is also out for the arrest of Morrissey, but it is said that he has taken passage for England.

SHIP CANAL AT THE ISTHMUS.—A Commission of American and British officers has been detailed to make a survey of the Isthmus of Darien, preparatory to the construction of a Ship Canal. Lieut. Strange, of the Navy, takes command of the American wing of the party.

SUDDEN DEATH.—We record the sudden death of James E. Teschemacher, Esq., an active and intelligent citizen, who has been for a number of years the chief clerk of the East Boston Sugar Refinery Company. He left his home in Medford on Tuesday morning, as well as usual, and died in the car on his way to his place of business, of disease of the heart. Mr. Teschemacher was always deeply interested in horticulture, and was a very active and useful member of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society. He was also a naturalist and a chemist, and altogether a man of many scientific attainments. His age was 60.

AN INTERESTING FACT.—Some of the New York papers publish a statement that Emperor Faustin, of Hayti, is anxious for the introduction of religious books and papers into the island, and that henceforward no duty shall be charged upon Bibles, Testaments, or Protestant religious tracts or books, or other publications.

SUICIDE.—Samuel Prentiss, of Langdon, N. H., chairman of the selectmen, aged 53 years, and in easy circumstances, hung himself in the woods with a chain on Saturday, leaving a beloved wife and five children.

Hon. Henry A. Wise was married on Tuesday evening, at Richmond, Va., to Miss Mary Lyons. Attorney General Cushing acted as groomsman.

ANECDOTE OF MR. WEBSTER.

Just before he died, and after his recovery was despaired of, one of his physicians approached his bedside, and asked how he found himself. "I feel like the jackdaw in the church steeple," was the strange reply. The physician withdrew sadly from the bedside to another part of the room, where some members of the family were standing together, and, shaking his head, confessed his apprehensions that the brain of the dying statesman was affected—that the stately oak was perishing at the top. He could see no method in the answer which the question had received. One of the ladies present, who knew Mr. Webster better, did not believe his mind was wandering, and, stepping quietly to his bedside, asked him what he meant by saying he felt "like the jackdaw in the church steeple?" "Why, Cowper; Cowper's delightful translation of one of Vincent Bourne's little poems, entitled 'The Jackdaw.'" We publish the verses, which some of our readers may have forgotten, or never read, that they may perceive the perfect fitness and point of the reply:

THE JACKDAW.

There is a bird who, by his coat,
And by the harshness of his note,
Might be supposed a crow;
A great frequenter of the church,
Where, bishop-like, he finds a perch,
And dormitory too.

Above the steeple shines a plate,
That turns and turns to indicate
From what point blows the weather;
Look up, your brains begin to swim,
'Tis in the clouds—that pleases him;
He chooses it the rather.

Fond of the speculative height,
Thither he wings his airy flight,
And thence securely sees
The bustle and the rarefied show
That occupy mankind below,
Secure and at his ease.

You think, no doubt, he sits and muses
On future broken bones and bruises,
If he should chance to fall;
No; not a single thought like that Employs his philosophic pate,
Or troubles it at all.

He sees that this vast roundabout,
The world, with all its motley rout,
Church, army, physic, law,
Its customs and its businesses
Are no concern at all of his,
And says—what says he?—Caw!

Thrice happy bird! I too have seen
Much of the vanities of men,
And, sick of having seen 'em,
Would cheerfully these limbs resign
For such a pair of wings as thine,
And such a head between 'em.

WEEKLY CHRONICLE,
AN INDEPENDENT FAMILY NEWSPAPER,
At $1 per Annum, in advance.
Being published in connection with the DAILY MORNING CHRONICLE, we are enabled to offer a record of news more thorough than Weeklies generally; and being entirely independent of the "arbitrary sway" of any and all parties and sects, our record of passing events we trust is clear and impartial.
The coming year seems big with events of great political interest, and a paper having no party bias will be found interesting as a chronicle of the doings of all parties.
LOCAL MATTERS
Have a prominent place in the Weekly Chronicle, so that natives of Portsmouth resident at home or abroad, will here find mention of all matters of interest in this vicinity.
The Weekly Chronicle is of medium size, printed on good paper, and contains but few advertisements—giving twenty columns of news and miscellaneous reading each week, at the low price of one dollar a year.

Dr. J. P. Woolley's All-Healing and Strengthening Salve.
THIS salve is a sovereign remedy for lame back, local rheumatism, pain in the side and breast, scalds, burns, freezes, fresh wounds, bruises, sprains, weakness in the joints, crick in the back, old sores, chilblains, swellings, numbness, ague in the face and breast, cracked hands, biles, corns on the feet, and occasional sores of most kinds which the human kind is subject.
This Salve is a rare and valuable combination of warm, stimulant and anodyne ingredients, and will be found far superior to any other article of the kind heretofore discovered for the above complaints. There has never appeared a medicine which possesses the penetrating and healing power in so great a degree, while at the same time it cannot by any possibility produce injurious effects. By its action on the skin it moves all obstructions to the insensible perspiration—excites a healthy circulation of the blood—strengthens and invigorates the nerves—gives elasticity to the joints, and imparts strength to any part of the system which may have been weakened by sedentary habits or disease. CURIOUS SENTENCE.—The following verse contains every letter in the English alphabet except "E." It is a question whether any other English rhyme canbe produced (in print) without the letter "E," which is a letter employed more than any other. By inserting the word vex instead of tax, in the second line, the verse would contain all the letters of the alphabet:

A jovial swain may rack his brain,
And tax his fancy's might,
To quiz in vain, for 'tis most plain
That what I did was right.

PRESERVING EGGS.—J. W. Furber, of Farmington, writes to the Dover Gazette, the following recipe:

Dissolve 1 qt. lime slacked in 10 qts. hot water; after it is settled, pour the lime water from the sediment; add to the former 1 qt. common salt. This is sufficient for 8 dozen eggs. I put down last April a quantity in this way, and they now apparently are as fresh and as good as they were then. The only objection to this method of saving eggs, is, that it gives the shell a yellowish cast, hence dealers in the article might be suspicious of them, unless they understood the process. Care should be taken to keep the eggs under the liquid.

HOW TO GO THROUGH A CROWD.—The Salem Gazette gives the following illustration of the ease with which a dense mass of people may be separated. On Thursday, while the people were making a rush for tickets to the Lyceum, a meal man made his appearance pretty well covered with the dust of his profession, and, marching boldly up, very soon effected an entrance, as the crowd gave way upon his approach, rather than run the risk of being smothered in meal, which flew pretty freely wherever the powdered gentleman worked his way along. The exhibition was very ludicrous to unconcerned outsiders, and made no little sport.

The proprietors of the Cumberland Iron Works, on the Cumberland River, Tennessee, have engaged the services of twenty Chinese Coolies, as iron workers. They are expected to arrive shortly at Cincinnati, from whence they will be forwarded to their destination.—It is stated that the Chinese are very exper in working iron.

Bay State Stoves.

THE Subscriber would inform his friends and the public, that he has for sale all sizes of this favorite Stove. Having sold them in this city for five years past, they have been thoroughly tested with wood and coal, and are found perfect in every respect.

Tons put in operation four and five years since have had no repairs made upon them, and are to all appearance as good as ever. So great is the popularity of these Stoves, that many imitations of it are put into the market, such as the Granite State, Empire State, &c., but those of them are equal to it in weight or quality of castings, cooking facilities, or economy of fuel.

To all who are in want of a GOOD Cooking Stove, we would say—buy a BAY STATE, and you are sure to get THE BEST STOVE IN THE WORLD.

The subscriber has for sale, also, a variety of other Cook Stoves, Cooking Ranges, Parlor Grates, Office and Parlor Stoves, Funnel, &c., for sale low for cash. E. A. STEVENS,

PATENTS.
American and Foreign Office.
AGENCY FOR BUSINESS
With the U. S. Patent Office, Washington,
No. 22 State Street, Boston.

IMPORTANT INFORMATION TO INVENTORS. The Subscriber (late Assistant of the U. S. Patent Office, under the Act of 1837) determined to present advantages, in applying for Patents, superior to those offered to inventors by others, has made arrangements whereby on applications prepared and conducted by him, THIRTY DOLLARS (instead of twenty, as paid back by others,) will be remitted by him in case of failure to obtain a patent, and the withdrawal through him within thirty days after the rejection. Caveats, Specifications, Assignments and all necessary papers and drawings, for procuring patents in this and foreign countries prepared, and advice rendered on legal and scientific matters respecting inventions, and infringement of patents.

Inventors can not only here obtain their specifications on the most reasonable terms, but can here avail themselves of the experience of 20 years' practice, an extensive library of legal and mechanical works, and correct accounts of patents granted in this and other countries; besides being saved a journey to Washington, the usual great delay there as well as all personal trouble in obtaining their patents. Copies of claims of any patent furnished by remitting one dollar.—Assignments recorded at Washington.

R. H. EDDY,
Solicitor of Patents.

"During the time I occupied the office of Commissioner of Patents, R. H. Eddy, Esq., of Boston, did business at the Patent Office, as Solicitor of Patents. There were few, if any persons acting in that capacity, who had so much business before the Patent Office; and there were none who conducted it with more skill, fidelity, and success. I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the best informed and most skilful Patent Solicitors in the United States, and have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a person more competent and trustworthy, and more capable of putting their application in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office.

EDMUND BURKE,
Late Commissioner of Patents."

FOR beautifying, curling, preserving, restoring and strengthening the Hair, relieving diseases of the Skin, curing Rheumatic Pains and healing external wounds. Bounded by no geographical lines, the reputation of Barry's Tricopherous pervades the Union. The sales of the article of late years have increased in a ratio that almost exceeds belief. Prof. Barry, after a careful examination of his sales book, finds that the number of bottles delivered to order, in quantities of from half a gross upward, during the year 1852, was within a trifle of 950,000.

It is unnecessary to present at length the evidences of the wonderful properties of the Tricopherous when the public have furnished such an endorsement as this. The cheapness of the article, and the explanations given of its chemical action upon the hair, the scalp, and in all cases of superficial irritation, first recommended it to the attention of the people. This was all that the inventor desired. Every bottle advertised itself.—The effects of the fluid exceeded expectation. It acted like a charm. The ladies would not be without it. Country dealers in every section of the United States found they must have it; and thus was built up a wholesale trade of an extent hitherto unheard of as regards articles of this kind.—The highest point has not yet been reached, and it is believed that before this year will be a million and a half of bottles.

Liberal discount to purchasers by the quantity, and by all the principal Merchants and Druggists throughout the United States, and Canada, Mexico, West Indies, Great Britain, France, &c., and by Weeks & Potter, Brewers, Stevens & Cushing, and Wm. Brown, Boston. d&wtm je22*

DR. CONINE'S
SYRUP OF GINSENG & MALVA.
The Great Chinese Remedy.

THIS Medicine depends more upon its own virtues and actual merit than any other ever before offered to the public.

The recipe is from Dr. CONINE, a gentleman who travelled many years in China, and in the islands of the Pacific, where this compound is the potent and effectual remedy for the numerous diseases arising from a disordered or debilitated stomach, and

Affections of the Lungs.

But what will particularly attract attention is its astonishing

DISSOLVENT POWER,

By which it at once removes ALL PHLEGM or extraneous matter from the Throat, Stomach or Lungs. It is therefore

Anti-Expectorant,

And from attentions of trial here, it is now offered as NATURE'S KINDEST REMEDY for the removal of Consumption, Whooping Cough, and all Coughs, by precipitating the Phlegm, instead of creating irritation by expectoration.

It is AROMATIC, and increases the general warmth, possessing the exhilarating qualities of the Tea Plant, which is one great cause of its universal popularity in all India beyond the Ganges, where as an

APPETIZER

It probably has no equal in the Vegetable Kingdom

AS A DYSPEPTIC REMEDY, IT IS UNEQUALLED.

Its natural, genial warmth keeps the digestive powers ever in proper tone, soothing all irritation of the nerves, &c.

It will prove a more pleasant, safe and effectual Tonic than the Sarsaparilla or other boasted tonic remedy, and even nutritious, as well as exceedingly palatable. It will continue to be prepared in the best manner—no expense being spared—and in quart bottles.

Besides the numberless testimonials which we are receiving daily, of the good effect of the above medicine, we are allowed to refer to several physicians, who are now using the Syrup of Ginseng and Malva, with marked success.

DR. HAMPTON'S
VEGETABLE TINCTURE!
The Great Restorative and Invigorator of the System.

THIS article, which has made so many wonderful cures, was discovered by DR. JESSE HAMPTON, of Louisville, Ky., now in fine health in the 70th year of his age, and is acknowledged by those who have used it to be the BEST family medicine in use, and is WARRANTED FREE FROM ALL MINERAL SUBSTANCES. By its mild action on the STOMACH, LIVER and KIDNEYS, it will cure the diseases of those organs, with all chronic complaints, as

Dyspepsy, Cough, Asthma, Bronchial &
Lung Affections, Pains in the Back, Side and Breast, Consumption, Scrofula, Fits, Rheumatism, Gout, Neuralgia, Fistula, Fits, Bowel Complaint, Worms, Nervous Debility,

With all Diseases arising from Impure Blood.

As a FEMALE MEDICINE it has no equal! It will change the Complexion from a pallid to a blooming one.

Wherever introduced its success is unbounded. It has certificates from Hon. Henry Clay, Hon. R. M. Johnson, Vice President of the United States; Hon. John H. T. Jerome, Mayor of the City of Baltimore; the Spanish Consul; Judge Davis; Lund Washington; from a Chaplain of the U. S. Navy; from the State Department, Washington; from the brother of the Physician to the Emperor of France, who was cured by it after all other remedies had failed; and from hundreds of others, making up an amount of Testimony never before given to any other discovery of Medicine. A trial of it will convince the most skeptical.

We invite the public to call and get Pamphlets and see certificates of Cures. Read the following certificates of undoubted testimony:

From Hon. John H. T. Jerome, Mayor of the City of Baltimore.

MAYOR'S OFFICE, Baltimore, Aug. 23, 1852.

I take great pleasure in stating, that I have examined the names of those who have signed certificates respecting Hampton's Vegetable Tincture, and among them I recognize gentlemen of the first respectability, viz: Jos. R. Stapleton, William A. Schaffer, G. Duman, and others. I also cheerfully testify to the high standing of the house of Messrs Mortimer & Mowbray, who, for the past twenty years, have enjoyed the entire confidence and esteem both of our merchants and citizens generally.

JNO. H. T. JEROME.

A Voice from the Birth-place of Christopher Columbus, the Discoverer of America.

U. S. SHIP CUMBERLAND,
Genoa, Sardinia, January 17, 1853.

Messrs. Mortimer & Mowbray—Gentlemen: The first Lieutenant of this ship, who has been suffering many years from the Dyspepsia, and who has been nearly restored to his usual health by the use of "Hampton's Vegetable Tincture," desires you to send him one dozen bottles of that medicine.

Lieutenant Jones of the U. S. Navy, now on board this ship, also wishes you to send him one dozen of "Hampton's Vegetable Tincture," by the store ship which leaves the United States in February or March, for Spezzia.

The Tincture sent me was received in good order, and I take pleasure in informing you that it has been used with great success by several of our officers in cases of DYSPEPSIA.

I am respectfully yours,

"A Splendid Remedy."

THE GREAT REMEDY is at last discovered. Consumption can be cured!! and Coughs and Colds, the parents of that fell disease that so often brings woe to the homes of our land, vanish, as if by magic, before this SOVEREIGN REMEDY. This is that which has so long been sought for, and is in full faith offered to the public as a certain cure for Coughs, Colds, Whooping Cough, Croup, Asthma and Consumption, and will in any case where lungs sufficient are left to sustain life, check the ulceration and raise the patient to health. This is not an idle boast, nor is this remedy sent into the market without a thorough trial, but has proved beyond a doubt that what has been asserted CAN BE DONE.

N. B.—BEWARE OF COUNTERFEITS, and observe the following Promissory Note, with the fac simile signature of the proprietor, on every genuine box:

A BEAUTIFUL LITTLE STORY.

From the N. O. Picayune.

In listening, the other day, to the conversation of a plain, hardy Scotch shepherd, who had but a short time before reached this city from the Highlands, and was on his way to a sheep farm in Texas, it suddenly occurred to us that some two years ago we had received a manuscript story of a pleasing character, the principal personages of which were from Scotland. After a diligent search we found the MS.—a rough looking scrawl—and here it is, just as it reached our hands. Its simple pathos is something novel and original in this day of literary extravagance.

Messrs. Editors.—the writer of the following story, a few years ago, while in Prescott, Upper Canada, learned from an acquaintance of his the following story of the latter's early life:

"I was born in Dumfrieshire, Scotland, in the year 1830, near the banks of the lovely river Annan. My father died when I was but a child, and my mother, whose health was always very delicate, survived him but a short time. They both lie side by side in the Johnston Kirkyard. This fair flower," said my friend, pointing to a most angelic looking female, in whose finely formed features innocence and love were depicted, "was left, like myself, an orphan while but a child. We were schoolchildren together—we were lovers.—Our thoughts, our souls, our very existence seemed the same. When our parents left this cold world, we were left without friends, but our love was the same.

"I had, soon after my father's death, hired myself out as a shepherd's boy. While tending my flocks I would often think over the happy days of my childhood, the kindness of my parents, my wandering with my loved Ellen along the banks of the romantic Annan, while the calm water reflected in its glistening mirror the flowers that grew on its mossy covered banks; the bright rays of the sun fell from the limpid sky, and balmy zephyrs, scented with the perfume of flowers, swept gently past, exciting the senses and causing our young hearts to rejoice as we whispered in each other's ears our tales of love,—'The world forgetting, by the world forgot.'" Often on a summer's eve we used to gaze on the beautiful landscapes, our souls seeming lost in an infinity of delight. We never left those delightful scenes without, on our bended knees, thanking the author of them. The future seemed to me at this time truly beautiful; but alas! we have since found out that in this life there are thorns as well as roses; that it is not always summer.

"When I thought of these things, I say, my mind was not long in making up. Knowing my education to be good (I was well versed in mathematics, and was a very good Latin scholar,) I determined to push forth on the sea of life, and trust to kind heaven for the remainder. I knew that He who hears the raven's cry would watch over me. Soon after my thoughts ran in this course, I communicated my wishes to my employer, who refused with the most horrid and blasphemous imprecations, threatening at the same time to give me an awful beating if I attempted to leave him.

"On a lovely morning towards the latter end of March, I communicated to my loved Ellen my intentions. Never shall I forget, should my life last a hundred years, the effect it had on her. Tears streamed down her pallid cheeks as she said, whilst sobs almost choked her utterance, 'You are the only person in the world I love. My parents are in heaven. The persons I live with are very unkind to me. Why can you not take me with you! I will watch over you when sickness shall overtake you. That God who has watched over us so far, will not forsake us now!"

"I was very short of means, but knowing that Ellen was very good at embroidering and painting, I thought we could do well enough could we both reach Canada, where I intended going, hoping to meet with an uncle of mine who was in Prescott, U. C. Under these expectations we, the very next day set out for Greenock. We had arrived there but a short time, when I saw advertised a ship to sail for Quebec. I offered my services to the captain as cabin boy. I told him we were directing our course to Prescott, U. C.; that we were orphans going to live with my uncle. He accepted my offer, and we soon found ourselves far out at sea. We had but two passengers, a lady and gentleman.—They took great notice of us, and when they learned our simple story, offered to pay our passages, but the kind-hearted captain refused, saying our names were not down as passengers.

"We had a very short trip over. I was very much amused during the voyage, to hear the conversation which passed between the lady and my Ellen. Nature and nature's God were the principal themes on which they dwelt. 'Oh!' said she, one lovely evening when the sea lay in one sheet of pure crystals, and the sun was in the West, painting the clouds in the loveliest hues, 'my native lands shall I ne'er more stray through thy russet woods, nor pause by thy purling stream? Ne'er more behold the marvis, nor watch the lily in its lovely dell; the song of reapers among the yellow corn shall ne'er more greet my ear! When the holy Sabbath came, how delightful the bells sounded on the balmy air as they tolled the hour for worship. Scene of my childhood! shall I ne'er behold thee more! Oh, lady, it is hard to leave the spot where our youth has been spent—to leave the graves of all we loved dearly on earth.'"

* * * * * * *

The lady and gentleman took us with them to the city of Montreal, where they resided. They would not allow us to proceed until we had spent several weeks with them. Finding that we were anxious to reach my uncle's, the gentleman bespoke for us a passage on board the steamboat Highlander. It was with feelings of gratitude that we bade them adieu.

"Soon after my arrival, as you are aware, we found my uncle. The remainder of my story you know—the end God alone knows."

Not long after the foregoing conversation, I left my native land, and was absent two years, when I returned. I had been home but a few hours when I ascertained from a Scotch lady of my acquaintance, that one of the "bairns," as she called him, was dying. I immediately hasteued to visit them. It was about six o'clock in the evening when I arrived at the abode of sickness. The first object that met my view on my entrance was the young man in whose conversation I had taken so deep an interest about two years before. He had heard of my arrival, and asked several times for me. I approached the bed softly, and took one of his hands in my own, at the same time mentioning his name. He turned in his bed and stared wildly at me for a few moments, but soon recognizing me, grasped my hand warmly. He tried to converse with me, but was too feeble, and fell back exhausted on his pillow, I was informed that he had been siling with the consumption for about a year.

Towards night the winds began to blow, and but a few hours after, the St. Lawrence was lashed in foam, the winds blew with terrific force and the rain fell in torrents. The night became fearfully dark. It was an awful night. All around the sick bed felt its influence. It made my heart ache to gaze on the pale face of the sufferer. He awoke out of a slight doze about the middle part of the night, and casting his eyes towards heaven, said, "It is a fearful night to die in—God's will be done." His wife, like a ministering angel, was constantly at his side; all the efforts of kind friends could not prevail on her to rest even for one moment.

At six o'clock in the morning the winds died away, and but two hours afterwards the sun shone forth in golden brilliancy, and the birds warbled forth their songs of praise to their Maker. The boatman's song was soon after heard as he sailed over the waters which, but a few hours before, would have engulphed him in the rolling billows. The change of weather had an effect on our sick friend.—There was a smile on his pale features, as he said, "God's goodness has not forsaken me. How sweet to hear the songs of birds once more, and smell the sweet perfume of flowers. How refreshing the breezes as they fan my heated temples. Must I leave those loved scenes; never more tread the bright green fields, nor sail on the calm blue water. But oh! my wife, my beloved," said he, gazing in her mild blue eye, "is this the end of our dreams of happiness, to die in a strange land and among strangers! Ellen, there is a land to which I am fast hastening and to which you will soon, yes, I fear very soon will follow, in whose quietness and peace we will spend an eternity of love."

She prayed with him, and spoke, with holy enthusiasm, of the world to which he was hastening. She regretted that she was not ready to depart with him.

Towards evening there was in him a change for the worse. The doctor was sent for, but no sooner entered than he shook his head.—He informed us that our friend's hour was come, that he could not survive that night.—Anxiously did he watch each symptom, but he gradually grew worse, and about eight o'clock expired. His wife, in but one month after was laid by his side. She died as she had lived—a Christian. Just a few moments previous to her death she summoned her friends to her bed-side and thanked them for their kindness, and prayed God to prosper them. With her eyes raised to heaven in silent prayer, her spirit took its flight on seraph's downy wing.

Near the village of Johnstown, U. C., on the St. Lawrence, their remains repose.

THURSDAY, NOV. 10, 1853.

LAWYERS' FEES.

During the past week a case has been on trial in the U. S. Circuit Court, at Philadelphia, to recover $50,000 alleged to be due to the estate of the late Daniel Webster for fees in the great case of Matthias Aspenden's estate. The case is not yet finished.

If the above statement of fees is correct, we should presume the case never would be finished, while either party has a cent left to pay counsel for contending. It is too late in the day for any one to doubt Mr. Webster's great power as a lawyer: but what he or any other man could do in a civil action, to entitle him to such an enormous reward, is a special wonder. The right and wrong of all common cases may easily be seen; and the pros and cons of such cases can be simply stated by men of ordinary talent, and of moderate legal learning. And in cases where the points of law are so numerous, so intricate and dark as to cost fifty thousand dollars to illustrate one side of them, it would seem doubtful whether human optics would ever penetrate to their core. The desire to prevail, must in most of such cases be vastly stronger than the love of justice. But if this unpaid fee was a fair specimen of the deceased counsellor's charges, the receipts of his extensive law practice must have been enormously great, and the leaks which exhausted such an income must also have opened widely. If otherwise, and this is an extra charge, we think a New Hampshire jury would cut it down. How it may be in Pennsylvania, we cannot say.

PARDONED.—Patrick O'Hearn, who was sentenced about a year ago, to two years in the House of Correction in Boston, for an aggravated assault upon watchman Ellis, in Kneeland street, has been pardoned out by the Governor and Council.

The Governor and Council ought to understand their own business, better than we do theirs. But this case, as we remember it, looks like ill-judged lenity. The office of watchman, where one's duty is to deal with drunken maniacs, burglars and ruffians generally, is sufficiently dangerous when the law throws all its safeguards round the faithful officer.—And when evidence has convicted one criminal of an aggravated assault, for which he is sentenced to good wholesome hard work for only two years,—if the executive steps in at the end of one year to pardon the man out, it amounts to cutting down the penalty to a mere nominal sentence.

It seems to be saying to the brutal rowdy, knock down the watchman, kill him if you can: it is not likely you will be identified; and if you are, and get sentenced to two years confinement, all you have to do is to behave decently in the House of Correction, taking care to snivel a little, and pretend to be sick, or sorry, or something, and you will be pardoned.

ATTEMPTED SUICIDE.—James Wilson, who murdered a fellow prisoner named William Adams, in the Massachusetts State Prison, attempted to commit suicide in his cell in jail, on Monday afternoon, by cutting his throat with a knife. He inflicted several severe wounds, but it is thought he will recover.

So we see that those who appear to be the most desperate criminals, are sometimes really insane men, acting like those who in the Saviour's time dwelt in the tombs, were exceeding fierce, so that no man might pass by that way, and spent their nights and days in crying and cutting themselves with stones. Such men are surely not morally responsible like other men; but society is responsible for their safe keeping, and must take care and shut them up fast.

On Tuesday the New York city court of oyer and terminer opened with one of the heaviest catalogues of murder cases which was ever perhaps placed before a criminal court. It includes eighteen persons to be tried for twelve murders, and two other persons charged in other cases are yet at large. In addition there is a woman indicted for arson. No such calendar was ever brought up at one term; not even at the special commissions in England and Ireland.

We have already noticed some of these cases; most dreadful cases of drunken murders. We have no hesitation in saying that among the whole twenty criminals, there is not a single total abstinent from intoxicating drinks. The drinking habits of that people are the real sources of crime; the murders are only the streams that flow from it.

At the time of the outbreak in Salt Lake City against him, Mr. Bridger repaired for safety to another trading post which he owned on Green River, over a hundred miles distant. The Mormons, however, continued in pursuit, found him at the place, and killed him. Mr. Bridger's retainers have arrived at St. Louis.—Boston Post.

We know nothing more about Mr. Bridger; but the Mormon fanaticism will certainly breed a civil war among the Saints themselves.

☞ The dog whose "bark is on the C," has been engaged by Jullien.

EXCESSIVE EXTRAVAGANCE.—The ladies' bonnets are all "running to waist."—Punch.

For the Chronicle.

NEW CASTLE.—No. II.

Among the men of eminence in this ancient town, early in the last century, Hon. John Frost held a high rank.

He was a native of Kittery, Me.; born 1682, son of Major Charles Frost, who was slain by the Indians, on the Sabbath, July 4th, 1697, as he was returning from meeting;—and grandson of Nicholas Frost, an emigrant from England, born in Tiverton, about the year 1595, and settled on the south side of Frost's Hill in Kittery, where he died in 1663. His grandson, Hon. John Frost, in 1702, married Mary Pepperell, daughter of Hon. Wm. Pepperell, senior, and sister of Sir William, the Baronet. Her father was born in Cornwall, Eng.; and emigrated to the Isles of Shoals, in 1676, and subsequently settled in Kittery, where he died in 1734.

Mr. Frost and his lady were early established at New Castle, where he soon rose to eminence. He was a member of His Majesty's Council; at one time commanded a British ship-of-war, afterwards pursued the profession of a merchant, and was much distinguished and highly useful in civil life.

His place of residence was on an eminence, westerly of the Town-House, formerly the Prescott Mansion, commanding a view of the spacious harbor, the river and its table lands, with the lofty Agamenticus in the distance.—Some remains of his extensive wharf may now be traced.

His family was numerous and highly respectable—one of whom was Madam Sarah Blunt, born 1713, consort of Rev. John Blunt, third pastor of the Church in New Castle, and after his decease, of Hon. Judge Hill, of South Berwick, Me.

Hon. John Frost died Feb. 25, 1732, in the fifty-first year of his age.

After his decease, his widow was married to Rev. Benjamin Colman, DD., pastor of Brattle Street Church, Boston. She was thus called to fill a station, demanding the refined accomplishments of the female and the graces of the christian. Her venerable husband stood pre-eminent among the first divines and scholars of his country and age: a Fellow of Harvard College and a President elect of that renowned seat of science. He had travelled in Europe, and his circle of acquaintance was both large and select. His mansion, the seat of elegant, refined and christian hospitality, was a place of resort for the wise and the good.

Madam Colman, after presiding over this illustrious family with a courteous dignity, had the mournful privilege to minister to her venerable companion, at the closing scene of his long-protracted and distinguished life.

After his decease, she was married to Hon. Judge Prescott of Danvers, Mass., 1751.

Her sister, Jane Pepperell, the wife of Rev. Ebenezer Turell of Medford, Mass.,—a son-in-law of Rev. Dr. Colman—was the Benefactress of the Church in New Castle, who made the bequest of a splendid silver communion-cup, which still bears the impress of the honored name of Mrs. Jane Turell.

William Frost Esq., eldest son of Hon. John Frost, born 1705, was married 1750, at Salem, to Elizabeth Prescott, daughter of Rev. Benjamin Prescott.

Benjamin Frost Esq., son of William Frost, born 1753, married Mercy Prescott, daughter of Henry Prescott Esq., 1784, and died 1835. He was the father of John N. Frost Esq., of this city.

Joseph Frost Esq., son of Hon. John Frost, was born 1717 and died 1768: he was an enterprising and opulent Merchant in Newastle.

George Frost Esq., son of Joseph Frost, was born 1750, and died 1808. He was a Merchant, and the Inspector of the port, under the administration of Washington.—His wife was Abigail, daughter of Thomas Bell Esq., who was the proprietor of a very extensive real estate and much other wealth. A massive Silver Cup, inscribed with his name, and as armorial Bearings, a chime of Bells, surmounted by a spire—is now in the possession of Captain Thomas Bell Frost, his Grandson, who is the present Inspector of this Port. In the ancient "Frost Burying Ground" in Newcastle, near the grave of Hon. John Frost, is that of Abigail, his lovely daughter, who died 1742, in the 24th year of her age. Her Monument presents a specimen of sculpture rarely excelled, probably the work of a foreign artist. Near the top is a group of figures in bold relief. In the centre, a beautiful female form—on the right, a lofty pillar, a flame waving from the capital—below, an anchor and cable—and near it, a female half-reclining; in her hand a branch of olive—on the left, among blooming roses, an Angelic Visitant, bearing in the hand a splendid Coronet. Beneath is the following Inscription.

Released from cares, at rest she lies:
Where peaceful slumbers close her eyes.
Her Faith all trials dispondure,
Like a strong pillar, firm and sure.
Did adverse waves tempestuous roll?
Hope was the Anchor of her soul.
We by the Olive in her hand,
Her peaceful end may understand.
And by the Coronet is shown,
Virtue, at last, shall wear the Crown. *

A recent fire at Green Bay, Wisconsin, destroyed property valued at $100,000.

LOCAL.

THE CITY LYCEUM.

The first of the course of fourteen (or more) Lectures before the City Lyceum, is to be delivered this evening, at that pleasant and inviting lecture-room, the Cameneum. The orator is Matthew Hale Smith, Esq., of Boston; his subject, "Law and Lawyers." Mr. Smith is an able writer and fluent speaker, and will doubtless bring out a racy, interesting and instructive lecture, on this very suggestive topic.

We bespeak a liberal support for this Lyceum. Three very popular speakers from Boston are announced, and most of the clergymen in this city are to lecture. Some of these are known to be unsurpassed as lecturers by any who come from abroad, and the lectures of others who have never been heard here out of the pulpit, will be looked forward to with much interest. Gentlemen's tickets for the course, $1; Ladies', only 50 cents. Doors open at 7—lectures commence at half past 7.

For the Chronicle.

THE NEW LYCEUM.

Messrs. Editors:—Can we not have the Temple bell rung, in the usual manner, fifteen minutes prior to the commencement of the Lyceum lectures, to be delivered at that house? It seems to me, that this course would notify people, and particularly that class of persons, whose business demands their attention to the establishment, of the exact time of the commencement of the lectures, and thus enable all to be present in due season. Again; the audience was somewhat annoyed on the occasion of the opening lecture, by the continual entrance of persons at the door near the speaker's stand, after the lecture had commenced; and of course at that late hour, seats could only be obtained at the back part of the house, so the unfortunate late ones were compelled to run the gauntlet of the entire audience, before obtaining a seat. We feel justified in questioning the propriety of locking the main entrances to a hall, containing some six hundred persons, with the key safely deposited in the pocket of some efficient door-keeper—the only means of egress in case of an alarm of fire, being the narrow and difficult passage before mentioned, where two persons can scarcely stand abreast. If the object is to prevent noise, let it be attained by the employment of a sufficient force to keep the boys out of the entrances, which should at the same time be kept free for the passage of ticket holders, who may be, from any cause belated, and who may not wish to disturb a large audience in the act of procuring a seat. The public have evinced a disposition to support this course of lectures handsomely, and their rights should be respected. *

The Atlantic and St. Lawrence Railroad, under its new British masters, seems to have put on high-heeled boots. Twice, a freight car left by the merchandize train, and for convenience attached to a passenger train, has been unhooked and left behind, in obedience to orders from head quarters. No carpet-bag, umbrella, or anything that can be called baggage, is allowed, as we understand it, to go into a passenger car. The Portland people talk savagely about some such things; well, we shall see.—Lewiston Falls Journal.

The Portland Advertiser is authorized to contradict the above statements about baggage, &c.

ANTIQUITY OF WAKES.—The custom of "Waking" the dead, so general in Ireland and in the Highlands of Scotland, is thought to be Druidical. However this may be, waking the dead has been considered a sort of religious duty from the earliest period known to the Irish people. It is thought that the custom did not originate in the British Islands, but that it came from either Carthage or Phenica. It is a fact, singular in itself, that a passage in Platus proves that the language used by the Carthagenians was identical with that of ancient Irish, as it can be read at once by any lettered Irishman of this day. If the languagage were identical, it is fair to presume that the customs of those distant nations were.—Sunday Despatch.

This last assertion, as to the identity of the Irish and Phenicians has been so frequently asserted by philologists and others, that it bears the marks of truth.

TELEGRAPHICALLY DESPATCHED.—A young lawyer was riding in Lawrence the other day upon the top of a stage, and either from the height of his seat or some other cause, became so dizzy and blind, that he did not see that the telegraph wire across the road he was travelling had become detached from the poles so as to impede progress. The first he knew of that fact was the wire's catching him across the neck, dragging him over the top of the stage, and throwing him with stunning force to the ground. He was taken up and carried into the Post Office, which was at hand, where he soon revived. The first thing he did upon coming to his senses, was to express thankfulness that he should yet live to vote the coalition ticket under the protection of the gluten, if he did write the article in the Sentinel last week.—Newburyport Union.

The civilized Indians resident in Neberiska cultivate their farms, are educated and speak good English, and are desirous of becoming citizens of the United States. No full return of the late election has yet been received. At Bellview 358 votes were polled for Johnson for delegate to congress, and 304 votes for William Hamilton for governor.

DEATH IN JAIL.—James Munsey, of Barnstead, N. H., died in jail in Boston, on Monday afternoon, of delirium tremens. He was committed on Thursday in default of payment of a fine for stealing butter. He was about 45 years of age, and had lived in Boston about two years, having been employed as a teamster.

CONCERT AT THE TEMPLE.

THE

Germania Musical Society

HAVE the honor to announce to the citizens of Portsmouth and vicinity that they will give

A GRAND CONCERT

AT THE TEMPLE,

ON FRIDAY EVENING, NOV. 18.

The Society consists of Twenty-five thorough musicians. On this occasion they will be assisted by the well known superior vocalists, MAD'LLE CAROLINE PINTARD & MONS. F. RUDOLPH.

The price of admission has been fixed to all parts of the Hall at FIFTY CENTS.

Tickets, with secured seats, may be obtained at the store of Wm. R. Preston, Druggist and Apothecary, No. 2 Congress Block, beginning to-day, Thursday, Nov. 10.

The arrangements, so well carried out at the Concert of Ole Bull, will be made at this Concert, viz:

With every Admission Ticket, will be given a certificate bearing the number corresponding to the seat. On the evening of the Concert there will be in attendance a sufficient number of Ushers, wearing rosettes, whose duty it will be to conductors to their respective seats.

[A programme will be given in future papers.]

The doors will be open at 7½ o'clock. Concert to commence at 8. No postponement on account of the weather. n10

The King of States

COOKING STOVE.

FOR WOOD OR COAL.

THE attention of all in want of a COOK STOVE is respectfully solicited to a consideration of the most beautifully modeled patern, equally adapted for Coal or Wood, and warranted to operate successfully with either,—which is now offered to the public as the

MOST COMPLETE AND EFFICIENT

Cooking apparatus ever before introduced in this vicinity.

It is an elegant model, of fine smooth castings, (equal in thickness and durability to the old James Cook Stove) and fitted together in the most substantial manner. The oven and flues around it are so constructed that baking can be done in twenty minutes from time of lighting the coal, and with wood much quicker.

The broiling apparatus is on an entirely new and original plan, that will not fail to recommend itself at the first glance, as no smoke or gas arising from that culinary process can escape into the room.

Every Stove is warranted to give entire satisfaction, and should it fail to operate as recommended, or crack within a year from date of purchase, it will be exchanged or the money refunded, at the expense of the manufacturer. Those that have been in operation a year in this place appear as well as when the first fire was lighted, and are indeed "just as good as new."

The demand for this stove is such that it is impossible for the manufacturers to meet their orders. Those just received were ordered early in the season.

All intending to purchase or exchange are invited to give this an examination and trial before purchasing elsewhere, thereby securing the most durable, economical and best stove in the market.

New York Election.—Telegraphic despatches of Wednesday, give scattering accounts of the election on Tuesday. In New York City, the Reformers have a plurality.—The indications are that the whole Whig State ticket is elected. The Soft vote leads the Hards largely.

Great Fire in Neponset.—The planing mill at Neponset, owned by Albert Stearns, took fire on Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock, and was entirely consumed, together with a large amount of stock which it contained. It being high water and raining hard, the adjoining buildings and piles of lumber were saved, thus preventing an extensive conflagration.

Mr. Vezie occupied the loft as a sash and blind factory, and with Mr. Stearns, is partially insured. Damage estimated at about $15,000.

Engines from all parts of Dorchester, Quincy, and Roxbury, were present, and did good service.

From Oregon.—Advices from Oregon dated Camp Myrtle, Umpqua Valley, Sept. 11th, report for the month previous to that date, that that region had been the seat of a formal Indian war. With the assistance of Gen. Lane, Alvord in command of the general forces there, raised a company of Umpqua volunteers. Gen. Lane, after leaving the main body, was elected to command it, and on the 24th of August met some 300 Indian warriors, whipped them, and made them sue for peace. Surprising them by marchings, and otherwise acting with vigor and rapidity, he overtook them in their stronghold in the mountains, where the battle took place.—The General was badly wounded in the shoulder, but kept the field.

New Orleans, Nov. 8.—The Democrats have swept the State. The Whigs elect only two or three members of the Legislature. Congressional districts uncertain. It is supposed that Dunbar, dem., is elected in the 20th district.

Accident at the Hippodrome.—One of the female riders at the Hippodrome in New York on Friday evening, was seriously injured by the fall of her horse in leaping the water ditch. The horse in leaping failed to make the other side of the ditch, and consequently fell, turning a complete summerset, falling upon his rider.

In Portsmouth, Virginia, a mean husband turned his wife adrift, and offered all his household goods at auction; with the intention of pocketing all the proceeds and tramping. But the "boys" heard of it, went to the auction room, stopped everybody from bidding on the furniture, had it knocked off to them—the whole variety—for 86c., and then presented it all to his wife, and the 86c. to her husband, with marching orders to him.

The dwelling house of Mr. Cyrus T. Moore, near the East Village in Concord, N. H., was destroyed by fire, with most of its contents, on Thursday morning. Insured for $700.

Death of Mrs. Backus.—Mrs. Mellicent Backus, says the Rochester Democrat, mother of Dr. F. F. Backus and Theodore Backus of this city, died at the residence of Dr. Backus, on Sunday night, about ten o'clock, in the 88th year of her age. Mrs. Backus was the daughter of Josiah Deming, of Wethersfield, Conn., and was born in that town in 1766, and of course came to maturity during the stirring events of our national history, which commenced with the Declaration of Independence. When a girl of 15 years she formed one of the church choir at Wethersfield, which sang on the occasion of the visit of Washington and Count Rochambeau to that village. The distinguished party spent the Sabbath in Wethersfield, and Washington expressed great pleasure in the performance of the choir, which, at his request sang several pieces. Mrs. Backus was the wife of the Rev. Dr. Azel Backus, for many years President of Hamilton College, in this State. At his death she came to this city, then a village, to reside. Here she had lived about thirty-five years.

PATENTS.

American and Foreign Office.

AGENCY FOR BUSINESS

With the U. S. Patent Office, Washington,

No. 22 State Street, Boston.

IMPORTANT INFORMATION TO INVENTORS. The Subscriber (late Agent of the U. S. Patent Office, under the Act of 1836) determined to present advantages, in applying for Patents, superior to those offered to inventors by others, has made arrangements whereby on applications prepared and conducted by him, THIRTY DOLLARS (instead of twenty, as paid back by others,) will be remitted by him in case of failure to obtain a patent, and the withdrawal through him within thirty days after the rejection. Caveats, Specifications, Assignments and all necessary papers and drawings, for procuring patents in this and foreign countries prepared, and advice rendered on legal and scientific matters respecting inventions, and infringement of patents.

Inventors can not only here obtain their specifications on the most reasonable terms, but can here avail themselves of the experience of 20 years' practice, an extensive library of legal and mechanical works, and correct accounts of patents granted in this and other countries; besides being saved a journey to Washington, the usual great delay there, as well as all personal trouble in obtaining their patents. Copies of claims of any patent furnished by remitting one dollar.—Assignments recorded at Washington.

R. H. EDDY,
Solicitor of Patents.

"During the time I occupied the office of Commissioner of Patents, R. H. Eddy, Esq., of Boston, did business at the Patent Office, as Solicitor of Patents. There were few, if any persons acting in that capacity, who had so much business before the Patent Office; and there were none who conducted it with more skill, fidelity, and success. I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the best informed and most skilful Patent Solicitors in the United States, and have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a person more competent and trustworthy, and more capable of putting their application in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office.

EDMUND BURKE,
Late Commissioner of Patents."

"Patent Office,

"R. H. Eddy, Esq., Boston, Mass.

"Sir,—Your facilities for the prosecution of any business connected with this Office, are equal to those of any other agent. I am very respectfully,

Yours, &c. THOMAS EWBANK,
Commissioner of Patents."

WEEKLY CHRONICLE,

AN INDEPENDENT FAMILY NEWSPAPER,

At $1 per Annum, in advance.

Being published in connection with the DAILY MORNING CHRONICLE, we are enabled to offer a record of news more thorough than Weeklies generally; and being entirely independent of the "arbitrary away" of any and all parties and sects, our record of passing events we trust is clear and impartial.

The coming year seems big with events of great political interest, and a paper having no party bias will be found interesting as a chronicle of the doings of all parties.

LOCAL MATTERS

Have a prominent place in the Weekly Chronicle, so that natives of Portsmouth resident at home or abroad, will here find mention of all matters of interest in this vicinity.

The Weekly Chronicle is of medium size, printed on good paper, and contains but few advertisements—giving twenty columns of news and miscellaneous reading each week, at the low price of one dollar a year.

Dr. J. P. Woolley's All-Healing and Strengthening Salve.

THIS salve is a sovereign remedy for lame back, local rheumatism, pain in the side and breast, scalds, burns, freezes, fresh wounds, bruises, sprains, weakness in the joints, crick in the back, old sores, chilblains, swellings, numbness, ague in the face and breast, cracked hands, biles, corns on the feet, and occasional sores of most kinds which the human kind is subject.

This Salve is a rare and valuable combination of warm, stimulant and anodyne ingredients, and will be found far superior to any other article of the kind heretofore discovered for the above complaints. There has never appeared a medicine which possesses the penetrating and healing power in so great a degree, while at the same time it cannot by any possibility produce injurious effects. By its action on the skin it moves all obstructions to the insensible perspiration—excites a healthy circulation of the blood—strengthens and invigorates the nerves—gives elasticity to the joints, and imparts strength to any part of the system which may have been weakened by sedentary habits or disease. Bay State Stoves.

THE Subscriber would inform his friends and the public, that he has for sale all sizes of this favorite Stove. Having sold them in this city for five years past, they have been thoroughly tested with wood and coal, and are found perfect in every respect.
Those put in operation four and five years since have had no repairs made upon them, and are to all appearance as good as ever. So great is the popularity of these Stoves, that many imitations of it are put into the market, such as the Granite State, Empire State, &c.; but none of them are equal to it in weight or quality of castings, cooking facilities, or economy of fuel.
To all who are in want of a GOOD Cooking Stove, we would say—buy a BAY STATE, and you are sure to get THE BEST STOVE IN THE WORLD.
The subscriber has for sale, also, a variety of other Cook Stoves, Cooking Ranges, Parlor Grates, Office and Parlor Stoves, Funnel, &c. for sale low for cash. E. A. STEVENS,

PROF. ALEX. C. BARRY'S Tricopherous, or Medicated Compound.

FOR beautifying, curling, preserving, restoring and strengthening the Hair, relieving diseases of the Skin, curing Rheumatic Pains and healing external wounds. Bounded by no geographical lines, the reputation of Barry's Tricopherous pervades the Union. The sales of the article of late years have increased in a ratio that almost exceeds belief. Prof. Barry, after a careful examination of his sales book, finds that the number of bottles delivered to order, in quantities of from half a gross upward, during the year 1852, was within a trifle of 950,000.
It is unnecessary to present at length the evidences of the wonderful properties of the Tricopherous when the public have furnished such an endorsement as this. The cheapness of the article, and the explanations given of its chemical action upon the hair, the scalp, and in all cases of superficial irritation, first recommended it to the attention of the people. This was all that the inventor desired. Every bottle advertised itself.—The effects of the fluid exceeded expectation. It acted like a charm. The ladies would not be without it. Country dealers in every section of the United States found they must have it; and thus was built up a wholesale trade of an extent hitherto unheard of as regards articles of this kind.—The highest point has not yet been reached, and it is believed that the sales this year will be a million and a half of bottles.
Liberal discount to purchasers by the quantity, and by all the principal Merchants and Druggists throughout the United States, and Canada, Mexico, West Indies, Great Britain, France, &c., and by Weeks & Potter, Brewers, Stevens & Cushing, and Wm. Brown, Boston. d&w6m je22

DR. CONINE'S

SYRUP OF GINSENG & MALVA.

The Great Chinese Remedy.

THIS Medicine depends more upon its own virtues and actual merit than any other ever before offered to the public.
The recipe is from Dr. CONINE, a gentleman who travelled many years in China, and in the islands of that vicinity where this compound is the potent and effectual remedy for the numerous diseases arising from a disordered or debilitated stomach, and

Affections of the Lungs.

But what will particularly attract attention is its astonishing DISSOLVENT POWER.
By which it at once removes ALL PHLEGM or extraneous matter from the Throat, Stomach or Lungs. It is therefore

Anti-Expectorant.

And from attentions of trial here, it is now offered as NATURE'S KINDEST REMEDY for the removal of Consumption, Whooping Cough, and all Coughs, by precipitating the Phlegm, instead of creating irritation by expectoration.
It is AROMATIC, and increases the general warmth, possessing the exhilarating qualities of the Tea Plant, which is one great cause of its universal popularity in all India beyond the Ganges, where as an

APPETISER

It probably has no equal in the Vegetable Kingdom AS A DYSPEPTIC REMEDY, IT IS UNEQUALLED.
Its natural, genial warmth keeps the digestive powers ever in proper tone, soothing all irritation of the nerves, &c.
It will prove a more pleasant, safe and effectual Tonic than any Sarsaparilla or other boasted tonic remedy, and even nutritious, as well as exceedingly palatable. It will continue to be prepared in the best manner—no expense being spared—and in quart bottles.
Besides the numberless testimonials which we are receiving daily, of the good effect of the above medicine, we are allowed to refer to several physicians, who are now using the Syrup of Ginseng and Malva with great success.

DR. HAMPTON'S VEGETABLE TINCTURE!

The Great Restorative and Invigorator of the System.

THIS article, which has made so many wonderful cures, was discovered by DR. JESSE HAMPTON, of Louisville, Ky., now in fine health in the 79th year of his age, and is acknowledged by those who have used it to be the best family medicine in use, and is WARRANTED FREE FROM ALL MINERAL SUBSTANCES. By its mild action on the STOMACH, LIVER and KIDNEYS, it will cure the diseases of those organs, with all chronic complaints, as

Dyspepsy, Cough, Asthma, Bronchial & Lung Affections, Pains in the Back, Side and Breast, Consumption, Scrofula, Fits, Rheumatism, Gout, Neuralgia, Fistula, Fits, Bowel Complaint, Worms, Nervous Debility,

With all Diseases arising from Impure Blood.
As a FEMALE MEDICINE it has no equal! It will change the Complexion from a pallid to a blooming one.
Wherever introduced its success is unbounded. It has certificates from Hon. Henry Clay, Hon. R. M. Johnson, Vice President of the United States; Hon. John H. T. Jerome, Mayor of the City of Baltimore; the Spanish Consul; Judge Davis; Lund Washington; from a Chaplain of the U. S. Navy; from the State Department, Washington; from the brother of the Physician to the Emperor of France, who was cured by it after all other remedies had failed; and from hundreds of others, making up an amount of Testimony never before given to any other discovery of Medicine. A trial of it will convince the most skeptical.
We invite the public to call and get Pamphlets and see certificates of Cures. Read the following certificates of undoubted testimony:

From Hon. John H. T. Jerome, Mayor of the City of Baltimore.

MAYOR'S OFFICE, Baltimore, Aug. 28, 1852.
I take great pleasure in stating, that I have examined the names of those who have signed certificates respecting Hampton's Vegetable Tincture, and among them I recognize gentlemen of the first respectability, viz: Jos. S. Stapleton, William A. Schaffer, G. Duncan, and others. I also cheerfully testify to the high standing of the house of Mesars Mortimer & Mowbray, who, for the past twenty years, have enjoyed the entire confidence and esteem both of our merchants and citizens generally.
JNO. H. T. JEROME.

A Voice from the Birth-place of Christopher Columbus, the Discoverer of America.

U. S. SHIP CUMBERLAND, Genoa, Sardinia, January 17, 1853.
Messrs. Mortimer & Mowbray—Gentlemen: The first Lieutenant of this ship, who has been suffering many years from the Dyspepsia, and who has been nearly restored to his usual health by the use of "Hampton's Vegetable Tincture," desires you to send him one dozen bottles of that medicine.
Lieutenant ——, of the U. S. Navy, now on board this ship, also wishes you to send him one dozen of "Hampton's Vegetable Tincture," by the store ship which leaves the United States in February or March, for Spezzia.
The Tincture you sent me was received in good order, and I take pleasure in informing you that it has been used with great success by several of our officers in cases of Dyspepsia.
I am respectfully yours,
VERNON ESKRIDGE, Chaplain U.S.N.

"A Splendid Remedy."

DEVINES' COMPOUND PITCH LOZENGE
COLDS COUGHS ASTHMA CONSUMPTION
THE WONDER OF THE WORLD

THE GREAT REMEDY is at last discovered. Consumption can be cured!! and Coughs and Colds, the parents of that fell disease that so often brings woe to the homes of our land, vanish, as if by magic, before this SOVEREIGN REMEDY. This is that which has so long been sought for, and is in full faith offered to the public as a certain cure for Coughs, Colds, Whooping Cough, Croup, Asthma and Consumption, and will in any case where lungs sufficient are left to sustain life, check the ulceration and raise the patient to health. This is not an idle boast, nor is this remedy sent into the market without a thorough trial, but has proved beyond a doubt that what has been asserted CAN BE DONE!
N. B.—BEWARE OF COUNTERFEITS, and observe the following Promissory Note, with the fac simile signature of the proprietor, on every genuine box:
"($50 00) On demand I promise to pay to the bearer FIVE MILLS for value received.

A BEAUTIFUL SKETCH.

We are indebted to a writer in the Chicago Journal for the following sketch of a domestic scene that cannot fail to touch a chord in every parent's heart:

Yesterday we saw a wagon loaded with wheat coming into town—nothing strange in that, certainly. And a man driving the team, and a woman perched on the load beside him, and a child throned in the woman's lap—nothing strange in that, either. And it required no particular shrewdness to determine that the woman was the property—personal, of course—of the man, and that the black-eyed, round-faced child was the property of both of them. So much we saw—so much we suppose everybody saw, who looked.

It is a fair inference that the wife came in to help her husband "trade out" a portion of the proceeds of the wheat, the product of so much labor, and so many sunshines and rains. The pair were somewhere—a fine point of observation, isn't it?—this side of forty, and it is presumptive, if blessed like their neighbors, they left two or three at home "to keep house" while they came to town—perhaps two girls and a boy, or, as it is immaterial to us, two boys and one girl. Well, follow the pair, in and through, until the wheat was sold, the money paid, and then for the trade.

The baby was shifted from shoulder to shoulder, or set down upon the floor, to run off into mischief, like a sparkling globule of quicksilver on a marble table, while calicoes were priced, sugar and tea tasted, and plates "rung." The good wife looks askance at a large mirror that would be just the thing for the best room, and the roll of carpeting, of most becoming pattern; but it won't do—they must wait till next year. Ah! there is music in those next years, that orchestras cannot make. And so they look, and price, and purchase the summer supplies, the husband the while eyeing the little roll of bank notes growing small by degrees and beautifully less.

Then comes an "aside" conference, particularly confidential. She takes him affectionately by the button, and looks up in his face—she has fine eyes, by the by—with an expression eloquent of "do now—it will please them so." And what do you suppose they talk of? Toys for the children; John wants a drum, and Jane a doll, and Jenny a book, all pictures, "just like Susan so-and-so's."—The father looks "nonsense," and feels in his pocket for the required silver, and the mother, having gained the point, hastens away, baby and all, for the toys.

There acts the mother—she had half promised, not all, that she would bring them something, and she is happy all the way home, not for the bargains she made, but for the pleasant surprise in those three brown parcels. And you ought to have been there when she got home, when the drum, and the doll, and the book were produced—and thumbed, and cradled, and thumped—wasn't it a great house!—Happiness is so cheap, what a wonder there is no more of it in the world.

ANECDOTE OF A GAME COCK.—On the memorable 1st June (Lord Howe's victory) Captain Berkley commanded the Marlborough, and broke through the French line between L'Impetuous and Le Mucius, each of superior force, and engaged them both.—On going into action the Captain ordered all the live stock to be thrown overboard, but at the humble request of his crew permitted them to retain an old game cock, which they (the crew) had fought several times and always with success. Though the coop was thrown into the sea, the cock was allowed to range the deck at liberty. In the action, the Marlborough was so severely handled by her opponents that half the crew were disabled, her Captain carried wounded below, her mainmast shot away, and the remainder of the men driven from their quarters.

At the very juncture when the Marlborough was on the point of striking, there chanced one of those awful lulls in the roar of the thundering cannon often experienced in general action; in that momentary silence, when the falling of a rope might be heard, the old game cock, who had escaped the carnage, hopped up upon the shattered stump of a main-mast, and, with a loud and triumphant flapping of his wings, sent forth such a loud and lusty challenge as to be heard in every part of the disabled ship.

No individual spoke in reply to the homely but touching alarm; one universal and gallant cheer from the broken crew arose; they remembered the indomitable courage of the bird that sat undismayed above the bleeding horrors of the deck, and every one on board who could drag their limbs to quarters remanned the guns, resumed the action, and forced each of their opponents to surrender. A silver medal was struck by order of Admiral Berkley; it was hung upon the neck of the old game cock, who, in the parks and around the princely halls of Goodwood, passed the remainder of his downy days in honored safety.—British Naval History.

Mrs. Swisshelm, the lady editor of the Pittsburg Visitor, has recently visited the Crystal Palace in New York. She is a great advocate for utility—and consequently conceives that every great effort of human skill and industry, should be made for some decidedly useful purpose. It may be interesting to see the views she expresses on the subject of Mosiac work, making patchwork bedquilts, and "working worsted." She says:

"To us, misspent labor was written all over the exhibition, or at best the proportion of things of no use and of results which might have been attained at a twentieth of the labor, were as two to one, of the useful and the sensible.

The portrait of John the Baptist in Mosiac, is an object of great interest. Queen Victoria offered fifteen hundred pounds for it, but it is valued at $60,000. Well, this great master piece of Italian art, and monument of human patience, looks like St. John in 'cross-stitch,' or a fine old painting cracked and about to chip off the canvass.

Some parts of the shading and blending are very wonderful, when we reflect it is all done with minute pieces of stone, of natural color; but in most parts the joining can easily be detected, and this gives it the cross-stitch appearance we noticed. Altogather, it is certainly misspent labor, for the effect could have been much better obtained in an oil painting.

The piece is a copy of a portrait in oil, and it is not according to the natural order of things to have an imperfect imitation worth more than the original. It is not worth while to spend a lifetime making a stone picture, when a better one in oil can be made in a month.

All this applies to the Mosiac tables, one of which is valued at $15000; to the miniature watches, ten cent locomotives, patchwork quilts, worsted worked cats and dogs, needle worked Henry Clays, &c. &c. It is all labor which brings no adequate result, and which should send the laborer to a lunatic asylum.

We never could understand how a woman in the exercise of reason, could spend her time cutting calico into little bits, and sewing it together again, when it looked so much better in the whole cloth, or in working cross-stitch roses for stool covers, when for fifty cents they could get a bit of carpet, that would look better on a stool than the work of six months in Berlin wool.

Well, the cutting of wood and stone into bits, and fitting them into a picture, when a better one can be made by painting, is more conclusive evidense of insanity.

Mosiac is the worsted work of artists—the 'patch work' of the 'wiser sex.'

The New York papers are making themselves merry over a long and verbose speech of six newspaper columns, on his official reception, addressed to the President of Nicaragua by Mr. Solon Borland, our new Minister to Central America. The Thribune learns that 'Mr. Borland is doing as well as could be expected after the delivery of such a speech,' but nothing is said of the condition of the unhappy men who had to listen to it, though, luckily for them, as it was in English, they did not understand a word of it.

Two thirds of the members of the next Congress will serve for the first time in that capacity. Benton will be the father of the House, and break the young politicians in.

Morning Chronicle.

FRIDAY, NOV. 11, 1853.

NEW YORK.

The election in the State of New York, came off on Tuesday: the result is that the entire whig State ticket is elected, excepting the judges, upon whom the two sections of the democratic party united. It is doubtful whether the hards are ahead of the softs, or vice versa, and cannot be ascertained until the returns from the interior parts of the State are received. There is no doubt, however, that the whigs are in advance of both. The whigs have elected almost two thirds of their Senators for the term of two years, and a large majority of the Assembly. Half the Senate holds over. A U. S. Senator is to be chosen next year, Mr. Seward's term then expiring. The Senators now chosen will participate in this election.

One year ago, the State of New York, by a union of all sorts of democrats except "free democrats," gave President Pierce 27,000 majority. Now by a division between the wings of this party, the whigs, who were supposed to be destroyed as a party, come very quietly and easily into power; and so bitter is the apparent hatred between the two wings, that each had rather see the whigs take the State offices, than to see them enjoyed by the feathers of the opposite wing. It may therefore be concluded that the election in that State gives general satisfaction. The whigs are satisfied with the offices and emoluments; the softs rejoice to defeat the hards; and the hards to defeat the softs.

The entire whig State ticket supposed to be elected is:

Secretary of State—Elias W. Leavenworth.
Comptroller—James M. Cook.
State Treasurer—Elbridge G. Spaulding.
Attorney-General—Ogden Hoffman.
Canal Commissioner—Cornelius Gardinier.
Inspector State Prisons—Thomas Kirkpatrick.
Engineer and Surveyor—John T. Clark.

The returns are not sufficient to show by what majority, or plurality, this ticket is chosen; but that it is chosen is generally conceded. It is said, that the Legislature elected will in both branches be favorable to the Maine Liquor Law.

A Nut for the Abolitionists to Crack.—A day or two since, Mr. S. J. Garth of Henry county, Kentucky, and Dr. Brown, of Owen county, started up the river on one of the mail boats, on their way to Canada, where they have gone to reclaim their slaves, who ran away sometime ago. The former lost one, and the latter two of his slaves, who were enticed off by the Abolitionists, and are now on the point of starvation in Upper Canada. They want to return home, but have not the power or means, and after repeated entreaties, their masters have consented to bring them back to their old homes, where slavery exists only in name.—Louisville Journal.

Were it not that Hon. Caleb Cushing had announced the president's purpose that Abolitionism should be crushed out, we should expect to see some incendiary, hammer in hand, looking after the meat in the nut. But as these poor fellows, of course, will hide themselves for the present, we will hit it a knock without regard to the cost. We cannot help regarding the nut as a piece of good news, particularly the latter part of it, which represents slavery in Kentucky as existing only in name; for this circumstance shows that in a frontier state like Kentucky, close to the line of demarcation between free and slave states, true liberty makes progress: and at the same time distinctly contradicts the oft repeated assertion that emancipation has been put back fifty years, &c.

The absurdities that are uttered on both sides of the slavery question, are finely rebuked by constantly recurring facts; which show, one day, the evils and wrongs of a wretched system, and the next, exhibit a mitigation of the evils and restraint of the wrongs, by humane and christian principles, even when these operate imperfectly. What may they not do, in the way of improvement, when suffered to operate freely?

Our readers will understand us exactly, if they read the following paragraph in connexion with the one above cited:

"The Petersburg, Va., Express, states that Mr. Henry Birdsong, of the county of Essex—the same individual whose little son was killed by his side, and himself dangerously wounded, a few months since, as was supposed, by some of his negroes—so cruelly beat and whipped one of his negroes on Tuesday night last, that he died in a few hours. He has been arrested.

In Violation of Law.—The New Haven train of Saturday, for New York at 4 P. M., ran over the Norwalk (draw) Bridge, without stopping, against the laws of the state. The engineer was going so fast that he could not stop in time. Some of the passengers, among them Mr. Betts, the carpet dealer in Broadway, has instituted a complaint, we hear, to recover the penalty.—New York Express.

The public must not forget that the above is the fatal Norwalk bridge, through which a train went only a few months since. The excuse of the engineer is worse than nothing.—If the law of the State is good for any thing, the Railroad Company must pay the penalty.

OLD GUARDISM.

The N. H. Patriot says that Mr. Burke's Old Guard is dead. Burke himself, however, seems to be alive and kicking.

The Patriot also contains some extracts from the speech of one James E. Cooley, a hard democrat of New York, against President Pierce, which we deem one of the hardest kind of speeches. We give a paragraph or two, as given in the Patriot, except the capitals, which we omit.

So much for John Van Buren, Prince John, as he is sometimes derisively called; much such a kind of prince, I suppose, as is the ruler of the pit—the prince of devils, the prince of humbugs, and the prince of liars.—He is now, I am told, perambulating the State, boasting that he has got Bronson's head in a basket, reminding one forcibly of another profligate prostitute of ancient times, who was seen with a very good man's head in a charger, which, to gratify a base passion, had been severed by order of a drunken governor of Judea, at a bacchanalian banquet given at the white house, or bestial mansion of that wicked prince near Jerusalem. The parallel between the characters of both the possessors of the head of John the Baptist and Bronson the Collector, no less than of the two dissipated rulers, who, in their drunken cups, ordered the unoffending victims to the block, is too manifestly striking, not to impress upon the mind of every one the melancholy truth that when the wicked rule the people mourn.

* * * * What is the secret of this high handed outrage of President Pierce, accompanied by the vituperative and shameless missive of insult, vulgarity and coarseness, hurled from the office of the Secretary of the Treasury, at the unoffending head of the Collector, as it fell into the Judas Iscariot basket or bag, of John Van Buren, by command of a fifth rate county court treacherous pettifogger of New Hampshire, who, by accident, simply, happened to reach an exalted position, only to disgrace it, and cover himself with infamy? Why, again, I ask, was the head of the victim called for and the slaughter demanded?

* * * * Here is the proof, strong as holy writ, that the delirious occupant of the white house and his inflated cabinet at Washington, have undertaken the rather difficult task, I apprehend, of controlling the local elections of this State?

There; we think our readers will not care to hear any more, unless it is better. In the bitter wrangle between factions or wings of the same party, about the division of the spoils, the leading men tell such stories as the above about each other. If half of what either side says of the other be true, we have fallen on evil times.

The Police Uniform.—It has been stated that the commissioners of police of New York, have decided upon clothing the members of that police department in uniform—to commence on the 15th of the present month. A portion of the police men are opposed to this change, which they regard as an innovation upon their rights and privileges, and we learn from the N. Y. Courier that many will refuse to wear the uniform, and that a fund of $500 or $600 has been raised among them for the purpose of testing the right and authority of the commissioners to compel them to wear it.

This is rich. It is quite certain that such commissioners cannot compel a policeman to wear a badge or uniform. But it must be a very easy thing to dismiss him if he will not comply.

O'Donohue, the Irish patriot, who was announced to deliver a lecture before the Irish Social Association in Baltimore, Tuesday night, was not suffered to proceed. He was in such an excited state, and became so violent in his denunciations, that the officers of the Society silenced him.

When in Boston, it was gently hinted, that the honorable patriot had either been putting too much water to his whiskey, or else too much whiskey to his water; we think it was the latter. Men who do so are apt to become excited and violent.

A Liberal Offer—The Post is informed that a gentleman of Boston has offered to give $50,000 to the town of Brewster for the formation of a public library there, provided the town will raise an equal amount for the purpose.

There is a local error in the above. It is "New Ashford," and not, "Brewster" that the Bostonian offers to endow with a large library. Let those papers that have copied make the correction.—Boston Courier.

We have been disposed to enquire what use a town, so small in population as either Brewster or New Ashford, would be likely to make of a library so large and costly; and also, whether any such town would raise $50,000 for such a purpose.

Railroad across Tehuantepec.—The Washington correspondent of the New York Tribune says:

"A contract has been made with a heavy English railroad firm to construct a plank road across the Isthmus of Tehuantepec, which is to be completed within one year; to be followed by a railroad, to be finished within three years. All the arrangements are made for a prompt commencement of both works. Santa Anna is to receive a million or so for the right of way. Seven hundred thousand dollars is to be paid over this week, in New York, on Mexican account."

During the progress of the Fair at Augusta, Georgia, the chairman of the Executive Committee authorized the auctioneer to offer a silver cup as a premium for the best looking baby, of native growth, 14 months old, which should be exhibited. A little daughter of Robert Glover was the only competitor, and, of course, took the prize.

LOCAL.

BOARD OF ALDERMEN.

Thursday Evening.

Gas lights were granted—corner of Vaughan and Hanover sts.; cor. of Austin and Hanover sts.; opposite Dr. Dwight's in Pleasant street.

Com. on claims, reported bill of Industrial Committee. Laid on table.

Liberty was granted, on payment of $5, for entrance of Mr. Cobb's drain into common sewer.

Repairs on Mr. Senter's schoolroom, Spring Market and Court House, were referred to committees.

Mr. Moulton's claim for damage to chaise, recommitted.

Mr. Lords's claim for broken windows in Penhallow street, indefinitely postponed.

CITY LYCEUM.

The opening lecture of this Lyceum, at the Cameneum on Thursday evening, was given to rather a thin house, in a room altogether too cool for comfort. But in spite of these adverse circumstances, the lecturer, Matthew Hale Smith, Esq. of Boston, gave us an excellent lecture on Law and Lawyers, which is well worthy of repetition before any lyceum which may call for it.

In a neat introduction, he spoke of the Law, as at once a necessity and a blessing to civilized life; then gave an easy and popular view of the origin and history of civil and criminal law; which he followed up by a well chosen series of anecdotes of eminent lawyers, illustrative of their characters and of his former positions; and closed by pertinent allusions to Calhoun, Clay and Webster, as deceased lawyers and statesmen, and to Mr. Choate, as an eminent living member of the profession.

It was a remarkable feature of the evening, that no lawyers were among the audience, which was highly respectable in its composition though sparse in its numbers. No intelligent listener could be otherwise than pleased with the lecture; and the legal profession and others who failed to attend, have simply lost an excellent evening's entertainment. We trust that by the sale of season or evening tickets, the future audience will be larger.

The next lecture is to be by E. G. Parker, Esq., of Boston, who is recommended by one of our native poets.

Lectures to Young Men.—Mr Lamson will deliver the first of the series which has been announced, on Sabbath Evening next, at the Middle street Church. Commence at 7.

☞ Rev. Justin Spaulding will deliver a lecture on Sunday evening, in the Methodist Church, on the Tendencies of Romanism. Mr. S. has spent several years as a Missionary in a Catholic country, and is thus enabled to speak from observation. He will doubtless present a very interesting discourse.

Revenue Cutters.—A Washington paper states that Secretary Guthrie has directed a circular to the commanders of the revenue cutters, directing them to make provisions for the relief of the vessels on the coast during the winter months. The cutters are ordered to cruise as follows: The Caleb Cushing, between Mount Desert and Cape Neddock, Me.; the Morris between Cape Neddock and Holmes' Hole, and Gardner's Bay, Long Island.

William H. G. Butler, the schoolmaster who was murdered at Louisville by Matthew T. Ward, was a native of Indiana, a graduate of Dartmouth College, 28 years old, and had been a tutor in the family of Ward's father. William Ward, the lad whom Butler chastised, giving him seven or eight strokes with a strap, had had some difficulty with another boy in the school, and had told a falsehood about it. Matthew and his younger brother, Robert J. Ward, who flourished a bowie knife about the school while his brother was doing the murder, have both been committed to prison. Mr. Butler leaves a young widow and a child seven months old. Nothing in extenuation of the deed appeared upon the examination of the prisoners.—The result of their trial will be anxiously awaited. She that was formerly Mrs. Sallie Ward, formerly the wife of Mr. T. B. Lawrence, and since married to a physician of Louisville, is a sister to the brothers above named.

Suicide.—The Boston Courier regrets to learn that Mr. Samuel Hunt, Secretary of the Manufacturers' Insurance Company, committed suicide by drowning himself, in the vicinity of Braman's Bath, early on Wednesday morning. A note addressed to Charles W. Cartwright, Esq., the President of the Insurance Company, was found at his residence, in which he stated his purpose of ending his life. His coat and hat were found on the mill dam, but his body was missing. He leaves a wife and five children. He was esteemed by those who knew him, and had been Secretary of the Manufacturers' Insurance Company for twenty years. It is supposed that he became embarrassed by endorsing notes for parties in New York, and in a fit of despair sought to end his troubles by drowning himself. He was about fifty years of age. Mr. Hunt was also Secretary of the Sandwich Glass Company. He left home at five o'clock, saying to his wife that he was going to Sandwich to attend some corporation business, and on a paper some words without a signature, to the effect that his body would be found in the basin in the rear of the last house on the mill dam.

The King of States
COOKING STOVE.
FOR WOOD OR COAL.

THE attention of all in want of a COOKING STOVE is respectfully solicited to a consideration of the most beautifully modeled patern, equally adapted for Coal or Wood, and warranted to operate successfully with either,—which is now offered to the public as the MOST COMPLETE AND EFFICIENT Cooking apparatus ever before introduced in this vicinity.

It is an elegant model, of fine smooth castings, (equal in thickness and durability to the old James Cook Stove) and fitted together in the most substantial manner. The oven and flues around it are so constructed that baking can be done in twenty minutes from time of lighting the coal, and with wood much quicker.

The broiling apparatus is on an entirely new and original plan, that will not fail to recommend itself at the first glance, as no smoke or gas arising from that culinary process can escape into the room.

Every Stove is warranted to give entire satisfaction, and should it fail to operate as recommended, or crack within a year from date of purchase, it will be exchanged or the money refunded, at the expense of the manufacturer. Those that have been in operation a year in this place appear as well as when the first fire was lighted, and are indeed "just as good as new."

The demand for this stove is such that it is impossible for the manufacturers to meet their orders. Those just received were ordered early in the season.

All intending to purchase or exchange are invited to give this an examination and trial before purchasing elsewhere, thereby securing the most durable, economical and best stove in the market.

FOUR DAYS LATER FROM EUROPE.

ARRIVAL OF THE FRANKLIN.

NEW YORK, Nov. 10.

The steamer Franklin arrived at about 9 o'clock this morning, bringing 162 passengers and London dates of the 28th ult.

Fine Wheat has advanced fourpence. Flour has also advanced from 2s to 2s 6d per barrel.

Advices from Odessa state that immense quantities of grain were arriving for shipment.

It was rumored that the Emperor of France had recalled his Ambassador at Naples, in consequence of a fancied indignity.

The Franklin's advices contain nothing decisive relative to the settlement of the Eastern question.

The Cholera had broken out at Jassy.

The navigation of the Danube is said to have ceased; the last mail steamer not being able to reach her points.

A telegraphic despatch from Constantinople of October 17th, announces that the combined fleet had passed the Dardanelles and would proceed to Constantinople. No other event of importance had occurred since the previous accounts. The army of Asia was every day receiving fresh recruits. Omar Pacha was in Widin directing the works. He was preparing to cross the Danube, having near that place a large number of boats and pontoons in readiness. The bridge between the fortress of Widin and the Island opposite was already occupied by a Turkish corps.

The Russians were marchiag in great force to Kalafat, opposite Widin.

A letter from St. Petersburgh of the 14th says that the news of the declaration of war by the Porte had produced a painful sensation.

In the north of Russia the Army and Civil Service were for war; but in the south they were more pacific. Nothing like a warlike enthusiasm was apparent anywhere, although various means had been taken to produce it.

Notwithstandiug all unfavorable symptoms, public opinion both in Paris and London still believed that the resources of diplomacy were not all exhausted, and that war may yet be averted.

The English merchants at St. Petersburg had been assured by the Emperor, through his Minister of Finance, that their property and persons would be protected, and that there was no risk for ships or goods during the present season, and that in case of hostilities, it was not the Emperor's intention to detain British vessels in his ports, provided the British government reciprocated.

The British money market continues very stringent. Consols for money 91 7-8 a 92.—The sale of cotton averaged about 6000 bales daily at unchanged prices.

The price of flour and wheat wes falling in the provinces.

The revolution in China was progressing. The imperialists had had some success at Amoy, but the insurgents had infested Khaifung Foo, on the Yellow River. The whole country was in a state of anarchy, and trade was at a stand still.

LIVERPOOL, Oct. 25.—Fine qualities of American wheat advanced 4d. American flour advanced 2s to 2s 6d, but the full advance was not generally submitted to; Western Canal flour was held at 37s, and Baltimore at 38s. The sugar and coffee markets were dull.

NEWS FROM CALIFORNIA.

Arrival of the Star of the West.

NEW YORK, Oct. 10.—The steamship Star of the West arrived at midnight. She brings 600 passengers, $1,300,000 on freight, and half a million in the hands of her passengers.

The affair of the brig Arrow, seized on suspicion of being engaged for a piratical expedition on Sonora, is causing considerable excitement in San Francisco. The brig was taken possession of by the United States troops. The matter was afterwards taken into the State Courts, and the Sheriff took possession of the vessel by a writ of replevin.—The Captain was also arrested, but subsequently liberated on the issue of a writ of habeas corpus. The leader of the expedition, Wm. Walker, has sued General Hitchcock for damages caused by the seizure.

By the recnt fire Sonora was burnt entirely down.

FROM HAVANA.—The accounts by the Crescent City at New York, state that the Atlantic's news from Liverpool, had the influence to make the Market still, and unless more favorable accounts reached there by the next steamer, sugars must decline. Freights were tending downwards.

NEW YORK, November 9.—New Jersey Election.—Pierce, Democrat, is elected Governor of New Jersey, by a large majority.

The Cheapest and Best.

THE approach of another Winter, with its usual leisure for Farmers and others, induces the publishers again to call attention to the

WEEKLY CHRONICLE,

AN INDEPENDENT FAMILY NEWSPAPER,

At $1 per Annum, in advance.

Being published in connection with the DAILY MORNING CHRONICLE, we are enabled to offer a record of news more thorough than Weeklies generally; and being entirely independent of the "arbitrary sway" of any and all parties and sects, our record of passing events we trust is clear and impartial.

The coming year seems big with events of great political interest, and a paper having no party bias will be found interesting as a chronicle of the doings of all parties.

LOCAL MATTERS

Have a prominent place in the Weekly Chronicle, so that natives of Portsmouth resident at home or abroad, will here find mention of all matters of interest in this vicinity.

The Weekly Chronicle is of medium size, printed on good paper, and contains but few advertisements—giving twenty columns of news and miscellaneous reading each week, at the low price of one dollar a year.

Dr. J. P. Woolley's All-Healing and Strengthening Salve.

THIS salve is a sovereign remedy for lame back, local rheumatism, pains in the side and breast, scalds, burns, freezes, fresh wounds, bruises, sprains, weakness in the joints, crick in the back, old sores, chilblains, swellings, numbness, ague in the face and breast, cracked hands, biles, corns on the feet, and occasional sores of most kinds which the human kind is subject.

This Salve is a rare and valuable combination of warm, stimulant and anodyne ingredients, and will be found far superior to any other article of the kind heretofore discovered for the above complaints. There has never appeared a medicine which possesses the penetrating and healing power in so great a degree, while at the same time it cannot by any possibility produce injurious effects. By its action on the skin it moves all obstructions to the insensible perspiration—excites a healthy circulation of the blood—strengthens and invigorates the nerves—gives elasticity to the joints, and imparts strength to any part of the system which may have been weakened by sedentary habits or disease. MILITARY POWER OF RUSSIA.—The London correspondent of the National Intelligencer says that a late calculation respecting the military power of Russia, makes the force the Czar could employ in a European war, without the reserve, the local garrisons, or the army in the Caucasus being in any way reduced, to consist of 368 battalions of infantry, 468 squadrons of cavalry, and 996 guns; or, in other words, in the eventuality of a European war, Russia could operate with a force of 500,000 men and 1000 guns, without laying itself open to Great Britain, Sweeden, or the Caucasus. In case of a great war Russia could operate, by means of her first, second, and third reserves, and the Cossack and Tartar forces, with one million of combatants and with 1800 guns. This is said to be the estimate of a Prussian officer of great experience on the point in question.

On the other hand, well-informed writers assert that the nominal strength of the Russian armies far exceeds the actual disposable force. The commissariat of the army is miserably managed, and it is not a matter of surprise that, with the filthy habits of the lower classes of the Russians, large numbers should be constantly on the sick list. Such is reported to be the case at the present time in the Principalities. One writer asserts that of the army in those provinces, embracing 124,000 men on paper, not more than 80,000 are effective soldiers. No less than fifteen thousand are said to be on the sick list. Hammaire de Hell, a late traveller in the Caucasus, states, with regard to the army in that quarter, that the Russian soldiery are fed on unwholesome provisions or starved, through the knavery of the commissaries and other officers; that entire divisions disappear by famine or disease, in the course of two or three months, and at the end of three or four years the army has to be entirely renewed. It must be obvious that with such utter disregard for the health and lives of the soldiers, the millions of which the above writer speaks is in a great degree an army of paper.

Bay State Stoves.

THE Subscriber would inform his friends and the public, that he has for sale all sizes of this favorite Stove. Having sold them in this city for five years past, they have been thoroughly tested with wood and coal, and are found perfect in every respect.

Those put in operation four and five years since have had no repairs made upon them, and are to all appearance as good as ever. So great is the popularity of these Stoves, that there are many imitations of it are put into the market, such as the Granite State, Empire State, &c.; but none of them are equal to it in weight or quality of castings, cooking facilities, or economy of fuel.

To all who are in want of a GOOD Cooking Stove, we would say—buy a BAY STATE, and you are sure to get THE BEST STOVE IN THE WORLD.

The subscriber has for sale, also, a variety of other Cook Stoves, Cooking Ranges, Parlor Grates, Office and Parlor Stoves, Funnel, &c. for sale low for cash.

PROF. ALEX. C. BARRY'S

Tricopherous, or Medicated Compound.

FOR beautifying, curling, preserving, restoring and strengthening the Hair, relieving diseases of the Skin, curing Rheumatic Pains and healing external wounds. Bounded by no geographical lines, the reputation of Barry's Tricopherous pervades the Union. The sales of the article of late years have increased in a ratio that almost exceeds belief. Prof. Barry, after a careful examination of his sales book, finds that the number of bottles delivered to order, in quantities of from half a gross upward, during the year 1852, was within a trifle of 950,000.

It is unnecessary to present at length the evidences of the wonderful properties of the Tricopherous when the public have furnished such an endorsement as this. The cheapness of the article, and the explanations given of its chemical action upon the hair, the scalp, and in all cases of superficial irritation, first recommended it to the attention of the people. This was all that the inventor desired. Every bottle advertised itself.—The effects of the fluid exceeded expectation. It acted like a charm. The ladies would not be without it. Country dealers in every section of the United States found they must have it; and thus was built up a wholesale trade of an extent hitherto unheard of as regards articles of this kind.—The highest point has not yet been reached, and it is believed that the sales this year will be a million and a half of bottles.

Liberal discount to purchasers by the quantity, and by all the principal Merchants and Druggists throughout the United States, and Canada, Mexico, West Indies, Great Britain, France, &c., and by Weeks & Potter, Brewers, Stevens & Cushing, and Wm. Brown, Boston. d&w6m je22

DR. CONINE'S

SYRUP OF GINSENG & MALVA.

The Great Chinese Remedy.

THIS Medicine depends more upon its own virtues and actual merit than any other ever before offered to the public.

The recipe is from Dr. CONINE, a gentleman who travelled many years in China, and in the islands of that vicinity where this compound is the potent and efficacious remedy for the numerous diseases arising from a disordered or debilitated stomach, and

Affections of the Lungs.

But what will particularly attract attention is its astonishing

DISSOLVENT POWER,

By which it at once removes ALL PHLEGM or extraneous matter from the Throat, Stomach or Lungs. It is therefore

Anti-Expectorant,

And from attentions of trial here, it is now offered as NATURE'S KINDEST REMEDY for the removal of Consumption, Whooping Cough, and all Coughs, by precipitating the Phlegm, instead of creating irritation by its expectation.

It is AROMATIC, and increases the general warmth, possessing the exhilarating qualities of the Tea Plant, which is one great cause of its universal popularity in all India beyond the Ganges, where as an

APPETISER

It probably has no equal in the Vegetable Kingdom

AS A DYSPEPTIC REMEDY, IT IS UNEQUALLED.

Its natural, genial warmth keeps the digestive powers ever in proper tone, soothing all irritation of the nerves, &c.

It will prove a more pleasant, safe and effectual Tonic than any Sarsaparilla or other boasted tonic remedy, and even nutritious, as well as exceedingly palatable. It will continue to be prepared in the best manner—no expense being spared—and in quart bottles.

Besides the numberless testimonials which we are receiving daily, of the good effect of the above medicine, we are allowed to refer to several physicians, who are now using the Syrup of Ginseng and Malva with great success.

"A Splendid Remedy."

THE GREAT REMEDY is at last discovered. Consumption can be cured!! and Coughs and Colds, the parents of that fell disease that so often brings woe to the homes of our land, vanish, as if by magic, before this SOVEREIGN REMEDY. This is that which has so long been sought for, and is in full faith offered to the public as a certain cure for Coughs, Colds, Whooping Cough, Croup, Asthma and Consumption, and will in any case where lungs sufficient are left to sustain life, check the ulceration and raise the patient to health. This is not an idle boast, nor is this remedy sent into the market without a thorough trial, but has proved beyond a doubt that what has been asserted CAN BE DONE!!

N. B.—BEWARE OF COUNTERFEITS, and observe the following Promissory Note, with the fac simile signature of the proprietor, on every genuine box:

PATENTS.

American and Foreign Office.

AGENCY FOR BUSINESS

With the U. S. Patent Office, Washington,

No. 22 State Street, Boston.

IMPORTANT INFORMATION TO INVENTORS. The Subscriber (late Agent of the U. S. Patent Office, under the Act of 1837) determined to present advantages, in applying for Patents, superior to those offered to inventors by others, has made arrangements whereby on applications prepared and conducted by him, THIRTY DOLLARS (instead of twenty, as paid back by others,) will be remitted by him in case of failure to obtain a patent, and the withdrawal through him within thirty days after the rejection. Caveats, Specifications, Assignments and all necessary papers and drawings, for procuring patents in this and foreign countries prepared, and advice rendered on legal and scientific matters respecting inventions, and infringement of patents.

Inventors can not only here obtain their specifications on the most reasonable terms, but part of the benefit of the experience of 20 years' practice, an extensive library of legal and mechanical works, and correct accounts of patents granted in this and other countries; besides being saved a journey to Washington, the usual great delay there, as well as all personal trouble in obtaining their patents. Copies of claims of any patent furnished by remitting one dollar.—Assignments recorded at Washington.

R. H. EDDY,
Solicitor of Patents.

"During the time I occupied the office of Commissioner of Patents, R. H. Eddy, Esq., of Boston, did business at the Patent Office, as Solicitor of Patents. There were few, if any persons acting in that capacity, who had so much business before the Patent Office; and there were none who conducted it with more skill, fidelity, and success. I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the best informed and most skilful Patent Solicitors in the United States, and have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a person more competent and trustworthy, and more capable of putting their application in form to secure them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office.
EDMUND BURKE,
Late Commissioner of Patents."

"PATENT OFFICE, ——.
"R. H. EDDY, Esq., Boston, Mass.
"SIR:—Your facilities for the prosecution of any business connected with this Office, are equal to those of any other agent. I am very respectfully, Yours, &c., THOS. EWBANK,

MORNING CHRONICLE.

BY MILLERS & GRAY. PORTSMOUTH, N. H., SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 12, 1853. VOLUME 3. NO. 90.

THE DAILY MORNING CHRONICLE
is published by
FRANK W. MILLER, SAMUEL GRAY, & THOS. W. MILLER,
At No. 4 Exchange Buildings,
Pleasant Street,.....PORTSMOUTH, N. H.
TERMS $4 a year, or $3 if paid strictly in advance.

The Weekly Chronicle,
A family newspaper, containing the news of the week, with carefully selected miscellany, &c., is published every Saturday morning—at $1 a year in advance.
ADVERTISING.—For a Square of sixteen lines nonpareil, or less, one insertion 50 cts., three insertions $1, and liberal terms for continuance.
Yearly, quarterly or monthly advertisers liberally accommodated—and their advertisements inserted in both papers without extra charge, thus affording unequalled facilities to business men.
☞ All accounts settled semi-annually.
JOB AND CARD PRINTING promptly executed.

INTELLECT AND LABOR.

Are labor and self-culture irreconcilable to each other? In the first place we have seen that a man in the midst of labor, may and ought to give himself to the most important improvements, that he may cultivate his sense of justice, his benevolence and the desire of perfection. Toil is the school of these high principles; and we have a strong presumption that, in other respects, it does not necessarily blight the soul. Next, we have seen that the most fruitful sources of truth and wisdom are not books, precious as they are, but experience and observation; and these belong to all conditions. It is another important consideration, that almost all labor demands intellectual activity, and is best carried on by those who invigorate their minds; so that the two interests, toil and self-culture, are friends to each other.

It is mind, after all, which does the work in the world: so that the more there is of mind, the more work will be accomplished. A man, in proportion as he is intelligent, makes a given force accomplish a greater task, makes skill take the place of muscles, and with less labor gives a better product. Make men intelligent, and they become inventive; they find a shorter process. Their knowledge of nature helps them to turn its laws to account, to understand the substance on which they work, and to seize on useful hints, which experience continually furnishes. It is among women some of the most needful machines have been contrived. Spread education, and as the history of this country shows, there will be no bounds to useful invention.

CUBA TRADE OF BOSTON AND PORTLAND.—The trade once so extensive and so important to this port, is now passing rapidly away into the hands of our sister city, Portland. Formerly, although the trade was carried on mostly by vessels owned in Portland, yet their return cargoes of molasses almost entirely came to Boston. Now Portland probably exports more molasses direct to Boston, and a constant fleet of barques and brigs are sailing from and arriving at Portland. The trade of Matanzas, Cardenas, Mariel, &c. is almost controlled by the Portland merchants. To show the extent of the Cuba trade of Portland, we will state that within the last two months, or since the first of April, about seventy cargoes of molasses and sugar, (principally the former,) have been landed at Portland, averaging three hundred and fifty hhds, being nearly as large a quantity as had been imported into Boston since the 1st of January, nearly six months. About two hundred hhds molasses per week are used in the extensive sugar works at Portland; a great portion of the sweet is sold for home consumption in Maine, and the sour is sent coastwise to Boston to be distilled. We can but rejoice in the prosperity of that beautiful city, although we can see that a good deal of this prosperity is at the expense of Boston. But still there is room enough for both, and no occasion for envious and jealous feelings to prevail between the two cities.—Boston Traveller.

MORE OPPUGNATION.—In Georgia, Mr. Toombs replies in the Augusta Chronicle to Secretary Davis's late letter. He denounces Mr. Gaskill, to whom Davis wrote, and denies that he is a disunionist. He then says:—What was said by me on the occasion referred to was not done in a corner. It was said before a public assembly of people.—Therefore the truth of the charge could have been easily ascertained. The usual course pursued by gentlemen who feel themselves agrieved, under such circumstances, is to enquire of the person who is alleged to have made an offensive charge concerning its truth. That of swaggering braggarts and cunning poltroons is to indulge in vulgar epithets and argumentative personalities just so far as may not complicate them with falsehood if the charge should prove untrue. The Secretary of War has chosen to pursue the latter course. What ever advantage this course may have, it is not to be commended for its chivalry."

THE RESOURCES OF THE SULTAN.—The magnitude of the Sultan's preparations for war has astonished his friends and his enemies—it has filled the former with joyful exultation and hope—it has completely falsified the assertions and anticipations of the latter. The country which the pro-Russian press has sought by every means to depreciate, whose condition it has represented as being at the lowest ebb of misrule and wretchedness—has now under arms nearly 300,000 men, well fed, well paid, and well equipped; while notwithstanding the enormous outlay that was necessary to the adequate supply of such a force, no complaint is heard of want of funds or resources.

The first American magnetic telegraph line was established in 1844, between Washington city and Baltimore, a distance of 36 miles.—At the present time there are about 110 lines at work. There are completed and in operation 27,00 miles wire, and 10,000 more are in progress of construction.

THE LAST INVENTION.—The Cincinnatti Atlas states that two young men of that city have constructed a boiler and steam engine on the same principle as the steam fire engine, which they can wheel about from one part of the city to the other; and when they receive a job to saw wood, can raise steam in ten minutes, adjust their circular in the meantime, and in a half an hour cut a cord of wood in one or two pieces, as may be desired. The whole machinery does not weigh over five hundred pounds, and may be regarded as a great improvement and a saving of much manual labor.

CURIOSITY SATISFIED.—An "Anxious Inquirer" writes to Rev. H. W. Beecher that the statement concerning the farm in Berkshire gave him great satisfaction, but there is one point on which he and his wife want information: "That is, whether the brother-in-law of whom you speak married your sister, or your wife's sister, or whether you married his sister?" Mr. B. promptly answers: "My Dear Sir, I married his sister, about seventeen years ago, and have been very glad of it ever since."

"FIRST IN WAR, FIRST IN PEACE, AND FIRST IN THE HEARTS OF HIS COUNTRYMEN."—"An Old Subscriber" of the National Intelligencer says, that General Lee, of Virginia, was the author of the inimitable description of Washington embodied in these emphatic words. They were printed as a quotation in the resolution adopted in the House of Representatives on occasion of Washington's death, moved by Chief Justice Marshall, who, it is stated, in his Life of Washington, admits the fact that Gen. Lee originated the expression.

Telegraph poles have been erected between San Francisco and San Jose. The poles have a narrow board, about three feet long, fastened across them at the top, so that they present the appearance of a cross, and are the objects of wonder, and devout admiration to the Californians. 'Look,' said a pious Senora, pointing to the pole—Look at these holy crosses; we all thought the Americans were a set of heretics, but they are more of Christians than we are, for they set up crosses all the way from San Francisco to San Jose, so that the devil can't get into our city.'

THE END OF THE EPIDEMIC IN MOBILE.—The Mobile Advertiser, of Oct. 8th, announces the cheering fact, that the Board of Health had proclaimed the end of yellow fever as an epidemic in that city. It had prevailed with deadly effect for more than twelve weeks, during which time it is estimated that no less than 1072 persons have died in consequence. The whole number of deaths in that time was 1256, or eleven per cent of the entire population of the city! ten per cent of which was from yellow fever!!!

A HAPPY MAN.—Don Jose Manuel Galegos has been elected Delegate to Congress from the Territory of New Mexico. He does not understand a word of English, and consequently can stand the Congress speeches.—His own speeches must be delivered in Spanish, which will be equally a relief to the other members.—Providence Journal.

SATURDAY, NOV. 12, 1853.

TO NEW SUBSCRIBERS.

To each person who subscribes for the Daily or Weekly Chronicle for the year 1854, and pays for the same in advance, we will supply the paper to Jan. 1, gratis. Terms for the Daily $3—Weekly $1.

POLITICAL SPECULATIONS.

The New York Herald is fond of speculations which tend to show the dangers of the Union from British or other outside influence. It says :—

Nations—in the past—have been overthrown by other agencies besides war. When Philip of Macedon wished to conquer Greece, he did not march his armies at once against his victims, but studiously fostered and couraged jealousy and disunion among the various southern States, until each, insulated and weakened by disputes with its neighbors, fell an easy prey to his arms. So, Great Britain, which cannot afford to go to war with us, is stealthily, but perseveringly, stimulating jealousy and hatred between the various States of the Union. The abolition wedge will, the treats, be plied so vigorously by her insidious agents, that ere long separation and disunion must follow, and she will then stand the undisputed mistress and the first commercial nation of the world. Meanwhile, it is not unlikely that England is urging France on to do what she cannot venture to attempt herself. British counsellors are doubtless soliciting Louis Napoleon to play an open game in Cuba, Mexico, and Hayti. We have not seen such tangible evidence of the fact, as yet; but it is so obviously the interest of France and the other continental monarchies to remove from the sight of their subjects the dangerous example of a prosperous and happy republic, that the project may be fairly inferred from the slight symptoms of its existence which have come to light.

It is difficult to say what result fate predestines for these movements. One thing alone is certain—England, on commercial as well as political grounds, is secretly and indirectly, and the other European dynasties on permanent political grounds, are openly and directly conspiring injury and destruction to the Union. Sad, indeed, is it for every true hearted American to find that, in the face of those glaring dangers, the cabinet has been unwisely and injudiciously selected, and that its leading members sympathise privately with the enemies of our country—to see, at a time when every nerve should be strung to meet the impending peril, disunion and jobbery in the government, the country wretchedly represented abroad, weakness and indecision in the national policy, and self-confessed traitors at the council board.

This looks very like moonshine. We cannot see the slightest danger to the union, either from Great Britain, or from President Pierce's cabinet, or the President himself.—The disputes about the spoils may break up a cabinet, defeat an election, or destroy a party—but the Constitution, the Union, the Country and the People can afford to see all these, and outlive the whole of them.

VIOLATORS OF THE LAW, FINING THEMSELVES.—It has been the habit of the violators of the Sunday Law in the District of Kensington, Philadelphia, to resort to the offices of the Aldermen in that District long before daylight on Monday mornings, and inform against themselves, and receive one-half the fines themselves, amounting to $2. Mr. James Altemus, Constable of the Second Ward, Kensington, states that he went to an Alderman's office before daylight on Monday morning last, to fine several persons who had sold liquor on the preceding Sunday, but found that he was too late, as the magistrate had opened his office at about three o'clock, and had received information from the parties themselves, and had inflicted the penalty of $4, giving to the informers one half.

This carries out the letter of the law; but in its practical operation it amounts to a Sunday license law, where the sellers of liquors pay two dollars a day for the privilege of promoting the public good by selling bad liquor at a great profit. Either the laws need amending, or else the gospel of temperance ought to be preached in that neighborhood, to the aldermen as well as others.

THE RESCUE OF COMMODORE COE.—We have reason to believe that the conduct of Commander Downing, of the sloop-of-war Jamestown, in rescuing Commodore Coe, late in command of the naval forces of the Entre Rios party, in opposition to the Government of the Argentine Republic, (after he had betrayed his fleet into the hands of the enemy) has not met the approbation of this Government, and that he has been notified that on his return to the United States his proceedings in the case in question will be promptly looked into by a Naval Court Martial.—Washington Star.

A Court Martial will not sentence him very hard. They will rather sympathise with Com. Coe in getting his pay from a bankrupt government, and with Comr. Downing in helping him.

A GHOST.—We announced from the N. H. Patriot, the death of Mr. Burke's Old Guard, —and supposed that the Old Guard part of the State Capital Reporter was to be discontinued. As we now understand it, the change amounts to this :—The Weekly Old Guard is discontinued; but the spirit of the Old Guard is kept up the same as ever, in the Weekly and Semi-weekly Reporter. So slight a change is hardly worth mentioning, were it not that we had before mentioned it in another form.

SECRETARY CUSHING—and the Nashua Gazette.—The Nashua Gazette says :—

The Portsmouth Chronicle, a whig paper, cannot see why Caleb Cushing, who was appointed a Judge of the Supreme Court of Massachusetts by the Coalition State government, can consistently oppose coalitionism.—Mr. Cushing was nominated for Judge by Gov. Boutwell, and was strenuously opposed by his council, a majority of which was free-soil, on the very ground of his anti-coalitionism. After a long-continued-opposition his appointment was submitted to by the Council.

We would point the Chronicle to Judge Sawyer of this State, who is a whig. His appointment by a democratic executive does not throw suspicion upon his whigism. So in Vermont. Democratic judges there have been appointed by a whig Legislature, but they are considered and are, notwithstanding, good democrats.

The Nashua Gazette does either the Whig party or the Chronicle too much honor; but we are not certain which way to strike the balance. We profess to keep the Chronicle independent, and believe it to be so. We aim to make it also impartial; but are not at all certain that any paper or any man can long be really so. These are days when parties are in a state of fusion and confusion; and the Nashua Gazette itself must keep well peste d up in tactics to know which wing to fly with. It must have inferred our doubt of Mr. Cushing's consistency. We simply stated that we understood the fact that he took and held office under the Coalition in Massachusetts; but offered no remarks thereon, and drew no inference. But the Nashua Gazette drew one for us, on account of which we tender our thanks.

What we did say about consistency, was, that we were puzzled to see the consistency between Mr. Guthrie's Soft letter and Mr. Cushing's Hard one. That puzzle still remains as great as ever. We happen to know Secretary Cushing, have known him from his youth, and have never yet found fault with his appointment to any office, nor have we ever accused him of inconsistency.

We approve highly of the independence of the Coalition in Massachusetts when they appointed him a Judge. And we also approve of similar independence in New Hampshire and Vermont, when they have appointed political opponents as judges. But it is nothing at all to the purpose for which we wrote the article on which the Nashua paper comments; viz. to express our special wonder how one Cabinet officer could blow one way and another the opposite way, and yet blow alike.—We think we have it now, however; Mr. Cushing blows hot in Massachusetts, and Mr. Guthrie blows cold in New York. Between the two they may probably restore an even temperature.

☞ The Popular Educator, for November, 1853, is received from the New England publisher, Mr. F. Parker, 35 Washington street, Boston. The present number contains an article on Mount Vesuvius, illustrated; a brief biography of the eminent James Brindley; the Distribution of Wealth, &c. &c.

BARRE BURGLARS.—It is said that the decision in regard to a new trial will be postponed to the January term of the court. The ground of the motion is a peculiar one, viz:—that one of the jurors was drunk during the trial.

There is no doubt the Barre burglars are guilty, and therefore no one need feel very sorry if they do lay in jail till next January But if it were otherwise, we do not see the propriety of so long a delay. As it is, the only question is, was the juror drunk? If he was, and it can be proved, then beyond all question there ought to be a new trial. If it was not proved, the men ought to have been sentenced to the States Prison at once. The merit of the case is a question of fact, and not of law, unless the judge wants to consider whether drunkards are fit for jurors.

A THORNY ROSE.—In the Boston Police Court, on Wednesday, Rose Lehey was charged with making an aggravated assault upon her husband, Michael Lehey, who bore the marks of her violence upon his countenance. He stated in his testimony that he had had "trouble" with his wife for nine years, which is just the period that he has been married. The wife was sentenced to the House of Correction for nine months.

SHIP BUILDING IN MAINE.—The "State of Maine" says that twelve ships and four barks, amounting in the aggregate to about 18,000 tons—have been launched in Maine, within one week.

Gen. Cass has met with another painful affliction in the death of his favorite grand-child, Lizzy Canfield, daughter of Captain Canfield, at the age of ten years. She was well in the evening, reading a book, yet that same night, Gen. Cass was awakened with the terrible intelligence that she was dying, and before daybreak she had breathed her last.

SUGAR CROP OF LOUISIANA.—The sugar crop in this State is remarkably good this season. One third of the planters have already commenced rolling, and a hogshead and a half of sugar is made from an acre of cane, which is said to be an unusually good yield.

A London physician says, if men would wear their beards in winter, sore throats would go out of fashion. Very good advice.—Mail.

LOCAL.

THE METHODIST CHURCH.—The building occupied by the Methodist society in this city, has been undergoing some much needed repairs and improvements, during the last two months. Gas has been introduced, the walls whitened, pews painted, floor newly carpeted, and the whole appearance of the edifice, inside and out, exhibits a marked change for the better. About $1200 have already been laid out, and a few hundreds more could be spent to good advantage. The ladies connected with the Methodist Sewing Society, raised upwards of $100 by subscription, with which they purchased a number of articles, among which were a new bible for the pulpit, and a carpet. The society are much indebted to Mr. William F. Laighton, for the interest he has manifested in their welfare, he having devoted the greater portion of his time for six weeks past, to their benefit.

☞ Rev. Mr. Willis will deliver his third doctrinal lecture at the Universalist Church, to-morrow morning, on the parable of the Rich Man and Lazarus.

GAS LIGHTS.—We are glad to see the liberality and efficiency of our city government, illustrated by the shining of these new lights at so many new corners. In locating a few of them in Friday morning's Chronicle, we perceive that one took its stand on the corner of Austin and Hanover streets, a corner rather hard to find, as we think, any where except "in a horn." The Aldermen ordered it to stand at the corner of Austin and Summer streets, where we presume it will stand accordingly.

For the Morning Chronicle.

LAWYERS.—No lawyers? Messrs. Editors, were there no lawyers at the Cameneum, to hear Mr. Smith's lecture on Law? There were certainly three present, though you might not see them. A SPECTATOR.

We are glad to be corrected, and to learn that the lawyers did not slight the profession; and doubt not that the legal gentlemen who were present concur with us in our good opinion of the lecture.

PAPER THIEVES.—Our subscribers, our carriers and ourselves, are frequently annoyed by the purloining of papers from the doors of patrons. The Chronicle is circulated early; and the better the season, the greater the number stolen,—for it is neither more nor less than theft, in fact and law. There is an express statute against it, and the offender is liable to a heavy fine.

TEMPERANCE IN THE PULPITS.—A circular, signed by thirteen clergymen of Concord, embracing all in that place, has been addressed to the Christian Ministers of the different denominations in the State, requesting the presentation of the subject of temperance from all the pulpits, on the Sabbath previous to the annual Thanksgiving. The clergymen of that city generally will accede to the request.

For the Chronicle.

TO ——— ———.

Thou art a heaven, my heart a stream,
Uplooking in devotion;
When beats the storm, without thy beam
I sink 'mid the commotion.

Thou art a harp, my heart a breath,
Thrilled hourly by thy gladness;
Should fate decree thy early death,
Time would to me be sadness. ATTILLIO

Portsmouth.

ANOTHER BLACK BEGGAR.—Under the head of an address to the charitable, the Boston Traveller says :—

Thomas Adams, a slave of Julius Adams, of North Carolina, has shown us his papers, which appear to be genuine, and which have passed the scrutiny of competent judges in Philadelphia and New York. From these papers, it appears that he has bargained with his master for his freedom for $900, of which he has paid $750; and the remaining $150 will be given him by his master, if he succeeds in purchasing his wife and child, who are slaves of another person. Their master will sell them for $750. He intends to remove to a distant part of the country in April, and will sell them before that time, or take them with him, beyond the reach of redemption, so that Thomas has not time to earn the money in season to buy them. He therefore, by his master's advice, visits the north to solicit aid. He has already collected nearly $500, and therefore needs from $250 to $300 more.—The case appears to be one of more than usual interest, and we commend it to the serious examination of the charitable on whom he may call.

THE COMMON SCHOOLS OF NEW ENGLAND.—By the last official returns of the public schools in the six New England states, the whole number of pupils in attendance during the year was 641,983. The whole cost of instruction for the year was $2,055,131 65. In Vermont the average cost of each pupil was $2 22. In Maine, $1 34. In Connecticut, $1 35. In Rhode Island, $1 64.

In Massachusetts the law requires each town to raise by tax at least $1.50 per child between five and fifteen years of age, as a condition of receiving a share of the income of the state school fund. All the towns complied with this condition last year, and 190 towns raised double the sum thus specified.—The amount expended in Massachusetts last year for each child above named was $4.54.

Pope Pius IX., is so corpulent that he plays billiards every day, for the purpose of reducing his size.

POP THE QUESTION.—A lady said to her beau after fifteen years courtship, 'Charles, I'm going out of town to-morrow.'

'Where?'

'I don't know.'

'When are you coming back?'

'Never. I'm going to look for something which you have not, never had, and yet you can give me without any loss to yourself.'

'You are welcome to it, I am sure; but what is it?'

'A husband.'

'Why, you might have had that fifteen years ago, if you had only said the word, but I was afraid to begin.'

NEWSPAPER SALE.—Mr. Barnum has disposed of the Illustrated News to Mr. Frederick Gleason, of Boston, proprietor of "Gleason's Pictorial."

The Sandwich Islands—twelve in number—embrace a superficial area of about six thousand and one hundred square miles. Four of the islands are rocky and uninhabitable.

Dr. Franklin, in his journal, says, that at Southampton Salt Water Baths, he fell asleep while floating on his back, and slept one hour by the watch, without turning over at all. It is a very easy bed, he says.

A Change.
JOHN GREGORY, Jr., respectfully gives notice to the citizens of Portsmouth and vicinity, that he has taken the Establishment No. 38 Market street, formerly owned by PHILIP WENTELL, and will continue the business of BOOK-BINDING, BAND & FANCY BOX MAKING, and PICTURE FRAME MAKING, in various styles, and solicits a continuance of the liberal patronage hitherto bestowed.
J. G. has just received from New York, a choice selection of ENGRAVINGS, by Lafosse, Julien and others. n5

The King of States
COOKING STOVE.
FOR WOOD OR COAL.
THE attention of all in want of a COOK STOVE is respectfully solicited to a consideration of the most beautifully modeled patern, equally adapted for Coal or Wood, and warranted to operate successfully with either,—which is now offered to the public as the
MOST COMPLETE AND EFFICIENT
Cooking apparatus ever before introduced in this vicinity.
It is an elegant model, of fine smooth castings, (equal in thickness and durability to the old James Cook Stove) and fitted together in the most substantial manner. The oven and flues around it are so constructed that baking can be done in twenty minutes from time of lighting the coal, and with wood much quicker.
The broiling apparatus is on an entirely new and original plan, that will not fail to recommend itself at the first glance, as no smoke or gas arising from that culinary process can escape into the room.
Every Stove is warranted to give entire satisfaction, and should it fail to operate as recommended, or crack within a year from date of purchase, it will be exchanged or the money refunded, at the expense of the manufacturer. Those that have been in operation a year in this place appear as well as when the first fire was lighted, and are indeed "just as good as new."
The demand for this stove is such that it is impossible for the manufacturers to meet their orders. Those just received were ordered early in the season.
All intending to purchase or exchange are invited to give this an examination and trial before purchasing elsewhere, thereby securing the most durable, economical and best stove in the market.
At the Sign of the big Coffee Pot.

Charleston, 10th.—GEORGIA ELECTION.—The official vote in Georgia, has been declared; Johnson's majority for Governor is 504; he was inaugurated at Milledgeville yesterday.

SERIOUS ILLNESS OF SENATOR ATHERTON.—Hon. Chas. G. Atherton, while sitting in the Court room in Manchester, on Thursday morning last, was seized with paralysis. He was immediately conveyed to his lodgings in the Manchester House, and a physician called. We learn that one arm, and nearly all of his left side is paralyzed.—American.

We regret to learn that Col. Jos. Cilley, of Nottingham, who was wounded at Lundy's Lane, and was formerly Senator in Congress, is confined to his house by illness.

MISSING.—Christopher Chase of Manchester, N. H., has been missing since January last. He was a cattle dealer, and was formerly in partnership with Sewall Chase of West Newbury, and was about sixty years of age.

It is proposed to sell the "Big Mound" at St. Louis to the corporation, for a public square. The price to be paid is $50,000.

Lewis, a fugitive slave, made his escape from the court house in Cincinnati a few days since, while his trial was going on.

Winter apples of the best quality are abundant at Indianapolis, at from 20 to 30 cents per bushel. Large quantities are being sent away in barrels by the several railroads.

SUICIDE IN PORTLAND JAIL.—Arnold Wentworth, of Greene, who was arrested by the U. S. Marshal on Tuesday last, charged with committing frauds upon the Pension Department, was brought before John Rand, Esq., U. S. Commissioner, on Wednesday, and ordered to recognize for his appearance Tuesday at three o'clock P. M. Failing to find sureties, he was committed to jail.

On Thursday morning he sent the boy who attended him at jail, with a note to his counsel in relation to giving bail; and a short time afterwards was found on the floor in his cell, with his throat cut from ear to ear. The wound was such as to have occasioned death in a few moments, and he evidently did not move after the act was committed. The razor which he had obtained to shave himself with, and with which he inflicted the wound, was found near his hand, by his side.

He had shown no evidence of mental aberration, but had been during his confinement, very calm and gentlemanly in his appearance.

It is supposed that the discovery and exposure of a series of most improper and dishonest transactions impelled him to the desperate deed.

Not long after the above dreadful deed, (says the Advertiser) we were in the jail, and saw the corpse of the poor self-murderer. It was that of a man evidently somewhere near the meridian of life, with a countenance indicative of intellectuality, and expressive of the repose succeeding "life's fitful fever."—He had been a justice of the peace, was a man of property and standing to the day of his arrest, and leaves a family to mourn his untimely end.

SNOW STORM IN PENNSYLVANIA.—The Sunbury American says that on Monday, the 24th of October, one of the most remarkable snow storms of the present century occurred. In Sunbury great quantities of snow, mixed with rain, fell during the whole day. At Shamokin snow fell to the depth of more than a foot. Between that place and Pottsville, on the mountains, the snow was eighteen inches deep; the roads were rendered almost impassable by the amount of snow and the breaking down of trees by the accumulation of snow on their branches. The cars from Philadelphia were two hours late at Pottsville. The passengers took coaches, but when they arrived at Mount Carmel, eight miles east of Shamokin, they refused to go on to that place, and remained over night at Mount Carmel.

EDITORIAL COURTESIES.—At the late fire in Louisville, Prentice's Louisville Journal was burnt out. Most of the types were saved, but the presses and paper were lost. The Louisville Democrat, between whom and the Journal there has always been a war of words, the next morning after the fire, offered all the facilities in their power, to their neighbors in getting out their paper. "Our press;" they say, "we vouch, will put through good whiggery in style, as it does good democracy.—Any slip-shod, half-and-half stuff may suffer. So let our neighbor go ahead and turn out the genuine article. It don't matter how ugly he looks when he writes it." To understand the last hit, it must be remembered that the two editors talk a great deal about each other's beauty. They both, it is said, need to wear a veil so as not to frighten the women.

Prentice expresses the warmest thanks in reply, and says, "hereafter, when we are about to cut them to the bone, the memory of their kindness shall stay our arm, and we will only take off the skin. We fear however, that if their press should get a taste of our good whiggery, it would never let democracy go through it again; as a man who has eaten seckel pears refuses ever after to swallow crab apples."—Hartford Courant.

FATAL ACCIDENT.—A promising young son, about ten years of age, of Mr. Albert Fuller, one of the proprietors of the foundry in North Grove street, Boston, was killed by falling from the roof of one of the sheds in the rear of the foundry, on Wednesday afternoon, about 4 o'clock. He was playing with other boys upon the roof, when the boards gave way, and he was precipitated about twenty feet upon the castings below, fracturing his skull. He was carried to the hospital where he died in about an hour.

UNFORTUNATE ACCIDENT.—The N. Y. Journal of Commerce of Wednesday, states that in lowering their outside form, weighing about 800 lbs., from the upper story of the printing office into the basement, where the press is located, the machinery broke, and the form fell a distance of 60 or 70 feet, penetrating through the floor of the basement into the ground, thus becoming hopelessly broken up. An accident of this nature, when the form is so large as that of the Journal of Commerce, is a serious occurrence.

The Cheapest and Best.

THE approach of another Winter, with its usual leisure for Farmers and others, induces the publishers again to call attention to the

WEEKLY CHRONICLE,

AN INDEPENDENT FAMILY NEWSPAPER,

At $1 per Annum, in advance.

Being published in connection with the DAILY MORNING CHRONICLE, we are enabled to offer a record of news more thorough than Weeklies generally; and being entirely independent of the "arbitrary sway" of any and all parties and sects, our record of passing events we trust is clear and impartial.

The coming year seems big with events of great political interest, and a paper having no party bias will be found interesting as a chronicle of the doings of ALL parties.

LOCAL MATTERS

Have a prominent place in the Weekly Chronicle, so that natives of Portsmouth resident at home or abroad, will here find mention of all matters of interest in this vicinity.

The Weekly Chronicle is of medium size, printed on good paper, and contains but few advertisements—giving twenty columns of news and miscellaneous reading each week, at the low price of one dollar a year.

Dr. J. P. Woolley's All-Healing and Strengthening Salve.

THIS salve is a sovereign remedy for lame back, local rheumatism, pain in the side and breast, scalds, burns, freezes, fresh wounds, bruises, sprains, weakness in the joints, crick in the back, old sores, chilblains, swellings, numbness, ague in the face and breast, cracked hands, bites, corns on the feet, and occasional sores of most kinds which the human kind is subject.

This Salve is a rare and valuable combination of warm, stimulant and anodyne ingredients, and will be found far superior to any other article of the kind heretofore discovered for the above complaints. There has never appeared a medicine which possesses the penetrating and healing power in so great a degree, while at the same time it cannot by any possibility produce injurious effects. By its action on the skin it moves all obstructions to the insensible perspiration—excites a healthy circulation of the blood—strengthens and invigorates the nerves—gives elasticity to the joints, and imparts strength to any part of the system which may have been weakened by sedentary habits or disease. Tom Marshall, of Kentucky, and one Pilcher, were rival candidates for office, and were "stumping" against each other. Pilcher was haranguing about "his father having been a poor man," "his father was a cooper," and more of that sort of thing. Marshall said he would admit that the gentleman's father was a poor man; perhaps he had been a cooper, but if he was, (pointing to Pilcher) he had made a mighty poor head to one of his whiskey-barrels!

SENT TO THE HOUSE OF CORRECTION FOR LIFE.—A woman by the name of Almira Wyman was on Wednesday morning sentenced to the House of Correction for life, by Judge Metcalf, of the Supreme Judicial Court, in East Cambridge, Mass., for the crime of arson. She is serving a term of three years, for theft. She is thirty years of age.

Six or eight individuals were arrested in New York on Monday, on a requisition from the Governor of Massachusetts, charged with being abettors of the prize fight at Boston Corner. It is said that the sheriff holds warrants for the arrest of sixty other parties, many of them "sporting men" in what is called "high life" at New York.

Bay State Stoves.

THE Subscriber would inform his friends and the public, that he has for sale all sizes of this favorite Stove. Having sold them in this city for five years past, they have been thoroughly tested with wood and coal, and are found perfect in every respect.
Those put in operation four and five years since have had no repairs made upon them and are to all appearance as good as ever. So great is the popularity of these Stoves, that many imitations of it are put into the market, such as the Granite State, Empire State, &c.; but none of them are equal to it in weight or quality of castings, cooking facilities, or economy of fuel.
To all who are in want of a GOOD Cooking Stove, we would say—buy a BAY STATE, and you are sure to get THE BEST STOVE IN THE WORLD.
The subscriber has for sale, also, a variety of other Cook Stoves, Cooking Ranges, Parlor Grates, Office and Parlor Stoves, Funnel, &c. for sale low for cash. E. A. STEVENS, s16 12 and 14 Daniel st.

The "Sagamore."

THIS is the name of a new and beautiful COOKING STOVE, manufactured expressly for the subscriber, of the best quality of castings,—and which he offers to a discriminating public for their approval and favor, believing that an examination of this the latest production of the oldest Stove establishment in the State, will meet the wants of all interested in this important culinary apparatus.

PROF. ALEX. C. HARRY'S

Tricopherous, or Medicated Compound.

FOR beautifying, curling, preserving, restoring and strengthening the Hair, relieving diseases of the Skin, curing Rheumatic Pains and healing external wounds. Bounded by no geographical lines, the reputation of Barry's Tricopherous pervades the Union. The sales of the article of late years have increased in a ratio that almost exceeds belief. Prof. Barry, after a careful examination of his sales book, finds that the number of bottles delivered to order, in quantities of from half a gross upward, during the year 1852, was within a trifle of 350,000.
It is unnecessary to present at length the evidences of the wonderful properties of the Tricopherous when the public have furnished such an endorsement as this. The cheapness of the article, and the explanations given of its chemical action upon the hair, the scalp, and in all cases of superficial irritation, first recommended it to the attention of the people. This was all that the inventor desired. Every bottle advertised itself—The effects of the fluid exceeded expectation. It acted like a charm. The ladies would not be without it. Country dealers in every section of the United States found they must have it; and thus was built up a wholesale trade of an extent hitherto unheard of as regards articles of this kind.—The highest point has not yet been reached, and it is believed that the sales this year will be a million and a half of bottles.
Liberal discount to purchasers by the quantity, and by all the principal Merchants and Druggists throughout the United States, and Canada, Mexico, West Indies, Great Britain, France, &c., and by Weeks & Potter, Brewers, Stevens & Cushing, and Wm. Brown, Boston. d&w6m je22*

DR. CONINE'S

SYRUP OF GINSENG & MALVA.

The Great Chinese Remedy.

THIS Medicine depends more upon its own virtues and actual merit than any other ever before offered to the public.
The recipe is from Dr. CONINE, a gentleman who travelled many years in China, and in the Islands of the Pacific ocean, where this ginseng is the potent and efficacious remedy for the numerous diseases arising from a disordered or debilitated stomach, and

Affections of the Lungs.

But what will particularly attract attention is its astonishing
DISSOLVENT POWER.
By which it at once removes ALL PHLEGM or extraneous matter from the Throat, Stomach or Lungs. It is therefore

Anti-Expectorant,

And from attentions of trial here, it is now offered as NATURE'S KINDEST REMEDY for the removal of Consumption, Whooping Cough, and all Coughs, by precipitating the Phlegm, instead of creating irritation by expectoration.
It is AROMATIC, and increases the general warmth, possessing the exhilarating qualities of the Tea Plant, which is one great cause of its universal popularity in all India beyond the Ganges, where as an

APPETISER

It probably has no equal in the Vegetable Kingdom
AS A DYSPEPTIC REMEDY, IT IS UNEQUALLED.
Its natural, genial warmth keeps the digestive powers ever in proper tone, soothing all irritation of the nerves, &c.
It will prove a more pleasant, safe and effectual Tonic than any Sarsaparilla or other boasted tonic remedy, and even nutritious, as well as exceedingly palatable. It will continue to be prepared in the best manner—no expense being spared—and in quart bottles.
Besides the numberless testimonials which we are receiving daily, of the good effect of the above medicine, we are allowed to refer to several physicians, who are now using the Syrup of Ginseng and Malva with great success.

"A Splendid Remedy."

THE GREAT REMEDY is at last discovered. Consumption can be cured!! and Coughs and Colds, the parents of that fell disease that so often brings woe to the homes of our land, vanish, as if by magic, before this SOVEREIGN REMEDY. This is that which has so long been sought for, and is in full faith offered to the public as a certain cure for Coughs, Colds, Whooping Cough, Croup, Asthma and Consumption, and will in any case where lungs sufficient are left to sustain life, check the ulceration and raise the patient to health. This is not an idle boast, nor is this remedy sent into the market without a thorough trial, but has proved beyond a doubt that what has been asserted CAN BE DONE!
N. B.—BEWARE OF COUNTERFEITS, and observe the following Promissory Note, with the fac simile signature of the proprietor, on every genuine box:

PATENTS.

American and Foreign Office.
AGENCY FOR BUSINESS
With the U. S. Patent Office, Washington,
No. 43 State Street, Boston.

IMPORTANT INFORMATION TO INVENTORS. The Subscriber (late Agent of the U. S. Patent Office, under the Act of 1837) determined to present advantages in applying for Patents, superior to those offered to inventors by others, has made arrangements whereby on applications prepared and conducted by him, THIRTY DOLLARS (instead of twenty, as paid back by others,) will be remitted by him in case of failure to obtain a patent, and the withdrawal through him within thirty days after the rejection. Caveats, Specifications, Assignments and all necessary papers and drawings, for procuring patents in this and foreign countries prepared, and advice rendered on legal and scientific matters respecting inventions, and infringement of patents.
Inventors can not only here obtain their specifications on the most reasonable terms, but can here avail themselves of the experience of 20 years' practice, an extensive library of legal and mechanical works, and correct accounts of patents granted in this and other countries; besides being saved a journey to Washington, the usual great delay there, as well as all personal trouble in obtaining their patents. Copies of claims of any patent furnished by remitting one dollar.—Assignments recorded at Washington.
R. H. EDDY,
Solicitor of Patents.

"During the time I occupied the office of Commissioner of Patents, R. H. Eddy, Esq., of Boston, did business at the Patent Office, as Solicitor of Patents. There were few, if any persons acting in that capacity, who had so much business before the Patent Office; and there were none who conducted it with more skill, fidelity, and success. I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the best informed and most skilful Patent Solicitors in the United States, and have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a person more competent and trustworthy, and more capable of putting their application in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office.
EDMUND BURKE,
Late Commissioner of Patents."
"PATENT OFFICE,
"R. H. EDDY, Esq., Boston, Mass.
"SIR:—Your facilities for the prosecution of any business connected with this Office, are equal to those of any other agent. I am very respectfully,
Yours, &c. THOMAS EWBANK,

FROM THE SPIRITS.

The latest and most authentic intelligence from some of the upper ten of the invisibles, is to be found in the following article from the New York Times.

JUDGE EDMONDS AT HOME.

"Judge Edmonds presents his compliments to Mr. O. Dick Forse, and requests the honor of his company on Monday evening, to meet a few friends."

Naturally curious to see so celebrated a personage as Judge Edmonds in his domestic circle, I immediately despatched my fourth footman with an acceptance of the above invitation.

At 8 o'clock, precisely, attired in a faultless coat, and one of the loveliest waistcoats that ever rested on the bosom of genius, I ascended the steps of the gifted Magistrate's mansion, and notified my arrival with an aristocratic knock. The door flew open, and as I entered, I turned as usual, to deposit my hat and cloak in the hands of the customary attendant.

I could see no one. The door closed rapidly, and the brilliant lamplight that fell on the encaustic pavement of the hall, disclosed the fact that I was its sole occupant.

Who, then, opened the door for me?

While I was ruminating on this problem, still holding cloak and hat in my hand, I felt a gentle twitch at my chapeau. I am sensitive on this head. My hat is dearer to me than my life. I guard it as jealously as my honor. The twitch came again. I grew alarmed. I determined not to surrender my property into the hands of an invisible and therefore irresponsible power. The twitching increased in intensity. I struggled, and grasped my hat determinedly with both hands; my efforts were, however, useless. The hat was forcibly and it seemed to me, angrily twisted out of my grasp, while at the same moment, my cloak was suddenly snatched off my arm. It was a moment of agony. I gave them up as lost, when, to my astonishment, I beheld them progress as if of their own accord towards the hat-stand, where they quietly suspended themselves from one of the crooks.

The truth then flashed upon me, for the first time. I had been wrestling with the spirits!

Judge Edmonds himself now appeared to welcome me.

"Have they taken your hat and cloak from you?" he asked, politely.

How awful the word They sounded! What indefinite ideas of power and number it conveyed! I regarded with increasing respect, the great man to whom They ministered.

I now entered the drawing-room, where I found a lady alone, waiting to receive me. After the customary formalities had been gone through, the Judge said to me:

"Let me make your acquaintance with some of our friends."

I stared. There was no one in the room but the lady, and to her I had been already introduced. That natural politeness which never under the most trying circumstances deserts me, came to my rescue, and I bowed in the affirmative.

The Judge thereupon waved his hand in the direction of the gilt cornice over the window and said:

"Mr Webster, I have the pleasure of introducing to you Mr. O. Dick Forse, the wittiest writer in the world."

I bowed to the cornice with great solemnity, and to my great amazement, beheld the long curtains gracefully agitate themselves for a moment, and then subside into quiescence.

"It is Daniel Webster, said the Judge carelessly to me. He prefers living in the curtains, because he says he can wrap himself in their long folds, and fancy himself a Roman senator." Now, he continued, turning to the piano, here is another old acquaintance. Mr. Mozart, my friend, Mr. O. Dick Forse, an excellent writer. Mozart, turning to me, as you perceive, resides principally in the piano, —a congenial abode, you know."

As he spoke, strains of divinest melody gushed from the instrument, and I recognized instantly the hand of the great author of Don Giovanni. I could restrain my enthusiasm no longer, and rushing convulsively forward, flung myself at the feet of the piano, and kissed them with the ardor of a worshiper.

In like manner I was presented to a number of other celebrities. Judge Edmonds certainly saw very good company. Some of his visitors had, however, chosen rather singular abodes, albeit there was some appropriateness in them. Tom Paine, for instance, lived in one of the back windows; Sir Robert Peel resided in the vicinity of the parlor bell. Henry Clay was to be found in a large flower pot in the green house. Shelley, poetical enough, abode in a beautiful nautilus that ornamented the mantle-piece. The Judge said he was plagued a good deal by Moliere, who was always burrowing into the floor. Marshal Ney kept company with the horses in the stable; and James Watt, of steam-engine notority, kept playing such tricks with the saucepans and kettles, and experimenting with hot water, that all the cooks left the house, because, they said Watt was a witch. The Judge had a large number of residents of this description,—their incorporeal nature rendering them easily accommodated. Titus Oates had taken possession of the barn. William Penn affected the inkstand. Paley, the Natural Theology man, lived in a bucket. Plato had the china-closet to himself, and Bach, the composer, took up his quarters in the front parlor.

As the Judge was kindly affording to me the foregoing information respecting his domestic circle, three taps were heard on the folding-door leading into the next room.

"Tea is ready, my dear," observed the lady, nodding to the Judge, and rising, she led the way into the adjoining apartment. There were no attendants. The spirits did everything: made the tea, cut the bread and butter, and handed the cake round. Sometimes they would be seized with a frolicsome mood, and would play such merry tricks as spilling hot tea on one's leg, or handing salt instead of sugar. But one of them essaying a practical joke of this nature with me, I sternly threatened that I would send his portrait to the Illustrated News, which threatened indignity so alarmed him that he—I can't say disappeared, but absented himself for the rest of the evening.

We had quite a scene at the tea table.—One Spirit—a very excellent servant the lady said he was—broke a valuable China plate, and Judge Edmonds discharged him on the spot, paying all wages due. The poor fellow was in great grief at his dismissal, and commenced such a sorrowful rapping on the tea-tray, that the Judge listened to my intercession in his favor and took him back again. The creature was so grateful that he immediately buttered a muffin on both sides and placed it on my plate. I was affected to tears by this touching instance of gratitude.

The time flew on very pleasantly. I held several very interesting conversations with departed great men. I had the pleasure of speaking some time with Bryan Borroimhe, King of Ireland. That great monarch expressed himself much disgusted with Messrs. Meagher and Mitchel for breaking their parole, and offered to wager his shillaleh against a glass of whiskey, that his descendant, Smith O'Brien, would never be guilty of such a "dirty thrick." I use his Majesty's own words.

On making my bow to the Judge and his agreeable companion, they expressed a wish that I should notice the evening's entertainment in the Daily Times, which I of course promised conditionally.

At the door the same spirit who had seized my hat and cloak on my entry, courteously restored them to me. I learned from my worthy host that this spirit had been once a New York Alderman. Appreciating the habits of that body, I immediately handed him a dollar, which I suppose he pocketed, for the coin was snatched from me with great avidity, and instantly disappeared.

"Good night, Mr. O. Dick Forse!"

"Good night, Judge!"

HONORS TO THE DECEASED CAPT. KNIGHT.

The Alta California, of October 16, contains an account of the meeting of the bankers and merchants of San Francisco to testify their regret at the death of the late Captain Knight.

The meeting was held at the Merchants' Exchange, on Wednesday, Oct. 12, at 12 o'clock. After being called to order by Mr. J. P. Haven, Mr. Henry Haight was chosen president, and other officers appointed.

The President stated that the object of the meeting was to take some steps to express the sense of the mercantile community in the loss they have sustained in the death of Capt. E. Knight, late Agent of the Pacific Mail Steamship Company.

Mr. H. M. Hale, after having alluded to the melancholy event in a feeling manner moved that a committee of three be appointed by the Chair to present resolutions expressive of the sense of the meeting. The motion was adopted, and Messrs. H. M. Hale, James King and J. P. Haven were appointed.

Col. David S. Turner was invited to address the meeting. He paid a just tribute to the many virtues of the deceased.

The committee then presented the following preamble and resolutions:

Whereas, our esteemed fellow citizen, Capt. E. Knight, late agent of the Pacific Mail Steamship Co., by a dispensation of Divine Providence, has been suddenly stricken down in the flower of his manhood, and the prime of his usefulness, and whereas it is eminently proper, when a distinguished citizen dies, that those who have known him best and honored him most, should testify their grief at his loss,

Therefore, we, the merchants, bankers, and other citizens of San Francisco, in public meeting assembled, do resolve as follows, to wit:

1st, That in the death of our departed friend our community has suffered an irreparable loss; and we, who have known him intimately in his business and social relations, have been bereft of one of our most valued associates.

2d, Resolved, That in the opinion of this meeting, Capt. Knight combined in his character, in an eminent degree, those noble, manly qualities which entitled him not only to the respect and confidence, but to the affectionate regard of all who knew him best. With a firm integrity of purpose, which never faltered, with a keen sense of honor which scorned an evasion, with a straightforward honesty which resorted to no subterfuges, he combined a simplicity of heart and a frankness of demeanor, which commanded the respect, while it secured the affectionate esteem of all with whom he was brought into contact. Scrupulously just in his business relations, generous almost to a fault, when his sympathies were appealed to, gentle and confiding in his temper, and always ready to forgive a fault in others, he judged harshly only of his own imperfections.

3d, Resolved, That there are few of our prominent citizens, who, in their official relations, and by private usefulness, have contributed more to promote the welfare of our city, while his obliging disposition, and desire to subserve the interests of the commercial community have stamped him as one of our most esteemed and valued citizens.

4th, Resolved, That we sympathise profoundly with the bereaved family of the deceased, and, as a token of our sympathy, the Secretary will transmit to Mrs. Knight a copy of these resolutions.

5th, Resolved, That the bankers and merchants here assembled will attend the funeral of our deceased friend to-morrow; and that publication of the proceedings of this meeting be made in the daily papers of this city.

Mr. Haven stated that the principal merchants and bankers had, a few weeks since, written a letter to Capt. Knight, tendering him the compliment of a public dinner. Owing to the sudden illness of Capt. K., no answer had been received, but a reply had been found among his papers. The correspondence was read, and the resolutions were adopted. Messrs. J. R. Robinson, J. P. Haven and Rev. Mr. Spear addressed the meeting. Rev. Mr. Wiley was invited to preach a funeral sermon on Sunday, Oct. 23d, and accepted the invitation.

A committee of three were nominated by the meeting, to confer with the friends of the deceased having charge of the funeral arrangements, consisting of David S. Turner, H. M. Hale and J. P. Haven. The proceedings were ordered to be published, and the meeting adjourned.

ARREST OF AN ALLEGED ACCOMPLICE IN THE SHERBORN MURDER.—A man by the name of Noyes Mann, formerly a near neighbor of Mr. Reuben Cozzens, of Sherborn, (who was murdered last September,) was arrested on Thursday evening at the Long Pond Hotel, in Natick, on suspicion of being an accomplice in the murder, for which Chapman is now in custody. A few days ago he put up at the Mansion House in South Framingham, and when he left the next morning he accidentally left behind a vest on which were several spots of blood. Chapman's Attorney having examined it, went to Chapman and he said "why didn't you tell me that Mann was connected with you in the murder of Mr. Cozzens?" He answered without hesitation, "Because we took an oath, each to the other, that we would not develope our doings." Chapman now says the murder was planned the night before, that he called Mr. Cozzens out of the house, and Mann struck him with the axe, and that he (Chapman) then ran away, and knows nothing more of what happened.

We are glad of the arrest. "Let justice be done," and the heavens will not fall.

The above statements bring out some interesting thoughts, in relation to the supposed sacredness and binding nature of an oath, as these considerations operated on the minds of these wretched murderers.

Having committed one of the highest crimes, they wished each to make sure that the other would not betray him; and so they go on to promise, and then they seal it with an appeal to God. They doubtless had some idea that God would punish them more severely if they were false to each other under this appeal, than if they had not made it; and Chapman seems to have carried this idea out, until the secret was discovered.

The case reminds us of Herod's oath, to give the daughter of Herodias anything she might ask; which oath he fulfilled by giving her John the Baptist's head, against his own will, but for his oath's sake—for the point of honor—or for the fear of the gods by whom he had sworn.

We are also reminded of the oath by which some of the Jews bound themselves neither to eat nor drink till they had killed Paul; an oath which fell to the ground: and also of the oath of Ahab, "God do so to me, and more also, if the head of Elisha, the son of Shaphat stand on his shoulders this day." Elisha's head, however, stood on his shoulders many days after Ahab's death.

The current notions about oaths need amendment. No christian man should be willing to make oath about a trifle;—nor should he trifle with his oath when made.—But above all, let no man suppose that an oath and promise to do wickedly can bind him to do it. The wickedness is in the oath and promise—both of which ought to be broken as soon as possible.

The Saviour's injunction, "swear not at all," is in the best possible taste, as well as the safest rule of conduct in the matter. A single affirmation, from the mouth of a man of truth, will go farther than the testimony of many sturdy swearers.

N. Y. CANAL AND LIQUOR LAW.

The New York Herald says that "the reorganization of the Seward free soil party, on a new and more solid basis than ever, is the most momentous and alarming effect of the State elections."

It is a sufficient answer to this, to say, merely, that Mr. Seward is a whig, and was not a member of the free soil party so called. That, however, is a very small matter.—Another, much more important than any party success, is, that the Canal Enlargement will go on rapidly. The Herald says:

The task of completing the State canals is now definitely confided to W. H. Seward and his party. In one sense the change is a boon. The canals will be finished, and this ever-recurring bone of contention will be thus removed from the political arena. But on the other hand, William H. Seward will be entrusted with all the patronage and all the means of corruption which the expenditure of twelve millions can supply. What honest coincidence of opinion, what the indirect influence of the administration cannot effect in strengthening his party, the immense power of this large sum of money will achieve. We shall have men of all parties endorsing the Seward creed on the strength, or in the hope, of a share of the canal plunder; and we know from experience how many politicians can be bought for twelve millions of dollars. Furthermore, the managers and dispensers of this glorious engine of corruption will probably reserve a handsome per centage on the amount for themselves. This prospect would have been more deplorable had we had any reason to expect greater honesty from the other parties.

Again, we find it asserted that the new Assembly men are all in favor of the Maine law. We foresaw and predicted this result some twelve months back; and now that it has come to pass, we are as ready as any one else to give the popular scheme a fair trial. It is unquestionable that the amount of drunkenness and that of vice and crime consequent upon drunkenness, are greater in this city than in any other on the continent; and far more than would be required to stamp indelible disgrace on our fair fame. Some remedy for this frightful state of things must certainly be devised; some dam to stem the tide of dissipation ere it sweeps away all the landmarks of virtue and morality. A large party, comprising the bulk of the citizens of this State, conceive that they will attain this end by passing the Maine law; and we will not now throw any impediment in its way. On the contrary, all we ask is that no time be lost in giving the scheme a fair and honest trial. The law should be passed at once, after the Legislature assembles, and should go into effect with as short a delay as possible. If it does work satisfactorily, and check drunkenness, we shall be satisfied; and we shall certainly give no countenance to an agitation for its repeal until it has been clearly shown to be intolerable.

The principal Washington hotel-kepers, have struck for higher wages, and advanced the price of board fifty cents a day. Congress men will have to strike for more pay.

They can easily get it: for they fix their own compensation.

Courtesy is the only true mark of nobility.

LOCAL.

☞ The Portsmouth Mercantile Library Association, a few weeks since, issued circulars to many of our citizens requesting the donation of books for their library. By this means many valuable books have been received, for which the society tender their grateful acknowledgements. Accompanying a package received by the officers, at their last meeting, was the following note, which was ordered to be published, in the hope that it might impress others with the fact that the organization is calculated to be of great advantage to the young of our city, and is worthy of encouragement.

PORTSMOUTH, Nov. 10, 1853.

As a slight token of my deep interest in all that is calculated to elevate and improve the minds of the young men of our city, I present the accompanying volumes to the Portsmouth Mercantile Library Association; hoping that their high tone of Patriotism, Morals, Philanthropy and Religion, may have a powerful influence upon the members of the Association, in helping them to perform all their duties as true Patriots, Moralists, Philanthropists and Christians.

Allow me also to express the hope, that your appeal to those who are able to assist you, may meet with such favor as the interests of your Association require.

Truly yours, S. M. DEMERITT.

To the Portsmouth Mercantile Library Association.

BERWICK ACADEMY.—The new academy building, at South Berwick, is to be dedicated on Thursday evening next. It is said to be a fine building; put up in place of one destroyed by fire some time since.

ANOTHER "VARMINT" KILLED.—The Dover Gazette informs us that another animal, supposed to be the mate of the panther killed several days ago, was killed on Monday, 7th th inst, in Lee, by some persons, which is considered as conclusive evidence that they have a den in the woods, somewhere in that neighborhood.

CRITICISM.— Speaking of the Swedish novelist, and of the authoress of "Uncle Tom's Cabin," the New London Chronicle says:

The truth is, there never were, since people first learned to write their names, two persons more egregiously overrated than Frederika Bremer and Mrs. Beecher Stowe. They have by some inscrutable dispensation of Providence become vogue; it is the fashion to praise them, and they are praised, ad anuseum—for what, no son of Adam, nor even Adam's daughters, can tell. There is not a common school girl in the land whose "composition lesson" would deserve a word of praise, unless it was quite as good in point of style, and thought, as the crack chapter that might be selected from either of the writers whose works the good-natured world has agreed to go into raptures about. It seems to us to be about time to have done with this nonsense.

This critic has made a discovery, which is altogether too late to do much good in the present generation. If he can get salt enough into it to keep it, perhaps it may find favor with posterity.

BOSTON JAIL.—The report of the Keeper of the Suffolk County Jail for the year ending Nov. 1, 1853, shows that 7233 persons have been committed during that period, of which 6020 were males, and 1213 females; 5404 adults, 1829 minors; 7027 whites, 206 colored; 568 debtors. The commitments have been—for murder 8, (the most of these were afterwards indicted for manslaughter merely) arson 6, rape 3 robbery 16, burglary 48, forgery 8, assault 517, intemperance 1002, keeping brothels 43, counterfeiting 38, perjury 5, etc. The total number in the jail and lock ups connected therewith, for intemperance was 2432, but over half paid the fines imposed by the Court. Of the inmates, 76 have been sent by the Municipal Court to the State Prison, and 255 to the House of Correction. The total shows an increase of the inmates over any former report.

A ROTTEN BRIDGE.—A melancholy loss of life occurred on the Severn river near Tunbridge, Oct. 21, from the inefficiency of a bridge. A wagon loaded with 40 persons, men, women, and children, on their return from hop gathering, having descended from a hill, and just entered upon the bridge, one of the horses stumbled and threw the wagon against the railing on one side of the bridge. This being rotten, gave way, and the wagon with its contents was precipitated into the river, which was much swollen by the recent rains, and the current being rapid, 36 persons were drowned. The bridge was 42 feet long and 9 feet wide, was old, and much out of repair.

It seems, after all, that Commodore McClure, in the Investigator, has not yet got quite through the Northwest Passage. He has only sailed far enough through the icy mountains of Bhering's Straits to reach a point from which he can communicate with others who have entered the Arctic sea by the Atlantic passage. He has no doubt, however, that he will be able to make a passage through Davis' Straits to England.

It is gratifying to know that the English government is successfully endeavoring to improve the condition of the more depressed of the laboring classes. Since the passage of the merciful mining law, Shetland ponies have been employed in doing the work which was formerly done by women, namely, that of drawing the loads of coal to the mouth of the pit, on the "underground railroad."

SUDDEN DEATH.—Albert Richards, late of the firm of Richards & Drake, traders, died in Marlborough, Mass., on Tuesday last. He was seized with hemorrhage on the Saturday previous, which occasioned his death. He had been married but three weeks; his age was 29.

MARRIED.

FOREIGN NEWS.

By the arrival of the America we have Liverpool dates to Oct, 29, at 9 30 A. M. The news from Turkey is contradictory and unsatisfactory.

With regard to the Eastern question the position of affairs remains unchanged. It is reported that the Czar will rather back out of the principalities than fight there. This is surmised to be the purport of the reply sent by Russia to the request of France and England to evacuate the principalities.

Certain transactions in the London market would indicate that some parties were in possession of exclusive and favorable information, but the public at large are kept altogether in the dark respecting the progress of affairs.—We have, however, to record that on the 14th ult., the combined fleets of England and France left their anchorage at Besica Bay and entered the Dardanelles, and have come to an anchor in the Sea of Marmora, under shelter of the Island or Marmora.

Several papers publish the following spurious despatch via Vienna, 22d.

"The army of Omar Pacha, which could be kept back no longer, has passed the Danube, and beaten the Russians at Oltenitza. The Russian vessels on the Danube have fallen into the hands of the Turks."

The following is more reliable, and was telegraphed on the 26th via Brusscls:

"Skirmishing on the Danube reported from Vienna. Turkey prohibits corn exportation. 19th, no fleet at Constantinople."

It is not believed that any pitched battle had been fought.

Manthimour, a man of energy opposed to Russia, but favorable to a revivification of the Greek Church, is elected patriarch of Constantinople, and has been invited to attend a meeting of the Cabinet.

The London Daily News publishes a copy of an order, dated October 8th, from the Grand Vizier to the inhabitants of Constantinople, calling on them to preserve order, to pray for the success of the Turkish Army, and to protect the Christians from all insult or annoyance.

Recent Russian accounts report a Russian victory over the Circassians. The true statement is, that the Circassians had defeated the Russians, captured several guns, and retreated into the mountains.

Persia had disbanded its army on the Turkish frontier.

Koszta is on his way to Boston.

A meeting had been held at Manchester in favor of the Maine Anti-Liquor Law for England.

The steamer Argo, with half a million of sterling, had arrived at Liverpool from Port Philip via Cape Horn, with dates from the former to August 24. Reports the American ship Texas and barque Early Bird entering the harbor. New diggings had been discovered. The markets were flat.

SPAIN.—Spain has ready for sea a fleet of 104 guns, supposed for the Mediterranean squadron.

Madrid letters of the 23d state that Mr. Soule had been received by the Queen on the request of the Minister of Foreign Affairs.—He had consented to modify some expressions considered objectionable in his address to the Queen.

ITALY.—The Pope is recruiting in health. He had opened two stores at Rome to sell food at a reduced rate.

LATEST.—A telegraphic despatch published in the Paris Moniteur, dated Bucharest, Oct. 25th, states that two Russian steamers, with eight gun boats, forced the passage of the Danube on the 23d ult., and encountered a brisk fire from the Turkish forts of Isactcha between Reni and Ismael. The Russians had a Colonel, three officers and twelve sailors killed, and fifty wounded, but pretend that they set the fort on fire by shell.

In France everything is prepared for a land expedition to Constantinople, but no orders will be given for it to leave unless new circumstances should render it necessary.

Letters from St. Petersburg received in Paris speak of a strong desire for negotiations on the part of Count Nesselrod; and even the St. Petersburg Journal has an article which is decidedly in this sense.

At Paris it was reported that the Emperor Nicholas had abdicated in favor of the hereditary Grand Duke; this, however, unlikely as the report was, had the effect of giving firmness to the markets.

LIVERPOOL CORN MARKET, Oct. 29.—Prices of all kinds further advanced, well supported and still tend upwards. War rumors, unfavorable weather for sowing, and the impression strengthening that the British crop is short, having given additional confidence to holders. Flour in good inquiry at 6d a 1s advance on the week. Indian Corn in speculative demand at 2s a 3s dearer. W. C. flour 37 a 37s 6d. Phila. Balt. and Ohio 38s; extra 38s 6d, sour 33 a 34s; Fine White Corn firm 46s. Yellow 44s 6d a 45s; Secondary and headed 42s a 43s.

WHO IS IN JAIL?—In the Police Court report of the Boston Journal, we read that "Patrick Rashleigh and Elizabeth Rashleigh his wife, were arraigned and examined on charge of receiving 1500 lbs. of corned beef, knowing it to have been stolen by a boy named Michael Sullivan, from Mr. Treat, at the Blackstone market, who is now in the House of Correction for the larceny." Query, who is in the House of Correction, the man who lost the beef or the boy who stole it?

SHED ON THE TRACK.—The wind blew the woodshed of the Manchester and Lawrence Railroad at Lawrence, over the track, yesterday noon, so that the two o'clock train for this place found it in their way. It was about 100 feet long and was broadside upon the track. Conductor Eaton asked the male passengers for a "lift," and in ten minutes they tipped the shed out of the way, and were prepared to go on their way rejoicing.—Manchester Mirror.

Yankee Sullivan has been committed to the jail in Lenox. The penalty for his offence is said to be five years in the state prison, or $5000 fine.

MOCK TURTLE.—Calling a husband "my dear" in public, and "you brute" in private.

The Cheapest and Best.

THE approach of another Winter, with its usual leisure for Farmers and others, induces the publishers again to call attention to the

WEEKLY CHRONICLE,

AN INDEPENDENT FAMILY NEWSPAPER,

At $1 per Annum, in advance.

Being published in connection with the DAILY MORNING CHRONICLE, we are enabled to offer a record of news more thorough than Weeklies generally; and being entirely independent of the "arbitrary sway" of any and all parties and sects, our record of passing events we trust is clear and impartial.

The coming year seems big with events of great political interest, and a paper having no party bias will be found interesting as a chronicle of the doings of ALL parties.

LOCAL MATTERS

Have a prominent place in the Weekly Chronicle, so that natives of Portsmouth resident at home or abroad, will here find mention of all matters of interest in this vicinity.

The Weekly Chronicle is of medium size, printed on good paper, and contains but few advertisements—giving twenty columns of news and miscellaneous reading each week, at the low price of one dollar a year.

COOKING STOVE.

FOR WOOD OR COAL.

THE attention of all in want of a COOK STOVE is respectfully solicited to a consideration of the most beautifully modeled patern, equally adapted for Coal or Wood, and warranted to operate successfully with either,—which is now offered to the public as the

MOST COMPLETE AND EFFICIENT

Cooking apparatus ever before introduced in this vicinity.

It is an elegant model, of fine smooth castings, (equal in thickness and durability to the old James Cook Stove) and fitted together in the most substantial manner. The oven and flues around it are so constructed that baking can be done in twenty minutes from time of lighting the coal, and with wood much quicker.

The broiling apparatus is on an entirely new and original plan, that will not fail to recommend itself at the first glance, as no smoke or gas arising from that culinary process can escape into the room.

Every Stove is warranted to give entire satisfaction, and should it fail to operate as recommended, or crack within a year from date of purchase, it will be exchanged or the money refunded, at the expense of the manufacturer. Those that have been in operation a year in this place appear as well as when the first fire was lighted, and are indeed "just as good as new."

The demand for this stove is such that it is impossible for the manufacturers to meet their orders. Those just received were ordered early in the season.

All intending to purchase or exchange are invited to give this an examination and trial before purchasing elsewhere, thereby securing the most durable, economical and best stove in the market.

Dr. J. P. Woolley's All-Healing and Strengthening Salve.

THIS salve is a sovereign remedy for lame back, local rheumatism, pain in the side and breast, scalds, burns, freezes, fresh wounds, bruises, sprains, weakness in the joints, crick in the back, old sores, chilblains, swellings, numbness, ague in the face and breast, cracked hands, biles, corns on the feet, and occasional sores of most kinds which the human kind is subject.

This Salve is a rare and valuable combination of warm, stimulant and anodyne ingredients, and will be found far superior to any other article of the kind heretofore discovered for the above complaints. There has never appeared a medicine which possesses the penetrating and healing power in so great a degree, while at the same time it cannot by any possibility produce injurious effects. By its action on the skin it moves all obstructions to the insensible perspiration—excites a healthy circulation of the blood—strengthens and invigorates the nerves—gives elasticity to the joints, and imparts strength to any part of the system which may have been weakened by sedentary habits or disease. Bay State Stoves.

THE Subscriber would inform his friends and the public, that he has for sale all sizes of this favorite Stove. Having sold them in this city for five years past, they have been thoroughly tested with wood and coal, and are found perfect in every respect.
Not put in operation four and five years since have had no repairs made upon them, and are to all appearance as good as ever. So great is the popularity of these Stoves, that many imitations of it are put into the market, such as the Granite State, Empire State, &c.; but none of them are equal to it in weight or quality of castings, cooking facilities, or economy of fuel.
To all who are in want of a GOOD Cooking Stove, we would say—buy a BAY STATE, and you are sure to get THE BEST STOVE IN THE WORLD.
The subscriber has for sale, also, a variety of other Cook Stoves, Cooking Ranges, Parlor Grates, Stoves and Parlor Stoves, Funnel, &c. for sale low for cash.

PROF. ALEX. C. BARRY'S

Tricopherous, or Medicated Compound.

FOR beautifying, curling, preserving, restoring and strengthening the Hair, relieving diseases of the Skin, curing Rheumatic Pains and healing external wounds. Bounded by no geographical lines, the reputation of Barry's Tricopherous pervades the Union. The sales of the article of late years have increased in a ratio that almost exceeds belief. Prof. Barry, after a careful examination of his sales book, finds that the number of bottles delivered to order, in quantities of from half a gross upward, during the year 1852, was within a trifle of 850,000.
It is unnecessary to present at length the evidences of the wonderful properties of the Tricopherous when the public have furnished such an endorsement as this. The cheapness of the article, and the explanations given of its chemical action upon the hair, the scalp, and in all cases of superficial irritation, first recommended it to the attention of the people. This was all that the inventor desired. Every bottle advertised itself—The effects of the first trial exceeded expectation. It acted like a charm. The ladies would not be without it. Country dealers in every section of the United States found they must have it; and thus was built up a wholesale trade of an extent hitherto unheard of as regards articles of this kind.—The highest point has not yet been reached, and it is believed that the sales this year will be a million and a half of bottles.
Liberal discount to purchasers by the quantity, and by all the principal Merchants and Druggists throughout the United States, and Canada, Mexico, West Indies, Great Britain, France, &c., and by Weeks & Potter, Brewers, Stevens & Cushing, and Wm. Brown, Boston. d&w6m je22*

DR. CONINE'S

SYRUP OF GINSENG & MALVA.

The Great Chinese Remedy.

THIS Medicine depends more upon its own virtues and actual merit than any other ever before offered to the public.
The recipe is from Dr. CONINE, a gentleman who travelled many years in China, and in the islands of that vicinity where this compound is the potent and efficacious remedy for the numerous illnesses arising from a disordered or debilitated stomach, and

Affections of the Lungs.

But what will particularly attract attention is its astonishing
DISSOLVENT POWER.
By which it at once removes ALL PHLEGM or extraneous matter from the Throat, Stomach or Lungs. It is therefore

Anti-Expectorant,

And from attentions of trial here, it is now offered as NATURE'S KINDEST REMEDY for the removal of Consumption, Whooping Cough, and all Coughs, by precipitating the Phlegm, instead of creating irritation by its formation.
It is AROMATIC, and increases the general warmth, possessing the exhilarating qualities of the Tea Plant, which is one great cause of its universal popularity in all India beyond the Ganges, where as an

APPETISER

It probably has no equal in the Vegetable Kingdom
AS A DYSPEPTIC REMEDY, IT IS UNEQUALLED.
Its natural, genial warmth keeps the digestive powers ever in proper tone, soothing all irritation of the nerves, &c.
It will prove a more pleasant, safe and effectual tonic than any Sarsaparilla or other boasted tonic medicine, and is as nutritious, as well as exceedingly palatable. It will continue to be prepared in the best manner—no expense being spared—and in quart bottles.
Besides the numberless testimonials which we are receiving daily, of the good effect of the above medicine, we are allowed to refer to several physicians, who are now using the Syrup of Ginseng and Malva with great success.

"A Splendid Remedy."

THE GREAT REMEDY is at last discovered. Consumption can be cured!! and Coughs and Colds, the parents of that fell disease that so often brings woe to the homes of our land, vanish, as if by magic, before this SOVEREIGN REMEDY. This is that which has so long been sought for, and is in full faith offered to the public as a certain cure for Coughs, Colds, Whooping Cough, Croup, Asthma and Consumption, and will in any case where lungs sufficient are left to sustain life, check the alceration and raise the patient to health. This is not an idle boast, nor is this remedy sent into the market without a thorough trial, but has proved beyond a doubt that what has been asserted CAN BE DONE!
N. B.—BEWARE OF COUNTERFEITS, and observe the following Promissory Note, with the fac simile signature of the proprietor, on every genuine box:

PATENTS.

American and Foreign Office.
AGENCY FOR BUSINESS
With the U. S. Patent Office, Washington,
No. 22 State Street, Boston.

IMPORTANT INFORMATION TO INVENTORS. The Subscriber (late Agent of the U. S. Patent Office, under the Act of 1837) determined to present advantages, in applying for Patents, superior to those offered to inventors by others, has made arrangements whereby on applications prepared and conducted by him, THIRTY DOLLARS (the fee of Mr. Ewbank, back by others), will be remitted by him in case of failure to obtain a patent, and the withdrawal through him within thirty days after the rejection. Caveats, Specifications, Assignments and all necessary papers and drawings, for procuring patents in this and foreign countries prepared, and advice rendered on legal and scientific matters respecting inventions, and Infringement of patents.
Inventors can not only here obtain their specifications on the most reasonable terms, but can here avail themselves of the experience of 20 years' practice, an extensive library of legal and mechanical works, and correct accounts of patents granted in this and other countries: besides being saved a journey to Washington, the usual great delay there, as well as all personal trouble in obtaining their patents. Copies of claims of any patent furnished by remitting one dollar.—Assignments recorded at Washington.
R. H. EDDY,
Solicitor of Patents.

"During the time I occupied the office of Commissioner of Patents, R. H. Eddy, Esq., of Boston, did business at the Patent Office, as Solicitor of Patents. There were few, if any persons acting in that capacity, who had so much business before the Patent Office; and there were none who conducted it with more skill, fidelity and success. I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the best informed and most skilful Patent Solicitors in the United States, and have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a person more competent and trustworthy, and more capable of putting their application in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office.
EDMUND BURKE,
Late Commissioner of Patents."
"PATENT OFFICE,
"R. H. EDDY, Esq., Boston, Mass.
"SIR:—Your facilities for the prosecution of any business connected with this Office, are equal to those of any other Agency in the country.

NAVAL REFORM.

LETTER FROM AN OFFICER OF THE U. S. NAVY.

To the Editor of the New York Daily Times:

Much has been said about reform in the navy—its inadequacy to perform the objects for which it was intended—its increase, &c. It is proverbial that all military establishments in a republic are considered obnoxious to the spirit of free institutions; but, those free institutions being themselves obnoxious to the prevailing governments throughout the world, it becomes absolutely necessary to maintain, in a republic, a standing military establishment, of sufficient strength to look after and protect the interests of commerce, whether on the ocean, or crossing internal lakes, or extensive wild praire countries. The object of creating military establishments being principally to protect commerce in all its branches, is also incidently to afford protection to the free institutions of the country, by preventing the encroachments of monarchical aggression on our borders, and depredations on commerce and the rights of citizens abroad.

With these facts before us, we must inquire and find out the best method of making these military establishments the most effective, and ready at all times to meet an emergency. Our navy now consists of about 55 effective war vessels, and no more, mounting 1,954 guns. To man this fleet would require 36 Captains; Commanders, 25, Lieutenants 284, Masters, Passed Midshipmen, and Midshipmen, 746. For other stations, which are established by law—Captains, 15; Commanders 21; Lieutenants, 51. This would be a total of officers required for active duty, without reliefs, of Captains, 51, Commanders, 46, Lieutenants, 335, Masters, Passed Midshipmen, 749. The following recapitulation shows the overplus and the deficiencies required to officer this fleet and shore stations, having all in active employment:

Required, Captains, 51; Commanders, 46; Lieutenants, 335; Masters, Passed Midshipmen, and Midshipmen, 746; on the register, 370. Now on the navy register—Captains, 68; Commanders, 97; Lieutenants, 327; overplus in Captains, 17; in Commanders, 51; deficiency in Lieutenenants, 8; deficiency in other grades, 427—total of officers deficient, 435.

There are now employed and unemployed the following ships and vessels, effectiae and defective:

Line-of-battle ships employed—out of 11, none; frigates out of employment, 13; there are 6 employed; of 21 sloops-of-war, 18 employed; out of steamships and small vessels must be reckoned useless on account of being too small for cruisers, 12—leaving 38 effective vessels for protecting commerce.

It must be noted that, out of 68 Captains, not one was borne in this century! Of the list of 97 Commanders, fifty of them were not born in this century—making 112 officers over half a century old. Besides, it must be remarked that, of this number, 88 have been over 40 years in the navy, and employed in all the wars in which the country has been engaged. The youngest Captain on this list cannot be less than 56 years old; the eldest is known to be bordering on 80. The eldest Commander is 56; the youngest not less than 40 years of age. The eldest Captain entered the navy in the last century, and has been in it 55 years; the youngest Captain has been in it 41 years. The eldest Commander has been in the navy 41 years; the youngest 21 years. To reach the foot of this list of Captains, requires 41 years; and, under the present regulation, the naval aspirant will have arrived at the age of 55 years before he is entitled to command a frigate.

To say that the Navy has been inactive, at any time, or that it has not compared well with the navies of Europe, would be doing it gross injustice; for when we compare it with the size of the navies of England and France, the number of vessels employed, and the amount of commerce requiring its protection, the wars it has been engaged in, the discoveries, and surveys made by the Navy, we find its activity just four times that of either England or France. The American people have no real cause for fault-finding with the Navy. It never surrendered to an equal or inferior force, though often conquering equal and superior. It never had a traitor in its ranks; and at all times, and under all circumstances, it has performed the duty assigned. But, unfortunately, the navy has been left like a neglected and well-bearing tree—the owners have been satisfied to pluck the fruit, and leave the tree to make old, non-bearing wood, or to decay, while rank, destructive weeds are permitted to grow in every direction around it. Like all other departments under the Government, it requires a little care and looking after—a little regulating, and, sometimes, pruning.

It has become the fashion of late years to abuse the "old fogies," as old officers of the Navy are now styled. To be sure there are some of them too old for active service, but they have done the State some service in the past. It was these old fogies who built up the Navy while we young progressives were in petticoats and trowsers—or before some of us were in existence. Age has no doubt destroyed their physical active energies; but, nevertheless, they have at times proved active in council.—We should not desire to see them unfeelingly thrown overboard. They are old war horses, who, if they cannot engage in "war's fierce alarm," yet still prick up their ears when they "snuff the battle afar off," or hear the "sound of the bugle." They are the old faithful servants of the government, and deserve to be rewarded for "long and faithful service." I have ever been the advocate of an honorable retired list, for the older officers who have served the government faithfully; and as decided an advocate of the more rapid advancement of the young officers. But I must confess I stand always ready to throw myself into the breach, when I see the old and faithful officers in danger of being sacrificed to the young progressives. Nor will I ever feel justified to advocate the destruction of the older officers who have built up the Navy, and served the country faithfully, that we, who flatter ourselves as the "Young America," and "progressives," should rise on their ruins.

Give to them—the old and faithful—an honorable retired list. Let the Government be generous towards them, and place them in a position where they may, after a long life of toil and labor, enjoy a few years of quiet retirement—where they can relate the wonders of the deep, and "fight over their battles." This is one of the reforms demanded at the hands of the people. The next would be to introduce modern improvements in ship-building. Our ships are all nearly half a century old, and like our other old fogies, have done the State much service. Their faithful old timbers require a little care. The large ships could be razeed and improved frigates made of them. The other smaller crafts should be sold, or the frigates converted into sloops, and an entirely new class of heavy ships introduced into the Navy.

Yours with respect,
WILLIAM D. PORTER, U. S. N.

MACARONI AND VERMICELLI.—These articles, it is well known are manufactured in Italy—but the finest qualities at Naples. The making and eating of them enter into the occupation and appetite of an Italian city, town and village. They form a part of the soups, pastry, and many meat dishes. Mr. Weed, of the Albany Evening Journal, speaking of the thousands of bushels of wheat which he saw being made into Macaroni at one village, says:—"The wheat is first subjected to kiln-drying process, being spread on tiled roofs which are heated gently from fires within and from the sun without. It is afterwards ground coarsely, mixed with water, and kneaded into paste, which is subjected to action by pounders somewhat resembling those used in driving piles. The paste is then forced through machinery, which gives it its form and name, some coming out macaroni and some vermicelli, each taking, however, many varieties of form, some long and thin, like paper, some like ribbons, some in balls, and others like beans and peas, and even as small as mustard seed."

An itemizer, at a late evening sewing party, reports that one lady made use of the exclamation, "I thought I should have died!" one hundred and twenty-eight times, and she put the inquiry, "did you ever?" one hundred and thirty-seven times.

TUESDAY, NOV. 15, 1853.

NOT A WHIG VICTORY.

It should be distinctly understood that no whig victory has taken place in New York; but only a democratic defeat, not by being outvoted, but by being divided. The Tribune says:

It was Charles Townshend, if we rightly remember, from whom Sheridan borrowed his bon mot on the Peace of Amiens, that it was one "of which every body was glad, and nobody was proud." The remark applies with equal force to the result of our election. The whigs have the Canal Board, the State Departments, and both branches of the Legislature, yet nobody imagines that the whig party, as such, deserves any credit for this result.—Its attitude is that of a clown into whose cap a traveler has chucked a dollar, just for the sake of enjoying his amazement. The democratic party saw fit to quarrel and throw the State away; and the whigs have it because they could not help themselves.

Of the 250,000 whig electors in the State, not more than 180,000 have voted the whig State ticket this year. Almost everywhere, the silver grays were in open revolt, or secretly leagued with the adversary. Their organs at Utica and Syracuse were sold out during the canvass, and became openly Hard, as they will continue. Those at Canandaigua and Rochester were busy in getting up and supporting bolting tickets against the regular whig nominees, and then in trading off the whig State ticket for Hard and Soft votes for their bolting Congressman or Senator. If apathy, intestine feuds and general anarchy could have defeated the regular whig ticket, that result would have been attained; but the crack in the whig party runs very close to the further edge of it, while that in the Democracy was right through the middle, and manifestly past surgery.

The inclement and repulsive weather doubtless diminished the aggregate vote many thousands, but it could have had no such effect had the mass of the people taken as deep interest in current politics as they did six or eight years ago. Storms keep from the polls mainly those who care little whether they vote or not. This one afforded an excuse for democrats, who wished to steer clear of the split, to stay away from the polls, and many of them doubtless improved it.

The Hard vote seems to be much stronger than we anticipated. We shall not be surprised to see it reach eighty thousand. This, with all the patronage and prestige of both the National and State administrations arrayed and wielded against them, is a great manifestation of strength. We doubt whether the Softs under like circumstances could have polled sixty thousand. The nomination of Judge Bronson for Governor by democratic conventions in Orange and Rockland, were evidently not mere bravados, but indications of a settled purpose.

Apart from the battle of the Shells, the Maine Law was the live issue in this canvass, and doubtless called out many thousand voters who would otherwise have staid at home.—We believe a Legislature has been chosen which will recognize the necessity of passing such a law, and will strive to do it promptly, heartily and effectively. No intelligent man can longer doubt that the Maine Law is to be tried in this State; and we appeal to foes as well as friends to take care that it has a full and fair trial.

THE MAINE LAW AT HOME.—John Neal offers to give one thousand dollars to the cause of temperance, or to some other charity, if any one will prove that there is not more intemperance, and more liquor sold and drank in the city of Portland and throughout the State of Maine at the present time, than before the passage of the existing Liquor Law.

We offer to give one dozen bogus coppers to the Insane Asylum, or any other charity that can be named, if any one will prove that there is not more patriotic feeling in New Hampshire, and especially in Portsmouth, than there was before Secretary Guthrie wrote the Soft Letter.

The reader who takes the least pains to think, will see that one of these propositions can be proved about as easily as the other; and that our bogus and "Johnie's siller" are alike safe. Yet some very respectable papers copy the offer as if it really meant something or proved something.

The State of New York have placed nearly 8,500 copies of Webster's Quarto Dictionary in the District Schools of the State.

This will teach the "juveniles" the meaning of the words; and it will also liberalize the spelling of them; for between the spelling in this dictionary, and that of the best English and American writers, there are so many discrepancies as to make the usage more variable than it was before the great dictionary was made so cheap and pushed into such extensive circulation.

CONSTRUCTIVE LARCENY.—In the Boston Police Court on Saturday, John Roberts was held in $500 for trial in the Municipal Court on a charge of larceny of $142 in bank bills from Mr. John C. Woods of East Boston.—It appeared that Mr. Woods lost the money; that Roberts found it, and neglected to advertise it, which renders him accountable for the crime of larceny.

There are similar laws about advertising goods which are found, in this State, extending, we believe, in their principles and operation, to stray cattle taken up, &c., &c.

New York has one hundred and twelve piers, of which fifty five are on the North River and fifty seven on the East. Some of them extend out nearly an eighth of a mile into the river.

CIRCULAR

To Christian Ministers of different denominations in New Hampshire, and to their Churches and Congregations.

Christian Brethren and Friends:—

We, the undersigned, Ministers of the Gospel in the City of Concord, wish briefly to address you on the subject of the Temperance Reform. And we trust that in so doing, our motives will be duly appreciated. Far be it from us to appear officious in our suggestions, or to arrogate to ourselves superior wisdom on the subject. But we feel the responsibleness of our position, and it is in the fullness of our hearts that we address you.

In contemplating the present state of the Temperance Cause, we confess to you that we are deeply moved, when we behold the tide of Intemperance, which for a time seemed to be at the ebb, now flowing back upon us with overwhelming power. It is a fact, which we think cannot be concealed or denied, that the sale and use of intoxicating drinks is alarmingly on the increase. And we are led to inquire who, who shall lift up a standard against it?

We rejoice that those systems of operation which have heretofore been relied on, have accomplished so much in the Temperance reform. But the question now arises whether these measures alone are adequate to sustain the cause at the present crisis. In view of this inquiry we turn instinctively to the Gospel as the great Remedial Agent for the woes of man; and ask can not christian influences be employed more fully to check and to remove the evils of Intemperance? Are the appliances of the Gospel now, as in some former periods, in full operation? Are our pulpits now heard in those earnest and deeply solemn tones on this subject, which once characterized their performances? Do the conference and prayer meetings of the church now recognize this, as formerly, among the benevolent objects, which christians should labor to promote? Or has it not rather become sadly divorced from the departments of christian enterprise, and turned over to other hands as a secular movement. If so, and if prayer in its behalf has ceased, we cannot wonder that it does not progress and prosper.

We need not remind you, Dear Brethren and Friends, of the appalling evils of intemperance, nor of the very intimate connexion between the progress of temperance and the prosperity of Religion, nor of the great necessity of sustaining the temperance cause in order to the success of gospel truth. These considerations are familiar to you.

Our immediate object in this communication is to urge upon you, what seems of vital importance at the present crisis, viz: the revival of temperance efforts in our churches and congregations as a christian enterprize. We would see christians and christian ministers and the friends of order and morality, who, for reasons no doubt satisfactory to themselves, have for a time rather stood aloof from temperance movements, now commence anew such operations in this cause as their wisdom shall dictate, and such as they can conduct with prayer and zeal to a glorious consummation.

We have deliberated upon this subject—we have prayed over it—we have conferred together upon it, as christian men laboring together in the cause of Christ. And the result to which we come is that the Temperance Cause must not be abandoned, nor must it be connected with party strife, nor conducted with unkind or unchristian feelings.

We distinctly disclaim all political motives in these suggestions, but at the same time we have no wish to conceal our full belief and firm conviction that a prohibitory enactment, essentially like that of the Maine Law, is demanded by the best interests of our citizens, and absolutely essential to the complete triumph of the Temperance Reform. Nor would we disguise our full determination to labor and pray for this consummation until by the blessing of Heaven it is fully realized.

For this end, Dear Brethren and Friends, we ask your co-operation. Will you not promptly respond to our appeal? Let us rise together and enter upon this work as christian men, laboring in a christian cause, in a christian manner. And as a foundation for its complete success, let us inculcate Temperance Principles, and diffuse widely a correct public sentiment, thus preparing the community so far as may be to sustain wise and wholesome enactments on this subject. Let us as ministers, as churches, as congregations, assume this enterprise as our own, in an important sense, because it is a christian enterprise, and let us enter into it with all that zeal which its vast importance demands.

We cannot but think, that a simultaneous movement on the part of our religious congregations, conducted in a christian spirit, would be felt in the community around us, and would tend greatly to arrest the progress of intemperance in the community at large.

And we would respectfully ask, why shall not this movement be made? Does not every motive drawn from religion and humanity urge us to it? Do not the safety and welfare of our persons and families, of our sons and daughters, our neighbors and fellow citizens demand of us immediate and speedy action? In what other way, we ask with deep emotion, can our young men be rescued from those haunts of dissipation which are open to ensnare them? The God of heaven interpose to save them from utter ruin! Pardon our earnestness and warmth on this subject. It is one on which we feel.

We submit this Cause to your consideration as one that is paramount to all others. Will you not, Brethren and Friends, make it a subject of Prayer, and follow your prayers by corresponding efforts.

In conclusion permit us to recommend the Sabbath previous to our Annual Thanksgiving as a day for the simultaneous presentation of this subject in all the pulpits in the State.

In behalf of the Cause:

LOCAL.

TO NEW SUBSCRIBERS.

To each person who subscribes for the Daily or Weekly Chronicle for the year 1854, and pays for the same in advance, we will supply the paper to Jan. 1, gratis. Terms for the Daily $3—Weekly $1.

GERMANIA MUSICAL SOCIETY.—A rare treat indeed will it be for the citizens of Portsmouth, to listen to an orchestra so large and so good as the Germanians, twenty-five in number. The spacious Temple is none too large for their power, and we hope may not be in the least degree too large for their audience. Having heard their performances repeatedly, and with much pleasure, we are prepared to recommend them as musicians of great merit.

They are to be assisted in their concert on Friday evening, by two eminent vocalists.

☞ Hon. Josiah Quincy, jr., of Boston, lectures this evening at the Temple—the second of the course before the Mechanics' Lyceum. Mr. Quincy is well known as an able and interesting speaker; and will be remembered as the lecturer on Mormons and Mormonism, before the Lyceum here last winter. His subject for this evening is not known.

☞ It will be seen by a notice in our advertising columns, that Dr. Ryder will henceforth devote his whole time to the practice of Dentistry in this city. Dr. R. is a most excellent and gentlemanly operator, and has long been very popular with our citizens.—We are glad to find that his home practice has so increased as to prevent his practising elsewhere.

☞ In another column, "we give the benefit of our circulation" to the circular from the Ministers of Concord, to the pastors throughout the State, and to their churches and congregations. We publish it by request of the Ex. Committee of the Portsmouth Washington Total Abstinence Society, who are using every means to further in this vicinity, the plan proposed by those who sign the call.

PATENT CLOTHES PINS.—Sometimes the wind blows hard on washing-day, splits or shakes off the clothes pins, and scatters the linen and cotton clothes in the dirt. This happens, especially when the clothes pins do not suit, but are large and loose. It cannot happen now to our clothes; for Mr. J. E. Chapman has furnished us with a lot of articles which we call patent clothes pins, for want of a better name; though we are not sure they are patent, and we are sure they are not pins. They are more like buttons, or nippers;—and being provided with India rubber or gutta percha springs, they stick on the lines as tight as a tree-toad. If anybody doubts, a trial of the article will convince even the most skeptical.

DEDICATION.—The new School House at Gravelly Ridge, is to be dedicated next Monday evening. A number of clergymen and teachers have been invited to attend and take part in the exercises, and the occasion will doubtless be one of interest and pleasure to those who attend.

☞ The dedication of the Academy at South Berwick, which was to have taken place on the 17th, has been postponed.

☞ To-day is the last chance to save two per cent discount on taxes.

☞ The State Election took place in Massachusetts, yesterday. In Boston, as far as reported, to 2 P. M., the votes for the new Constitution were 1851, against it 5218. Votes for Governor, Washburn 4214, Bishop 1080, Wilson 476, Wales 337, scattering 308.

☞ A despatch from Manchester, yesterday morning, states that Senator Atherton's life is despaired of. He has continued to suffer from the paralysis with which he was seized on Thursday.

MAC AND TACONY.—These two champions of the turf came together again on the 3d of November, the first time for several months, for a match of $2000, mile heats, best three in five, in harness, over the Hunting Park Course at Philadelphia. The track was in good order. Before the start Mac was the favorite at 100 to 80, and in some cases 100 to 60.—Both horses appeared upon the track, looking finely—Mac was in better looking order than before this year. Mac won the race, coming in ahead the first three heats. Time 2:32, 2:35, and 2:35. They were to trot again on the 10th, under the saddle, same heats; and on the 17th are to go again in harness.

CRYSTAL PALACE.—The Illustrated Weekly Record of the New York Exhibition of Industry of all Nations, Nos. 13 and 14, are just received from the publishers; and contains:—Tides and Tide Gauges; Government Schools of ornamental Art in England; Electric Telegraphs; and over 60 illustrations in excellent wood cuts.

HIGH-HANDED ACTS OF SANTA ANNA—HEAVY GOLD ROBBERY.—NEW YORK, Nov. 14.—A letter from Washington states that M. de la Rossa, formerly Mexican Minister to the United States, and Gen. Robles, late Mexican Minister of War, had both been shot near the northern boundary of the State, by order of Santa Anna.

A New Orleans paper received here, states that Robles was at Rome, on his way to New Orleans. He had been banished to Monclovia, in the State of Coahuila, and sent off under military escort, the commandant of which was furnished with sealed orders to shoot Robles on arriving at the spot designated. Having learned the fact whilst proceeding on the journey, he seized an opportunity, and effected his escape.

Two boxes, containing $50,000 worth of gold dust, consigned to the American Exchange Bank, were robbed of their treasure while on the way from California in the last steamer, and filled with stones and shot. No clue has been obtained of the robbers.

FROM NOVA SCOTIA AND NEW BRUNSWICK.—The St. John New Brunswicker says:

On Sunday, 16, there was heavy snow along the river St. John, from Gagetown upwards, and on Monday the sleighing was good in the upper country, the river being full of ice, and the thermometer at Fredericton only 8 degrees above zero. The steamers which left Indian Town on Tuesday morning had not reached Fredericton Wednesday afternoon.—One of these boats succeeded, after struggling several miles through the ice, in getting into Swan Creek, (about twenty miles below Fredericton) and there landed her freight. Yesterday we had snow, succeeded by heavy rain, and a strong southerly gale. The rain extended as far as Fredericton.

In Halifax on Monday and Tuesday, 7th and 8th, the weather was very cold, but on Wednesday became mild, attended with a southerly wind and torrents of rain.

The Halifax Chronicle says:

It is understood that the Cunard line of ocean steamers, fearing competition from the line established by the Canadian government between England and the St. Lawrence in summer, and Portland in winter, have decided upon running a branch from Liverpool to Portland all the year round.

The Bonaventura fall fishing has been a very indifferent one this season, caused by the scarcity of bait and long continuance of dry weather.

The fisheries have been unsuccessful on the coast of P. E. Island the past season.

THE FOREIGN NEWS.—Among the remarks and items of the Boston Advertiser, are the following:

There were considerable movements both of Turkish and Russian troops, but they have no very intelligible bearing upon the prospect of future events. The Paris Moniteur contains an article in its non official part, which assumes it as a settled fact, that the Ottoman has come to the decision that it does not comport with its dignity to make any further attempts at negotiation. There were some rumors of actual hostilities, but they do not seem entitled to much credit. There is an appearance of a sufficient degree of spirit, and of considerable vigor on the part of the Turkish military authorities, but there is little reason to suppose that these troops would be able to present any effectual resistance to the Russian armies should they actually take the field.

The state of financial and commercial affairs was without any material change.—There had been some fluctuation in the stocks, but the price of consols at the last date, was about the same as on the same day of the preceding week. The steamer Argo had arrived from Sydney, Aug. 11, and Port Philip the 24th, bringing 100 passengers and gold of the value of £567,777. The gold mines were said to be as productive as ever, and a new gold field had been discovered on the Goulburn river. The state of commercial affairs was improved.

The Argo came home by way of Cape of Good Hope in 64 days from Melbourne, having made her outward passage from Southampton to that port in the same number of days.

THE CHINCHA ISLAND AFFAIR.—The ship Defiance has sailed from Callao for New York, under command of Capt. McCerran, who was slowly recovering form his wounds. The Peruvian government had paid damage for her detention, but the rest of the matter remained unsettled.

DISAPPEARANCE.—The Bangor Mercury says that Mrs. Page, of Orono, left home to make a call, and has not been back. This was three weeks ago. A letter was received purporting to come from her, in which it was declared to be idle to look for her. She was a young wife, and the mother of a little girl.

The Cheapest and Best.

THE approach of another Winter, with its usual leisure for Farmers and others, induces the publishers again to call attention to the

WEEKLY CHRONICLE,

AN INDEPENDENT FAMILY NEWSPAPER,

At $1 per Annum, in advance.

Being published in connection with the DAILY MORNING CHRONICLE, we are enabled to offer a record of news more thorough than Weeklies generally; and being entirely independent of the "arbitrary sway" of any one of all parties and sects, our record of passing events we trust is clear and impartial.

The coming year seems big with events of great political interest, and a paper having no party bias will be found interesting as a chronicle of the doings of ALL parties.

LOCAL MATTERS

Have a prominent place in the Weekly Chronicle, so that natives of Portsmouth resident at home or abroad, will here find mention of all matters of interest in this vicinity.

The Weekly Chronicle is of medium size, printed on good paper, and contains but few advertisements—giving twenty columns of news and miscellaneous reading each week, at the low price of one dollar a year.

☞ All Postmasters will act as Agents, and any person sending five subscribers, with pay for a year, shall receive a sixth copy gratis.

Persian Parlor Stove.

THIS beautiful article was introduced to the public last season; and as it can instantly be changed from an open to a close Stove, and vice versa, it fully meets the wants of all those who prefer to burn wood only. The exterior never becomes sufficiently heated to burn off the polish, and consequently can be kept bright and clean, with very little trouble. The demand heretofore has been greater than the supply; and those who have been waiting for them, and all wishing a beautiful, unique, and desirable

CHAMBER OR PARLOR STOVE,

will be glad to know that we have in Store all sizes, which we offer on the most accomodating terms. [n14] G. N. CARLETON, 15 Daniel st.

Dr. J. P. Woolley's All-Healing and Strengthening Salve.

THIS salve is a sovereign remedy for lame back, local rheumatism, pain in the side and breast, scalds, burns, freezes, fresh wounds, bruises, sprains, weakness in the joints, crick in the back, old sores, chilblains, swellings, numbness, ague in the face and breast, cracked hands, biles, corns on the feet, and occasional sores of most kinds which the human kind is subject.

This Salve is a rare and valuable combination of warm, stimulant and anodyne ingredients, and will be found superior to any other article of the kind heretofore discovered for the above complaints. There has never appeared a medicine which possesses the penetrating and healing power in so great a degree, while at the same time it cannot by any possibility produce injurious effects. By its action on the skin it moves all obstructions to the insensible perspiration—excites a healthy circulation of the blood—strengthens and invigorates the nerves—gives elasticity to the joints, and imparts strength to any part of the system which may have been weakened by sedentary habits or disease. EVERY MAN HAS HIS FAULT.

BY CHARLES SWAIN.

Take life at it is—'tis folly to sigh,
Or to seek for a treasure, when seeking is vain;
If friendship's a light that goes speedily by,
Regretting its loss is but adding to pain;
Perfection's a thing rarely found upon earth;
We may cherish the hope, and our fancy exalt,
But though we meet many of honor and worth,
We find, before long, every man hath his fault.

If a world we require that will always be true,
We must learn where it is from the fairies or elves;
The errors of friendship are easy to view,
Not so easy the errors that lie in ourselves,
No; perfection's a thing rarely found upon earth;
We may cherish the hope and our fancy exalt,
But though we meet many of honor and worth,
We find, before long, every man hath his fault.

Bay State Stoves.

THE Subscriber would inform his friends and the public, that he has for sale all sizes of this favorite Stove. Having sold them in this city for five years past, they have been thoroughly tested with wood and coal, and are found perfect in every respect.

Those put in operation four and five years since have had no repairs made upon them, and are to all appearance as good as ever. So great is the popularity of these Stoves, that many imitations of it are put into the market, such as the Granite State, Empire State, &c.; but none of them are equal to it in weight or quality of castings, cooking utilities, or economy of fuel.

To all who are in want of a GOOD Cooking Stove, we would say—buy a BAY STATE, and you are sure to get THE BEST STOVE IN THE WORLD.

The subscriber has for sale, also, a variety of other Cook Stoves, Cooking Ranges, Parlor Grates, Office and Parlor Stoves, Funnel, &c. for sale low for cash. E. A. STEVENS,

PROF. ALEX. C. BARRY'S

Tricopherous, or Medicated Compound.

FOR beautifying, curling, preserving, restoring and strengthening the Hair, relieving diseases of the Skin, curing Rheumatic Pains and healing external wounds. Bounded by no geographical lines, the reputation of Barry's Tricopherous pervades the Union. The sales of the article of late years have increased in a ratio that almost exceeds belief. Prof. Barry, after a careful examination of his sales book, finds that the number of bottles delivered to order, in quantities of from half a gross upward, during the year 1852, was within a trifle of 950,000.

It is unnecessary to present at length the evidences of the wonderful properties of the Tricopherous when the public have furnished such an endorsement as this. The cheapness of the article, and the explanations given of its chemical action upon the hair, the scalp, and in all cases of superficial irritation, first recommended it to the attention of the people. This was all that the inventor desired. Prove bottle advertised itself.—The effects of the fluid exceeded expectation. It acted like a charm. The fame of it went out without it. Country dealers in every section of the United States found they must have it; and thus was built up a wholesale trade of an extent hitherto unheard of as regards articles of this kind.—The highest point has not yet been reached, and it is believed that the sales this year will be a million and a half of bottles.

Liberal discount to purchasers by the quantity, and by all the principal Merchants and Druggists throughout the United States, and Canada, Mexico, West Indies, Great Britain, France, &c., and by Weeks & Potter, Brewers, Stevens & Cushing, and Wm. Brown, Boston. d&w6m je22

DR. CONINE'S

SYRUP OF GINSENG & MALVA.

The Great Chinese Remedy.

THIS Medicine depends more upon its own virtues and actual merit than any other ever before offered to the public.

The recipe is from Dr. CONINE, a gentleman who travelled many years in China, and in the Islands of that vicinity where this compound is the most and effectual remedy for the numerous diseases arising from a disordered or debilitated stomach, and

Affections of the Lungs.

But what will particularly attract attention is its astonishing

DISSOLVENT POWER,

By which it at once removes ALL PHLEGM or extraneous matter from the Throat, Stomach or Lungs. It is therefore

Anti-Expectorant,

And from attentions of trial here, it is now offered as NATURE'S KINDEST REMEDY for the removal of Consumption, Whooping Cough, and all Coughs, by precipitating the Phlegm, instead of creating irritation by expectoration.

It is AROMATIC, and increases the general warmth, possessing the exhilarating qualities of the Tea Plant, which is one great cause of its universal popularity in all India beyond the Ganges, where as an

APPETISER

It probably has no equal in the Vegetable Kingdom

AS A DYSPEPTIC REMEDY, IT IS UNEQUALLED.

Its natural, genial warmth keeps the digestive powers ever in proper tone, soothing all irritation of the nerves, &c.

It will prove a more pleasant, safe and effectual Tonic than any Sarsaparilla or other boasted tonic remedy, and even nutritious, as well as exceedingly palatable. It will continue to be prepared in the best manner—no expense being spared—and in quart bottles.

Besides the numberless testimonials which we are receiving daily, of the good effect of the above medicine, we are allowed to refer to several physicians, who are now using the Syrup of Ginseng and Malva with great success.

"A Splendid Remedy."

THE GREAT REMEDY is at last discovered. Consumption can be cured!! and Coughs and Colds, the parents of that fall disease that so often brings woe to the homes of our land, vanish, as if by magic, before this SOVEREIGN REMEDY. This is that which has so long been sought for, and is in full faith offered to the public as a certain cure for Coughs, Colds, Whooping Cough, Croup, Asthma and Consumption, and will in any case where lungs sufficient are left to sustain life, check the ulceration and raise the patient to health. This is not an idle boast, nor is this remedy sent into the market without a thorough trial, but has proved beyond a doubt that what has been asserted CAN BE DONE!

N. B.—BEWARE OF COUNTERFEITS, and observe the following Promissory Note, with the fac simile signature of the proprietor, on every genuine box:

PATENTS.

American and Foreign Office.

AGENCY FOR BUSINESS

With the U. S. Patent Office, Washington,

No. 22 State Street, Boston.

IMPORTANT INFORMATION TO INVENTORS. The Subscriber (late Agent of the U. S. Patent Office, under the Act of 1837) determined to present advantages, in applying for Patents, superior to those offered to inventors by others, has made arrangements whereby on applications prepared and conducted by him, THIRTY DOLLARS (instead of twenty, as paid back by others,) will be remitted by him in case of failure to obtain a patent, and the withdrawal through him within thirty days after the rejection, of the Patent, Specifications, Assignments and all necessary papers and drawings, for procuring patents in this and foreign countries prepared, and advice rendered on legal and scientific matters respecting inventions, and infringement of patents.

Inventors can not only here obtain their specifications on the most reasonable terms, but can here avail themselves of the experience of 20 years' practice, an extensive library of legal and mechanical works, and correct accounts of patents granted in this and other countries: besides being saved a journey to Washington, the usual great delay there, as well as all personal trouble in obtaining their patents. Copies of claims of any patent furnished by remitting one dollar.—Assignments recorded at Washington.

R. H. EDDY,
Solicitor of Patents.

"During the time I occupied the office of Commissioner of Patents, R. H. Eddy, Esq., of Boston, did business at the Patent Office, as Solicitor of Patents. There were few, if any persons acting in that capacity, who had so much business before the Patent Office; and there were none who conducted it with more skill, fidelity, and success. I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the best informed and most skilful Patent Solicitors in the United States, and have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a person more competent and trustworthy, and more capable of putting their application in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office.
EDMUND BURKE,
Late Commissioner of Patents."

NATIONAL EXHIBITION OF HORSES.

We give below some remarks on the recent successful exhibition at Springfield, Mass., for the same reason that the idea of such a show was first projected—for the benefit of farmers and others needing the best horses. We glean from the "Albany County Gentleman" newspaper:

The project of this exhibition had its rise in Springfield, in May last, George M. Atwater, Esq., having first conceived it to be desirable. It was seen, by the originator of the movement, and by those who sympathized with him, that New England and the country generally were indebted to a single State for the most of their desirable valued horses. It was seen that single breeding animals had been the source of almost millions of revenue to the breeders of their respective localities; and that in the majority of the States in the Union it was almost impossible to find a horse, bred at home, that was of high value. Agricultural Societies every where had given all their attention to the breeding of cattle and sheep, the horse claiming little or no attention. Fast horses had been drawn into the hands of jockies, and were ministering to dissipation and vice on the race-course. To arouse the general attention to the importance of raising fine horses every where throughout the country; to instruct the public mind upon this most important interest, and thus through the increased attention paid to breeding, to meet every where at home the demand for good horses—these are the objects that have been labored for in the exhibition.

We doubt whether any other exhibition will arouse public excitement to such a pitch or hold it so long, as a display of horses.—People seem never to tire of watching the motion of a high-spirited animal, and with an increase of speed they gather enthusiasm.

One marked feature of the Exhibition was the grand entry in procession of all the horses. We have never seen a more pleasing spectacle than the seats crowded as they were with ladies, all alike beautiful in the distance, and all animated with the enthusiasm of the occasion. The centre of the ground, within the ring, was thronged with horses and carriages, while the course was completely surrounded with the multitude waiting in breathless expectation for the signal. It is given, and the chaos of horses within the track gradually form in order. Stallions, stately and dignified, conscious of the imposing occasion, move slowly on in their pride and strength—others tread gracefully, keeping time with the enlivening music—others, anxious to see and be seen, eye the crowd on either side and yield with contemptuous disdain to the control of the rein—matched horses, jealous of each other's beauty, seem scarcely to touch the ground—ponies come modestly along in the rear; now all are moving faster—black horses and white, bay and gray, brown and roan, chesnut and cream, are flitting past in rapid and still more rapid succession, constituting a living panorama, unique and beautiful.

We have not time or space to speak of the particular merits of many of the horses on exhibition. The total number of entries was 375.. In looking over the list of entries we are surprised to find that so long a proportion of all the best horses are animals of Morgan family. The pedigrees in many cases cannot be accurately traced to any of the direct descendants of the original Morgans, but the marks of the blood are not to be mistaken. Among the stallions of all ages, there were some 70 of the Morgan family, of which 20 were descendants of Black Hawk. The proportion of breeding mares and geldings is nearly the same. It is only repeating the popular verdict to say that the Morgans and Black Hawks bore off the palm at the National Exhibition, the only fault found with them, being their deficiency in size.

The social and intellectual features of the occasion were very interesting. At a grand caucus held in the mansion of Geo. M. Atwater, Esq., among many others,—Ex-Gov. Colby, of New Hampshire, made a witty speech which provoked continued cheers and laughter from the audience. As an illustration, take the following.

Gentlemen, my friend from Virginia has spoken well—he has spoken well of us, as New England men. I come from the State of New Hampshire. We come in a little behind in the matter of horses; but I would have every other State understand that what we cannot do in actual showing, we will make up in bragging. If we fail on horses, we will bring you up all standing on men. It is a given point throughout the world, that we have raised and sent out the greatest men upon earth. I want it distinctly understood, Mr. President, that we have men at home who can stand up and lick salt off the heads of the tallest whom we have sent out. I am reminded to make one exception; I except Daniel Webster. Now, gentlemen, I want to say that what we lacked in actual showing, I have made up in bragging. It is usually thought something more will come from a man who has been a Govenor, than from a simple citizen. But I want to express this fact: we do not take our largest men for public men. Now, if you will believe it, sir, I got the "ex" on to my name in one short year. I served the State one year, and I came off the track in good health, a constitution as sound as a boy's, and able to go on again; but the people thought it wasn't best.

John G. Saxe, of Burlington, Vt., addressed the following characteristic letter to the committee of Invitation at Springfield:—

Gentlemen—I am very sorry that I shall not be able to partake of your horse-pitality. Being a born-Vermonter—who, you know, is a "perfect Arab" for horses—I claim no exemption from the charge of loving a "charger," and admire a "courser," of coarse. Indeed, I must say, in the manner of Alexander to Diogenes—"If I were not a man, I would be a horse"—an animal which, in utter contempt of the monkey-theory of the naturalists, I hold to be the next of kin to his master. In short, he who does not love a horse, is—an ass, and deserves a perpetual diet of thistles, &c. JOHN G. SAXE.

REPORTING IN ADVANCE.

Some objections are made occasionally, to publishing testimony while a case is on trial: but what shall we say, when the merits of the case are discussed, and the case itself decided by a newspaper, before the court sets?

The Portland "State of Maine," contains the following communication.

The great divorce case of Christopher Robinson vs. Eliza Robinson his wife, which was entered at the October term of the Supreme Court for the county of Cumberland, holden in this city, was continued by agreement of Counsel, from Nov. 3, (the day set for trial) to the January term, 1854. The libellant is a shoe manufacturer of Lynn, and is now residing in this city. He is extensively known as a warm advocate of Peace, Temperance, Anti Slavery, Socialism and Spiritual Manifestations, and formerly published a newspaper in Lynn devoted to some of the above objects. The substance of the libel, is probably without a precedent in the history of divorces, being entirely destitute of a letter, either of a criminal or immoral nature. The respondent lived with the libellant from 1820 to 1848, a period of twenty-eight years, in which time she brought him thirteen children, three sons and ten daughters, of which eight daughters and one son are now living. In Nov., 1848, he compelled her to leave his house, and they have since that time lived separate. She is a lady whose character is above suspicion, and who is highly esteemed and respected by all who know her. The facts that will develope themselves at the coming trial, will be quite interesting to all married people, as some of them will point out a new way for fathers to bring up a family in harmony, peace and love. The respondent is to be ably assisted in her defence, by her five daughters and son, who are all, except one daughter, married and settled in Lynn. The three youngest are with the libellant in this city, and have not been allowed since the separation, to live with or see their mother.

It will be seen that this statement judges the case; and if it is in all respects correctly made, then the divorce ought to be granted in the woman's favor, with liberal alimony.—It may, however, turn out that the man is insane; or that the report is essentially incorrect.

MASSACHUSETTS ELECTION.

On Monday, the full vote of Boston, was, for the Constitution 3228, against it 9023.—For Governor, Washburn, whig 7730; Bishop, democrat 2455; Wilson, free democrat 1403; Wales, hard and liberal, 821; scattering 10. Representatives, 44 whigs.

All the votes for governor, against Washburn, were 4689. This shows that in the city, the objections against the new constitution are stronger than the whig party.

From the State the returns indicate the rejection of the proposed Constitution.

There is no choice of Governor by the people.

The whigs have a larger majority in the House than last year.

The vacancies in the Senate will be filled with whigs—and the election of Washburn as Governor by the legislature is thus certain.

By the evening papers it is made certain that the new constitution is rejected by about 5000 majority. The votes for Governor, as far as reported, are in round numbers, for Washburn 58,000, Bishop, 34,000, Wilson 29,000, Wales 5000, scat. 1000. Representatives, whigs 145, all others 87; vacancies, 189.

THANKSGIVING IN MAINE.

To-morrow, Thursday, (Don't forget the day, dear reader, if you live in Maine,) will be kept throughout the length and breadth of the "Dirigo" State, as the day of Thanksgiving and Turkeys, Pumpkin Pies and Weddings. Our Maine readers, just over the border, know full well that we used to be among those who were sure to keep holidays while we dwelt there, and we are now of the number who believe our New England holidays to be too few, rather than too many. We hold it therefore, to be a privilege to be as thankful to God and as social with man, as possible, on two days of the year at least, and on both sides of the mighty tide which here sweeps between the two states.

We miss, to be sure, on both shores, many an old familiar face that used to greet us and sharpen our countenance on such days, but we deem them only gone before, and not lost; nay, we see them with the mind's eye which weeps not, hovering round, watching over and communing with us, without infirmity, without fatigue, without spot. And thus we not only support the thought of their departure, which were otherwise insurportable,—but we also make pleasant and joyful, that which would otherwise be sad and gloomy;—and thus the whole family circle, broken to the outer vision only, but unbroken and perfect to the inner man, may rejoice in the present, as we look backward without regret and forward without dismay.

We are not alone in our fancy for a double tanksgiving. In testimony of which read the following from the Exeter News-Letter.

We have, in years past, stated our objections to the observance of this festival by contiguous States, upon the same day. Those objections appear to us the more weighty the more we ponder upon them. It has been said, and it is the only argument that has been advanced in favor of the observance of the same day in all parts of the Union, that such an observance would be a "great moral spectacle." In reply to this, we think there are good and sufficient answers which ought to weigh with our governors through all coming time.

First; This festival is not, and never has been, of a purely religious character, and no dictation or request of the governors of the States can make it so. Fifty-two days in the year the whole secular world is called upon to put aside its business, and thus this "spectacle" ought not to be deemed a rarity. The festival is social, both in its objects and ends, and in this light principally has it been observed within our remembrance, which by the by, extends back at least a quarter of a century. Thanksgiving day is the one, above all others in the year, when the wanderers return, when the lost links in the home circle are restored, the time when the sacred old homestead, homely though it be, looms up like a shrine in the eyes of the absent ones, and appears like the Mecca of the Mahometans, to demand a pilgrimage.

Second; Almost every family in New England has some near relative or acquaintance in an adjoining State who would prefer to take the occasion of this festival, above all others, to strengthen the ties of blood or renew the bonds of friendship, by which State is cemented with State and every part of the Union linked together. Every head of a family calculates to be at home on that day, and to keep an open house, for each feels some pride in sitting at his own table and feasting those whom interest or duty has led to seek new homes in other States. But it is obvious that this pleasure cannot be enjoyed when the festival is observed upon the same day in contiguous States.

Lastly; It is not for the interest of the farmers, who furnish the means by which the festival is distinguished from a day of Fasting, to have the same day observed in all the States. Such an observance may equalize prices, but it restricts the farmer to a single market-day for those "hived up sweets" of all his summer. For these and many other equally good reasons, we commend the Governor of Maine for his oddity, and trust that in future years, New Hampshire may reap the advantage of a similar gubernatorial idiosyncrasy.

DEATH OF MR. ATHERTON.

We learn from Manchester, N. H., that Hon. Charles G. Atherton died on Tuesday, at 1 o'clock P. M. Mr. Atherton was a Senator from New Hampshire, in Congress, and being the personal friend and close political associate of President Pierce, he was considered as the prospective leader of the administration party in the Senate, at the approaching session of Congress. His age was about 49. He was a lawyer of eminent standing, a man of wealth, and of the highest political prospects; one whom many honored and some might envy: but though, "in the morning he is like grass that groweth up—in the evening it is cut down and withereth." A striking instance of the instability of all earthly hopes and prospects.

LIQUOR LAW DECISIONS.—The Salem Observer states that at the law term of the Supreme Court, held in that city last week, a number of cases arising under the Liquor Law were decided by the full bench, and in all, the exceptions were overruled, and motions for arrest of judgment denied. A new trial was granted in but one case, in which the point reserved had nothing to do with the peculiar features of the law.

The Boston Chronicle says, in relation to the above statements, that they convey an erroneous impressions,—and adds:

The reader is led to suppose that the decision sustains the Maine Liquor Law, when in fact it has nothing whatever to do with that statute; the complaints and indictments were all made under the old law for retailing liquor by the glass. No decision has been given upon the Maine Law by the Supreme Court, and none will be given, as we learn from the best authority, until January. The Observer says in conclusion:—"The special points decided we are unable to give at present, but will endeavor to obtain them in a week or two, and present them to our readers." When obtained, they will be found to verify what we have said.

We commonly take the Boston Chronicle as the best authority on such questions. But why call the Massachusetts Law the Maine Law? There are many points of difference; some quite important.

OUTRAGEOUS AND DASTARDLY ATTACK.—Friday evening, at a little before nine o'clock, (says the Portland Advertiser,) as Mr. Rufus Tukey and wife were sitting in a front room of their house, on Congress street, they were startled by a crashing of one of the windows, as some projectile came through the glass, and struck Mrs. Tukey with great violence. The lady came very near fainting; but when she had recovered, it was observed that her dress was besmeared and entirely ruined by Mustang Liniment. The carpet was also discovered to be daubed, and on the floor was found a bottle that contained the stuff, and which proved to be the projectile aimed at Mrs. Tukey. The motive for the outrage seems to be a mystery, not yet solved.

DOINGS OF THE VERMONT LEGISLATURE.—On the 7th inst., the Vermont House of Representatives, which by the way is an assembly of undoubted taste and refinement, being desirous to calm their troubled souls after the excitement of debate, resolved to invite the Baker family to sing before them.—They accordingly voted themselves a recess, and the Baker family stepped in and sang three songs.

We admire their taste; and advise Congress to call in the Hutchinsons, soon after their session commences, and employ them, as Saul employed David to drive away the evil spirits with his harp. If they don't know what songs will suit, we would mention "the Grave of Bonaparte," and "Clear the Track for Emancipation."

A HUNDRED MILES RACE—The New York Herald of Thursday informs us that the 100 mile race against time, came off, (the paper don't say where, but we suppose on a race course near New York) on Saturday last, when the horse, a large bay gelding belonging to Mr. C. Coster, was driven in a light sulkey 100 miles, in 8 hours, 55 minutes, 53 seconds.

At the end he did not appear to be greatly distressed; but now that the feat has been accomplished, and the horse surviving, we hope never to record the like again.

The horse was never touched with a whip during the performance, but seemed anxious to get along faster from beginning to the end.

He was stopped and sponged about a dozen times. He was driven by two men who took turns five or six times.

BARBEROUS DOINGS.—We perceive by the Eastern Argus, that the hair dressers of Portland have held a great meeting, where the president of the day made an eloquent speech, historical, poetic, humorous and declamatory, the gist of which is, that they cannot afford to shave for a fourpence when a beefsteak costs ninepence, and butter a price too bad to be mentioned. At the end of the speech, it was unanimously resolved, that on and after the 17th of November (Thanksgiving Day) the scale of prices shall be established as follows: Shaving, 10cts.; Hair Cutting, 15cts.; Hair Curling, 25cts; Champooing, 15cts. They also ordered their doings, and the speech, to be published in the Argus and Advertiser.

The new American twenty-five cent pieces have been extensively counterfeited, and large numbers of the counterfeits are in circulation.

MECHANICS' LYCEUM.—At the Temple last evening, there was a very large and pleasant audience, that really did one's eyes good to look upon. The lecturer was Hon. Josiah Quincy, jr., of Boston, who gave us a dissertation on the prejudices existing between different parts of our Union, and some of the Causes which produced them. The moral tone of the lecture in the main was good, and its object commendable, viz: to abate the prejudices.

Some parts of it were quite amusing; others really pathetic and touching; and others still irrelevant and trifling. As a performance it fell quite below the same lecturer's discourse on the Mormons which he gave here last winter. It contains the materiel for a fine lecture, and should be re-cast for future use elsewhere.

DONATION.—The existence of a Mercantile Library Association here is beginning to be known, and the advantages to be derived from such an organization, appreciated. In addition to the numerous books received by the officers from various citizens, on Monday last the treasurer of the society received a short note from one of our most wealthy citizens, expressing his great interest in such an institution, as calculated to improve the young men of our city, and enclosing a check for $25, for the use of the society. Such liberality is worthy of note, and should be imitated by others who may be able to assist in the good work.

☞ Choice seats for the Concert on Friday evening by the Germania Musical Society are subscribed for rapidly at Mr. Preston's Apothecary store. Call at once or you will lose your chance.

For the Morning Chronicle.

Doubtless many friends of temperance and good morals in this community, have been much gratified to see in the Chronicle of yesterday, the Circular addressed by the clergymen of Concord to the ministers and churches of all denominations in this State. Because, if the effort of these gentlemen shall be seconded by those to whom the circular is addressed, an incalculable amount of good must be the result, unless the Church has entirely lost its power and rightful moral influence.

The issuing of such a document as the one referred to, must also produce feelings the most sad in every christian heart.

Can it be possible that in the year of Grace 1853, such a state of apathy exists in any part of Christendom, especially in New England, as renders it necessary to call on the professed servants of Jesus Christ to unite their efforts and prayers for the removal of the curse of intemperance, that fruitful source of so large a portion of the sin and misery which now so extensively prevail? Alas! "How is the gold become dim! how is the most fine gold changed!"

May every minister and church-member prayerfully ponder this lamentable state of things, and be led to bring forth fruits meet for repentance. Then shall be seen, the awful evil of drunkenness rapidly disappearing from our world, and the peacable fruits of righteousness everywhere abounding to the glory of the Great Head of the church, and the good of man. *

ROCKINGHAM FAIR.—The News Letter says:—The Annual Meeting of the Rockingham Fair, was held at the Lecture Room in Exeter, on the 9th inst. The meeting was called to order by the President, and the following officers elected for the ensuing year.

Henry F. French, President.

Moses Eaton, jr.
James Pickering,
David Carrier,
Jacob T. Brown. } Vice Pres'ts.

Joseph T. Gilman, Secretary.
Retire H. Parker, Treasurer.

WHIG STATE CONVENTION.

The Whig State Convention for the nomination of a candidate for Governor, Railroad Commissioner, and for the transaction of any other business such as usually comes before this Convention, was holden at Concord on Tuesday. It was quite a full Convention—spirited and harmonious. Ichabod Goodwin, Esq., of this city, presided. Hon. James Bell, of Gilford, was nominated for Governor, by acclamation, and William Whittle, Esq., of Manchester, for Railroad Commissioner.

The following gentlemen were elected State Central Committee for the ensuing year:

Joseph C. Abbott of Manchester; Aaron P. Hughes, Nashua; I. B. Claggett, Portsmouth; Ephraim Hutchings, Concord; A. H. Cragin, Lebanon; J. B. Wentworth, Somersworth; F. A. Faulkner, Keene; J. B. Flagg, Exeter; Timothy Varney, Sandwich; Jacob Betton, Lancaster; J. H. Thompson, Holderness; R. C. Stevens, Meredith.

U. S. CIRCUIT COURT, BOSTON.—Salmon Falls Manufacturing Co. vs. William W. Goddard.—This cause was settled by agreement of parties. It was brought to recover the price of a large quantity of goods alleged to have been sold by the plaintiffs to the defendant, and destroyed by fire at the depot of the Boston and Maine Railroad.

The question in controversy was as to the ownership of the property at the time of the fire. The action is now settled by an acceptance on the part of the corporation of an offer made by Mr. Goddard more than two years ago, and before any trial—which was, to divide the loss with exact equality.

Any settlement by compromise, is better than protracted litigation. And no class of men are more apt to make fair offers in such cases, than good liberal minded merchants.

The Blacksmiths strike noticed in our paper a week or two since, subsequently spread to the towns of Wakefield, Farmington and Milton, in addition to those towns previously mentioned. Bills embracing a scale of prices, with the individuals names attached are posted. Mechanics of almost every class are asking more for their labor, not through any combination on their part, but by a sort of tacit agreement, induced as we suppose by the extreme high prices of articles of consumption.—Dover Gaz.

SUDDEN DEATH.—Samuel Taylor of Bride Hill, Hampton, N. H., died very suddenly on Monday while sitting in his chair. He was to all appearances well a few minutes before his death, but expired instantly.

LATEST FOREIGN NEWS.

By the Baltic at New York, Liverpool dates are brought to Nov. 2, at noon.

The Turkish war is not yet commenced, so far as actual fighting is concerned,—but the armies are in motion for fighting.

The grain, provision, cotton and stock markets at Liverpool, were all rather quiet, and prices had not varied much in the last three days.

The London Times of the 2d of Nov. states that there is no reason to doubt that on the 27th of October 3000 Turkish infantry, and 2400 cavalry crossed the Danube and occupied Kalafat; and that a large number of troops were still passing over in barges when the news was despatched. The Russians were gathering on the point of attack, and it was expected that a collision would take place on the 28th. For the moment there is an end of notes and diplomatic conferences.

Omar Pacha's movement appears to be the extremity of rashness; and he is probably forced to move in order to preserve the authority of his relations over the troops, and after the ferocity of the hostile nations have been satisfied by the sanguinary offering of a useless and objectless battle, it may perhaps be possible to reassert the claims of justice and humanity; whatever may be the result of this contest, it cannot alter the duty of the Western powers in this emergency. Whether Omar Pasha be successful or be driven back, we are equally bound to maintain the rights of Turkey; and let the war go as it will, England and France can never permit Russia to reap the fruits of her duplicity and violence. It will not discharge France and ourselves from the duty of preventing these fine countries from falling under the heavy yoke and grasping ambition of the Czar. Victors or vanquished, the Turks have still the same rights and claims on the Western powers; and we do not doubt, (continues the Times) that the same language will be held by them, whether the first operation of the war shall terminate in victory or defeat to our allies.

We sincerely trust that the efforts which will no doubt, be employed to light from this conflagration the flames of civil discord throughout Europe, may fail of success; and that diplomacy may extinguish the fire before it be the means of setting the Continent in a blaze. At any rate we shall have the satisfaction of knowing that no efforts on our part have been wanting to stem the tide of hostile passions; and if we are forced at last to enter the conflict ourselves, it will only be after having used every conceivable argument to avoid it.

The other morning papers have a despatch from Simlin, received in Paris, stating that 20,000 Turks crossed the Danube on the 28th Oct., near Widdin, and occupied Kalafat, which had been evacuated by the Russians.—No encounter took place.

INDIA AND CHINA.—The overland mail from India and China had arrived, bringing dates from Calcutta to Sept. 10th.

The Bombay times says that the subjugation of Burmah is far from complete, and the British troops will be compelled to advance on Ava.

The news from Amoy is brought up to the 1st of September.

The long threatened attack by the Imperialists commenced on the 25th of August, but the patriots were still in possession of the town.

On the 25th of August the Imperialists effected a coup de main at Amoy, capturing, it is said, a body of 400 patriots, the majority of whom were beheaded instantly; subsequently the Insurgents captured between 30 and 40 of the Imperialists, who were summarily beheaded.

Intelligence has also been received from the wreck of a British ship, supposed to be the Lady Evelyn, and a fearful sacrafice of life.—She was commanded by Capt. McLeland, and was owned in Liverpool. The catastrophe is reported to have occurred on the night of the 20th of July, on one of the cluster of islands known as the Typonsing, in the Eastern or China Sea, situated some 14 miles west of Loo Choo: she quickly went to pieces and out of 290 souls who were on board, only six sailors and 20 Chinamen were saved. The advices furnish no further intelligence.

PHILADELPHIA, November 11.—From Porto Cabello.—An arrival from Porto Cabello, with dates to the 26 of October, reports the coffee crop as very promising. Hides were in great demand at 12 3-4 a 13c. The treasury was completely exhausted.

Rev. Mr. Rittenhouse, while officiating at the consecration of a Church at Washingtonville, Pa., this morning, suddenly fell dead.

The Wilkesbarre Slave Case.—The Grand Jury of Wilkesbarre have found a true bill against the United States Marshall, and Deputies Wynkoop and Cropman, for attempting the arrest of the slave Bill, a short time since.

PAINFUL ACCIDENT.—A boy employed in the press room of the office of the Pennsylvania Inquirer, named Thomas Bardley, met with a painful accident. He had a piece of twine tied around one of his thumbs, and was amusing himself by throwing the other end of the string over a shaft which was revolving. The twine finally became entangled in the machinery, and was jerked by it with such force as to take off the thumb, and drag out a sinew leading to the elbow. The sufferer was admitted to the hospital.—Phila. Bulletin.

SUDDEN DEATH.—Rev. Seth Alden, of Lincoln, formerly of Brookfield and Southboro' in this county, officiated in the Unitarian Church in Westborough, yesterday, and while reading the first hymn in the afternoon service, dropped down suddenly and instantly expired. He was 50 years of age. It is a remarkable coincidence that Rev. Samuel Ripley, who preceded Mr. Alden at Lincoln, also died instantly, from an affection of the heart.—Worcester Spy, 14th.

SAD DEATH.—Samuel J. Bell, a member of the Freshman Class in Harvard College, died on Thursday evening last of typhoid fever. He was a son of Hon. Luther A. Bell, of Somerville.

OHIO.—The valuation of Ohio, just completed, is $800,000,000. In 1847 it was $475,000,000.

Persian Parlor Stove.

THIS beautiful article was introduced to the public last season; and as it can instantly be changed from an open to a close Stove, and vice versa, it fully meets the wants of all those who prefer to burn wood only. The exterior never becomes sufficiently heated to burn off the polish, and consequently can be kept bright and clean, with very little trouble. The demand heretofore has been greater than the supply; and those who have been waiting for them, and all wishing a beautiful, unique, and desirable

CHAMBER OR PARLOR STOVE,

will be glad to know that we have in Store all sizes, which we offer on the most accomodating terms. [n14] G. N. CARLETON, 15 Daniel st.

Dr. J. P. Woolley's All-Healing and Strengthening Salve.

THIS salve is a sovereign remedy for lame back, local rheumatism, pain in the side and breast, scalds, burns, freezes, fresh wounds, bruises, sprains, weakness in the joints, crick in the back, old sores, chilblains, swellings, numbness, ague in the face and breast, cracked hands, biles, corns on the feet, and occasional sores of most kinds which the human kind is subject.

This Salve is a rare and valuable combination of warm, stimulant and anodyne ingredients, and will be found far superior to any other article of the kind heretofore discovered for the above complaints. There has never appeared a medicine which possesses the penetrating and healing power in so great a degree, while at the same time it cannot by any possibility produce injurious effects. By its action on the skin it moves all obstructions to the insensible perspiration—excites a healthy circulation of the blood—strengthens and invigorates the nerves—gives elasticity to the joints, and imparts strength to any part of the system which may have been weakened by sedentary habits or disease. A BIRTH DAY DEED.— few weeks since, Wm. Burroughs, son of Wm. H. Burroughs, of the Irving House, read "Hot Corn" in the Tribune, and went to visit the Five Points House of Industry, where he saw a very fine little boy, in whose history he became interested. This boy was the son of a widow, who was left by the sudden death of her husband, sick and destitute, alone in the world, without any means of subsistence. She came so near starvation as to induce partial insanity, in which state she was found by the Superintendent and brought to the House of Industry. "Mr. Pease," said William, I should like to do something for Johnny. Here is a five dollar bill that my father gave me for spending money. I will give that now, and I intend to do something more before I go back to school. On Friday he came again, with a joyful smile upon his face, and very glad to see his beautiful, bright eyed little protege.

"Mr. Pease, this is my birth day. I am thirteen years of age. I told you that I should do something more for Johnny: I have asked a few of my friends to assist me, and here is twenty dollars and fifty cents, for my birthday offering. I shall go away to school to-morrow, but I shall not forget this poor boy, and I hope some charitable heart will be touched to help me raise enough to give him as good an education as I hope to have myself. Good bye, Mr. Pease, Good bye, Johnny; be a good boy, and you shall never starve again while I have food."

Some "hearts were touched" among those who witnessed this good deed of a noble boy. More hearts will be touched in those who read this incident.

Who will go and do likewise?—N. Y. Tribune.

The Greek Church, in whose behalf the Czar is now so conspicuously zealous, numbers about 70,000,000 souls, under rather less than three thousand bishops.

Some one in Rhode Island has been raising eighty-one bushels of corn (shelled corn) to the acre. Stand aside for the little State.

Bay State Stoves.

THE Subscriber would inform his friends and the public, that he has for sale all sizes of this favorite Stove. Having sold them in this city for five years past, they have been thoroughly tested with wood and coal, and are found perfect in every respect.

There put in operation four and five years since have had no repairs made upon them, and are to all appearance as good as ever. So great is the popularity of these Stoves, that many imitations of it are put into the market, such as the Granite State, Empire State, &c.; but none of them are equal to it in weight or quality of castings, cooking facilities, or economy of fuel.

To all who are in want of a GOOD Cooking Stove, we would say—buy a BAY STATE, and you are sure to get THE BEST STOVE IN THE WORLD.

The subscriber has for sale, also, a variety of other Cook Stoves, Cooking Ranges, Parlor Grates, Office and Parlor Stoves, Tunnel, &c. for sale low for cash. E. A. STEVENS,

PROF. ALEX. C. BARRY'S

Tricopherous, or Medicated Compound.

FOR beautifying, curling, preserving, restoring and strengthening the Hair, relieving diseases of the Skin, curing Rheumatic Pains and healing external wounds. Rounded by no geographical lines, the reputation of Barry's Tricopherous pervades the Union. The sales of the article of late years have increased in a ratio that almost exceeds belief. Prof. Barry, after a careful examination of his sales book, finds that the number of bottles delivered to order, in quantities of from half a gross upward, during the year 1852, was within a trifle of 800,000.

It is unnecessary to present at length the evidences of the wonderful properties of the Tricopherous when the public have furnished such an endorsement as this. The cheapness of the article, and the explanations given of its chemical action upon the hair, the scalp, and in all cases of superficial irritation, first recommended it to the attention of the people. This was all that the inventor desired. Every bottle advertised itself.—The effects of the first bottle exceeded expectation. It acted like a charm. The ladies would not be without it. Country dealers in every section of the United States found they must have it; and thus was built up a wholesale trade of an extent hitherto unheard of as regards articles of this kind.—The highest point has not yet been reached, and it is believed that the sales this year will be a million and a half of bottles.

Liberal discount to purchasers by the quantity, and by all the principal Merchants and Druggists throughout the United States, and Canada, Mexico, West Indies, Great Britain, France, &c., and by Weeks & Potter, Brewers, Stevens & Cushing, and Wm. Brown, Boston. d&w6m je22*

DR. CONINE'S

SYRUP OF GINSENG & MALVA.

The Great Chinese Remedy.

THIS Medicine depends more upon its own virtues and actual merit than any other ever before offered to the public.

The recipe is from Dr. CONINE, a gentleman who travelled many years in China, and in the islands of that vicinity, where this compound is the potent and effectual remedy for the numerous diseases arising from a disordered or debilitated stomach, and

Affections of the Lungs.

But what will particularly attract attention is its astonishing

DISSOLVENT POWER.

By which it at once removes ALL PHLEGM or extraneous matter from the Throat, Stomach or Lungs. It is therefore

Anti-Expectorant.

And from attentions of trial here, it is now offered as NATURE'S KINDEST REMEDY for the removal of Consumption, Whooping Cough, and all Coughs, by precipitating the Phlegm, instead of creating irritation by expectoration.

It is AROMATIC, and increases the general warmth, possessing the exhilarating qualities of the Tea Plant, which is one great cause of its universal popularity in all India beyond the Ganges, where as an

APPETISER

It probably has no equal in the Vegetable Kingdom

AS A DYSPEPTIC REMEDY, IT IS UNEQUALLED.

Its natural, genial warmth keeps the digestive powers ever in proper tone, soothing all irritation of the nerves, &c.

It will prove a more pleasant, safe and effectual Tonic than any Sarsaparilla or other boasted tonic remedy, and even nutritious, as well as exceedingly palatable. It will continue to be prepared in the best manner—no expense being spared—and in quart bottles.

Besides the numberless testimonials which we are receiving daily, of the good effect of the above medicine, we are allowed to refer to several physicians, who are now using the Syrup of Ginseng and Malva with great success.

"A Splendid Remedy."

THE GREAT REMEDY is at last discovered. Consumption can be cured!! and Coughs and Colds, the parents of that fell disease that so often brings woe to the homes of our land, vanish, as if by magic, before this SOVEREIGN REMEDY. This is that which has so long been sought for, and is in full faith offered to the public as a certain cure for Coughs, Colds, Whooping Cough, Croup, Asthma and Consumption, and will in any case where lungs sufficient are left to sustain life, check the ulceration and raise the patient to health. This is not an idle boast, nor is this remedy sent into the market without a thorough trial, but has proved beyond a doubt that what has been asserted CAN BE DONE!

MONKEY HUNTING IN S. AMERICA.

From the "Fayetville (Arks.) Independent."

[The following is from an old acquaintance who has not given an item of his whereabouts for nearly four years. It was not intended for publication, but the writer is a utilitarian, and would not object to any step that would afford information to mankind.]

RIO PAN DE MAIZ, Colombia, South America, April 23, 1853.

My Dear old Friend.—I am now in the midst of a heavy speculation in these tropical wilds. My camp is on a small tributary of the Oronoco river, about three hundred miles from the sea coast. I have been here about three years, and suppose that my old mother thinks I am dead, for I have not written her since I was at Panama in 49, and then I was on my way to California, and wrote her to that effect. When I was at Panama I got acquainted with a Frenchman, a gentleman from Paris, who led me to embark in my present enterprise by repeated conversations.

The weather is hot here almost the whole year round. We have a very long rainy season, but it is hot in the hardest rains. My hut is covered with flags and plantain leaves about three feet thick. It is thoroughly water-proof, and in the rainy season I lie up like a bear, but in place of sucking my paw I suck a smattering of the Spanish language from Cubi's Spanish Grammar, and Neuman and Barrett's dictionary. There are a great many vile tribes of Indians in the country that talk a kind of bastard Spanish, which is the cause of my studying Spanish in the winter. Well, the great speculation I am in. What do you think it is? Guess! I am engaged in monkey hunting. This may seem strange, when you recollect how sobersided I used to be. I am sobersided yet. I never forget my dignity. And I hunt monkeys with all the gravity of moral and gentlemanly character. Not being surrounded with suitable companions, or a population of any kind that is worthy of close observation, I have turned my attention to other things. There being no worthy human nature to study, I study monkey nature, and you would be astonished, my dear old friend, to see how nearly our race approximates in numberless instances to that animal.

But before proceeding further, I ought perhaps to give you the reason why I am engaged at my present occupation. Men do not hunt monkeys for nothing. Least of all, do I. The French gentlemen whom I have just mentioned led me into a secret that determined me in the matter. He assured me that nine-tenths of the splendid kid gloves worn by the gay deceivers and killing belles of the enlightened world were made of pure monkey hide. I need not consume space by informing you of the means I took to determine the truth of his assertion. But I was satisfied, and here I am daily destroying the link that connects us with the great animal kingdom.

I get from twenty to forty cents for every monkey hide I deliver to Carreroy Hermanano, at the city of Cumana, on the coast. I make only one trip a year with my peltries, and that is just before the rainy season sets in. I have three pack mules that carry in all three thousand skins. Each skin averages about a quarter of a pound. I limit myself to twelve monkeys a day. I could kill ten times that many were I disposed, but I cannot take care of the hides of more. You have no idea of the immense number of the animals that abound in the woods. I really believe I have seen a thousand upon one tree. They not only cover the limbs, but hang tail twined with tail, from the topmost branches to the ground. Early of a morning, nature seems one continued scream and chattering, and you could conceive that nought else was in existence.

Were I with you, how delightfully we could while away the hours with monkey tales. I have had some thrilling adventures. Monkeys sometimes fight like men. About a week ago, however, I saw a novel battle. Two vigorous young chaps seized each others tails with their teeth, and chawed away till they were both left tailless. Once my camp was destroyed whilst I was on an expedition. The little rascals tore the cover off my hut and ate up every morsel of provisions I had in store. I got back just as I saw one fellow take a bite off a chunk of fire. They all ran off as I approached, and carried every rag of clothing I possessed, leaving me without a change of clothing. I was forced to make a trip to Cumana for supplies.

The methods I use to get hold of monkeys are many. I sometimes shoot them with a "small Deringer," as Tom used to say. But this is only when they are shy. I have several gins and traps that would do credit to the ingenuity of a Yankee. In times of great plenty I club them. But I need not specify the various contrivances for capturing them.

My heart almost fails me sometimes. You cannot conceive how strongly the thought comes uppermost to my mind that these creatures are human. My hand trembles, and I am almost unnerved when I strike one that most markedly resembles an old friend. Yesterday I slew one that for all the world looked like old Jimmy ——, that used to live over the river. I have been reminded of gay scenes and happy times in watching them. I could tell you of many acts of natural and inimitable politeness I have seen them perform; and a kind of mist comes over my eyes when I see a beautiful she monkey that recalls one I fondly loved in Kentucky. My hand has never been raised against that monkey. She ought to be dressed.

How long I shall continue this business, I cannot say. I hope to make enough at it before I quit to render me independent. Then I shall return, and, like Othello, woo and win my Desdemona by telling her father monkey tales, whilst she sits listening, with a heart all innocent, and drinking in the renowned adventures of her future lord.

I know, my dear old friend, a grin grabs the mouth of every one at the mention of a monkey. But I never see anything ludicrous about them. They are certainly useful in their place. They are sought most eagerly by the kid glove makers of the French capital. Doubtless there is not a young lady in all the Union that makes pretensions to fashion that does not boast the glories of a monkey. She may be unconscious of it. But so sure as she exhibits upon her taper fingers, a superfine article of kid glove, so surely is she adorned with the beautiful that is extracted from the monkey. And when a too happy swain receives a glove from the hand of his lady-love, in token of his favor in her eyes, as he presses the memento to his heart, he can be more highly exalted in his happiness, by the thought that he is folding a monkey there!

OLIVER SCOTT.

FIRE INQUESTS.—The New York Mirror is still urging on the importance of a more thorough investigation into the causes of fire, and the frauds committed on insurance companies, by the cunning and artful in our large cities. In Thursday's paper the editor says:

We believe there is a specimen of the genus homo now flourishing somewhat conspicuously in this city, whose clothes were one day found upon the banks of the river Thames, and whose reputed wife reported him dead, and drew £10,000 to console her for his loss from a Life Insurance Office in London. After the lapse of a decent period, the fortunate defunct "turned up" here in New York, where the partner of his joys soon joined him with a pocket full of sovereigns, to commence their new career in another and a better world! We believe, also, that there are men trying to do business in New York who have had the misfortune to be burnt out in almost every city in the Union, and who are particularly "spotted" by Fire Insurance Companies all over the country. It is to protect the public from this class of insurance swindlers that we have urged the necessity of creating some stringent law for the prevention and punishment of their crimes.

A BROAD HINT.—The Rev. Mr. Johnson was one of those rough, but quaint preachers of a former generation, who was fond of visiting and good living. While seated at the table of a good lady in a neighboring parish, she asked him if he took milk in his tea. "Yes, marm, when I can't get cream!" was the ready reply.

The above, from a correspondent, reminds us of an anecdote of another clergyman, who was a bit of a humorist. He once took tea with a lady of his parish, who prided herself much upon her nice bread, and was also addicted to the common trick of depreciating her viands to her guests. As she passed the nice warm biscuit to the reverend gentleman she said, "they were not very good," she was "almost ashamed to offer them," &c. The minister took one, looked at it rather dubiously, and replied, "They are not so good as they might be!" The plate was instantly withdrawn, and with heightened color, the lady exclaimed, "They are good enough for you." Nothing further was said about the biscuit.

THURSDAY, NOV. 17, 1853.

STORM AND FLOOD.

The rain storm and flood of last Sunday were extensive and destructive to a degree far greater than we supposed. To be sure we knew that the afternoon was rainy and very dark, so that one church in this city was dismissed without a sermon, and another had the services closed without being completed; and that in Boston some ministers read by gas lights, and others did not read at all. But we did not dream of what our neighbors east and west were suffering.

From Bangor we learn that there is the greatest freshet in the Penobscot River known for twenty years. The boom at Veazie has broken, and a large number of logs have floated past Bangor. A dam has been carried away at Kenduskeag, and that village has been badly flooded. A teamster named Day, of Dover, was drowned in the road at Kenduskeag, by the overflow. The mills and dams on the river stand firmly as yet, though they are being hard pressed.

In Berkshire and other western counties of Massachusetts, it was much more severe, and the Springfield Republican says:—

The rain on Sunday was so powerful and severe in Berkshire, that the streams were swollen and the roads rendered so heavy that our expresses were only successful in collecting returns by the most persevering exertions and arduous labors. Several of the streams were forded by our express teams, and extra relays of horses were found necessary. Arrangements were made for every town, but messengers for New Marlborough and Monterey failed to connect as arranged.

The vote was also very light in many of the towns, in consequence of the water being so high that many of the voters could not get to the polls. The "oldest inhabitant" avers that the Housatonic river has not been so high as on Monday but once before since the memory of man.

The amount of rain that fell in this city, by the rain gauge at the U. S. Armory, was two and eight tenths inches.

At Birmingham, Conn. there was an affecting loss of life, as appears from a letter of Monday, of which the following is an extract.

Last night was the most destructive and awful night ever witnessed in the valley of the Naugatuck. During Sunday afternoon, the water in both the Housatonic and Naugatuck rose rapidly, and before night came on, small buildings were floating down the Housatonic river; among which was a hat shop, from which some twenty hats were taken at this place by approaching it with a boat. The river was filled with floating timber, broken bridges, &c. Downes bridge, crossing the Housatonic river some seven miles above this place, and Zoar bridge, about one mile farther up, are both gone. There has also passed a covered bridge, which undoubtedly is Bennett's bridge, some 14 miles above this place. Whether any places above that are gone, we are not able to say, though it is quite probable, for the hat shop named must have come from as far up as Babbit's bridge, some twenty four or five miles above here. The extent of the damage up the Housatonic is not known, as no messenger has come from above Zoar bridge. Upon the Naugatuck the loss and destruction of life and property we fear is great. The New bridge at Beacon dam, a few miles below Naugatuck, Pines bridge, still lower down the stream, the Railroad bridge at Seymour, the New bridge at Ansonia, and the Old bridge at Derby are all gone; and with the bridge at Ansonia several lives are lost. The bridge at Ansonia on the west side of the river abutted into high ground, and all on that side were safe, while through the village of Ansonia, and between the houses and the east end of the bridge, the water was running rapidly, and at great depth; people were crossing from the western shore on the bridge to see the rise of water around the houses in Ansonia; some had gained the eastern abutment, and others were crossing, when suddenly the centre pier gave way, the bridge broke and fell, and all then upon it were thrown into the stream, and all must have perished; several caught upon the bushes that stand upon the eastern shore of the river proper, a distance of forty rods below where the bridge stood, and there shrieked for help. It was some time before they were discovered, but there was no boat there to aid them, and the probabilities were that no boat in this vicinity could reach them.

On some citizens driving there and ascertaing the state of affairs, they immediately ran their horses for Birmingham, where a boat was instantly loaded, and horses driven at the top of their speed to the scene, a distance of some two miles. During all this time their shrieks for help were heart-rending. The boat was immediately manned, and four brave fellows, at the imminent risk of their lives, pushed into the maddened stream, among floating trees, bridges, and timber. All was excitement as we watched the light in the boat darting down the stream like an arrow, and for a moment it seemed that they too must be lost. Soon we saw they had crossed the current, and then the air was rent with shouts of joy, for we thought at least the boatmen were safe, and they would yet rescue the drowning. They landed at the eastern abutment, and found some ten or fifteen persons there hemmed in by a flood of water and the heavy walls of the abutment every few moments falling. As soon as the water could be cleared from the boat, they again started for the relief of those who were still clinging to the bushes, but before they could reach the place, tired nature had yielded, or they had been swept from their grasp by floating timber, and were no more. For some two hours and a half they had shrieked for help, and none could save them, although they were not ten rods from us.

There were four supposed to be upon the bridge, and there may have been many more; it is impossible to tell who is gone, as there is no communication between the two shores of the river. Miss Georgiana Bartholomew, a young lady aged 18 years, is known to be one, and her shriek and wail for help was heart rending, and there stood her poor mother listening to each appeal, but powerless to help. Mrs. Bartholomew gave me the names of Charles Victory, John Allen, about 19 years of age, and Andrew Finch, a boy aged about 13 years, boarders in her family, who were with her daughter on the bridge, and undoubtedly are drowned. Those who witnessed the awful scenes of last night at this place, can well picture to their minds the frightful and heart-rending scene at Niagara. Oh, that I may never again hear such an appeal for help, without power to render assistance.

No estimate of the damage to the property can go given.

Mr. Charles Storrs, of Seymour, was in his cellar during the freshet on Sunday night, with a camphene lamp, and the fluid in it some way became ignited, causing an explosion, which enveloped him in the flames.—The freshet had partly filled the cellar with water, into which he threw himself and extinguished the flames.

MASSACHUSETTS.—The returns given in yesterday's Chronicle, of the late election, are near enough to the mark for all practical purposes. It may be possible for the coalition to retrieve the House, but it is to the last degree improbable. The Constitutional question is settled as a finality. There is in the present constitution, a good provision for making amendments, one at a time.

In regard to the liquor law, the Boston Chronicle says, "unless we much mistake, a repeal legislature has been chosen, or at least a sufficient number of Liberals have been elected, to render such a result certain, with but ordinary effort on the part of the opponents of the Maine Law. We begin with fifty good men and true from Suffolk, who are sustained by a very large portion of the remaining one hundred and eighty or ninety men, already chosen to the Senate and House, if our letters and other sources of information are reliable.

"The Senate stands 12 for repeal, and 9 for the law:—and if Liberals do their duty at the elections yet to come, a House of the same cast can be secured beyond all peradventure. The city of Lowell will be unrepresented, before she will send ten fanatics to the popular branch."

We rely on the Boston Chronicle's statements of facts, as implicitly as those of any paper; but when we come to prophecies, where the wish may possibly be father to the thought,—we hesitate to believe quite so much. We can wait patiently till the legislature meets, and then we shall see how it is.

NOVELTY IN BUSINESS.—A friend, who arrived from England in the last steamer, informs us that his house at Birmingham had received from a pen maker at New York, an order for fifty working girls. The order was executed in less than one week, and passages were secured for the whole party at £6 per girl.—Boston Transcript.

Why cannot somebody get up an indignation meeting, at the idea of importing white girls into New York at $40 a head? Call them coolies, or white slaves, or some other deplorable name, and some sympathy may be got up; but in good truth the forty English girls will have improved their condition, and are in the fair line of promotion to become American matrons—though they are now redemptioners, and will be, in one sense, sold to pay their passage, as hundreds or thousands were in the early days of our country's settlement.

THE FASTEST HORSE OF THE WORLD DEAD.—The bay gelding, who performed on Saturday last the most remarkable feat of speed and bottom ever recorded in the history of the turf, died on Saturday night. After he had performed that unprecedented race against time, going 100 miles in 8 hours and 58 minutes, he was taken to the stable, where he was bled, and then covered with six or eight thick blankets. It is the prevailing opinion among horsemen, that this superabundance of covering, while in an exhausted state, caused the death of this noble animal. We also learn that the celebrated pacer, Hero, is very low, and it is feared that he also will die.—N. Y. Tribune.

It is our opinion that the whole race, and all other long races, are a "superabundance" of cruelty to the noblest of domestic animals. The men who thus abuse fine horses, may be justly called horse fanciers, but they cannot deserve to be called lovers of so noble a beast as the horse. The "Hero," about to die, is also to fall a victim to a recent race. It is a mean business to kill good horses, for the amusement or emolument of a pack of biped loafers.

REV. SETH ALDEN.—Rev. Seth Alden, of Lincoln, Mass. (whose sudden death we mentioned in the Daily Chronicle of Wednesday,) was a native of Bridgewater, Mass. and a descendant of Hon. John Alden, the Pilgrim who first stepped on Plymouth Rock, at the landing from the May Flower in 1620. Rev. Seth Alden graduated at Brown University in 1814, and pursued his Theological studies with Rev. John Reed, D. D. M. C. of Bridgewater, father of Lt. Gov. Reed.

CONSOLIDATION OF CITIES.—The project for consolidating Brooklyn, Williamsburgh and Bushwich, on Long Island, opposite New York, into one large city, was assented to by very large majorities in each place, on Tuesday.

The Fox girls have settled in Harmonia, New York, having rapped a large fortune out of the pockets of the people. This is spiritualism to some purpose.

LOCAL.

TO NEW SUBSCRIBERS.

To each person who subscribes for the Daily or Weekly Chronicle for the year 1854, and pays for the same in advance, we will supply the paper to Jan. 1, gratis. Terms for the Daily $3—Weekly $1.

TO ADVERTISERS.

As there seems to be considerable "blowing" of trumpets respecting the circulation of papers published in this city, we would like the privilege of uttering a few notes musical for ourselves—if perchance we know as much as some other folks of our own business. We do not pretend to keep tally for our neighbors, being perfectly satisfied with the footing-up of our own; but we do intend to give the favors of advertising patrons a most thorough circulation—as good as they can get in any and all other ways. There has been no week since the first number of the Daily Chronicle was presented for the consideration of an appreciating public, in which we have not received some increase to its list; and we are also constantly adding to our Weekly list. The Chronicle, both Daily and Weekly issue, is largely circulated in Portsmouth and every neighboring town, and on the lines of all the railroads in this vicinity; besides a growing circulation abroad.

Two gentlemen in this city, who pay larger sums per year for advertising than any others, have both stated to us that they regard our paper as the best medium for the dissemination of advertising and other news in this vicinity. And the agent for the American Porcelain, who was in this city a short time since, and advertised exclusively in the Chronicle, was pleased to tell us that though he had travelled continually for three years with his wares, he had never received so much benefit from a notice in a single newspaper, as from that in our columns—that it notified the whole town of his arrival here, and brought in the populace en masse upon him.

We do not state these facts as in any way boasting,—we don't think that is necessary. Neither do we at all complain—for we gratefully acknowledge a liberal advertising patronage in the city at the present time, as we expected to have. We fancied our citizens would appreciate the advantages of advertising in a Daily paper—and the result has shown we were not mistaken.

☞ If any more of our business men or others, are desirous of enjoying these facilities, at a reasonable rate—we shall be happy to accommodate a few more of them. The rest of mankind whose names are not on our list book, will do us and themselves a favor by causing them to be enrolled there.

☞ Wonder when those "future papers" are to appear, in which one of "our cotemporaries" is to "give the benefit of his circulation" to that programme of the Germanians? But there—who expects a Weekly paper to be ahead of the times? If they keep up within a week, 'twill be doing very well for them. "You can't do it"—though "Mr. Purdy" did: he rode an Eclipse—not a windbroken, worn out hack.

THE CITY LYCEUM.—The second lecture of the Course, will be delivered this evening, at the Cameneum. The orator is E. G. Parker, Esq., of Boston. He is not generally known here, but comes highly recommended to a Portsmouth audience, by James T. Fields, Esq. If this lecture is as good as the first of the course, the speaker and managers certainly merit a full house, and we hope will have it. Tickets for Gentlemen $1, for Ladies only 50 cents—for the Course. Single evening admission 12 1-2 cents.

ADVENT LECTURE.—Rev. W. M. Ingraham will lecture this evening at the Advent Chapel on Hanover St.

☞ The next (third) Lecture before the Mechanics' Lyceum, will be by Hon. Anson Burlingame, of Cambridge.

☞ We are informed that the Rev. Thos. W. Brown, formerly of this city, Pastor of the Unitarian Society at Trenton, N. Y., has received an unanimous invitation to become pastor of a society of the same denomination at Grafton, Mass.

IMPROVEMENTS.—The repairing works of the Portland, Saco and Portsmouth Railroad company, near the Western depot in Portland, are having added to them a new and large boiler for their stationary engine, and a new chimney, which, when completed, will be fifty feet high.—Adv.

MORE FOR VESSELS TO DO.—A recent correspondent of a New York paper announces the completion of a treaty with the Argentine republic that gives us the free navigation of the La Plata river. This will open a new field to commerce. We observe that it is estimated that two hundred of our ships are in Australian business, and the same number in the guano trade. How many there are in the California and China trade we have no means of ascertaining.

Mrs. Zubah Wheeler died at Hollis, N. H., last week, at the age of 102. She was in her twenty-fourth year when the battle of Bunker Hill was fought, and retained to the last a lively recollection of the time and its incidents.

IMPORTANT FROM CHINA.

A mercantile house in New York has received, via England, a letter from Dr. Parker, Secretary of the United States Legislation at Canton, dated at noon Sept. 3d, in which Mr. Parker says that a private letter from Pekin states that the Emperor of China fled on the 2d August to Tartary, leaving the empire in charge of Prince Wei Chin; and that the rebels were within six days march of Pekin.—The British Consul at Canton had received intelligence to the same effect.

GREAT SAILING.

The English ship Stornoway, Capt. Henry L. Hart, which arrived at Liverpool Nov. 1, beat the American ship Challenge on the voyage from China to England. The Stornoway left Whampoa on the 14th of July, and Manco on the 15th of July. The American ship Challenge sailed from Whampoa for London on the 13th of July, and has not yet arrived. The Stornoway was in company with the Challenge for two days in the China seas, and when last seen, the Challenge was dead to leeward at Gaspar Straits, standing to the Southward.

The highest speed made was 300 miles in 24 hours, which is very great, and has not been much exceeded, even by a steamer.

YANKEE SULLIVAN.—Yankee Sullivan, who has been boarding at Lenox for a few days past, at the expense of the State, was bailed on Saturday, took tea on Saturday evening with Sheriff Pease, of Lee, and was quite a lion among the paper-makers, for two hours. The astonishment of the natives, was, however, short lived, as one or two of his friends from New York, among whom was Tom Hyer, arrived in the evening, and the party vamosed for New York State, arriving at Coake about four o'clock on Sunday morning. —Springfield Repub.

A telegraphic despatch dated Poughkeepsie, N. Y., Nov. 14, says:—

Yankee Sullivan and Tom Hyer are in this city to-night, having "a good time," and causing great excitement.

As a matter of course, Sullivan will forfeit his bond, which is said to be only $1500;—as the fine for his fight might be $5000, or he might be put in the States Prison.

Fighting is but a brutal business at best.

GREAT DOINGS IN WASHINGTON.—The National Democracy of Washington called a public meeting in that city on Monday night, for the purpose of expressing their opinion of their party affairs at the present time. It was organized by the appointment of Charles S. Wallach, Esq., President, and Henry M. Offit and fourteen others, Vice Presidents, and W. B. Chase and others, Secretaries.

Cornelius W. Wendell, Esq., late of the Albany Argus, offered a series of resolutions, which declared that the nomination and election of General Pierce to the Presidency, was in consequence of his unmistakeable national antecedents, and known opposition to the opinions and conduct of those who defeated General Cass in 1848, by voting in favor of Mr. Van Buren for the Presidency; that the meeting did not regard the Baltimore Platform as a general amnesty to such parties, and that the attempt by the departments to crush out all the National Democracy in New York, deserved the immediate attention and correction of the President. The resolutions denounced Secretary Guthrie's interference in the affairs at New York, and congratulated the New Yorkers on their signal victory over the Free Soilers; but deprecating the attacks upon Mr. Dickinson and others. Daniel S. Ratcliffe opposed the resolutions, because they "made a deadly thrust at the administration." This Mr. Wendell denied. Mr. Thomas finally got upon the platform and moved an adjournment; but the President, Mr. Wallach, instead of "putting the question," kicked Mr. Thomas off the stand. The meeting then dissolved amid confusion. Mr. Thomas is the Collector of Washington. The National Democrats subsequently serenaded Beverly Tucker and other sound men.

FATAL ACCIDENT.—On Tuesday afternoon, about half past two o'clock, Mr. Jabez Sears, carpenter, while at work on the new building on the Chickering estate, in Washington st., Boston, nearly opposite the Adams House, fell from the sixth story to the sidewalk, and was instantly killed. He was son of Mr. Judah Sears, of South Boston, the contractor for the erection of the building, and was thirty years of age. He has left a wife.

INSANITY.—A jury empanelled in New York, to decide on the sanity of Thomas Kane, aged 74, who murdered his wife on the 30th of May, have given the opinion that he is insane, and it has been ordered that he be sent to Blackwell's Island.

FATAL CASUALTY.—Mr. Nathaniel Doughty, of Long Island, was drowned in Portland harbor on Monday, while on his way from the city to the Island where he resides, his boat having been capsized by a sudden flaw of wind, when about half way between Fish Point and Hog Island Ledge. His father and a brother were in another boat some distance astern, but before they could reach him to render any assistance, he, with the boat, had sunk from their sight. Mr. D. was about twenty-four years of age, and leaves a wife and three children.—Adv.

DEPARTURE OF MARTIN KOSZTA.—We learn from a private letter that Martin Koszta took passage on board the barque Sultana, Capt. Watson, which sailed from Smyrna Oct. 15, for Boston.

THE DISTURBANCES IN CUBA.—The Isabel reports at Charleston, that a vessel had appeared off Baracoa at the East end of the island, and hoisted what appeared to be a signal of distress, when simultaneously the fort was attacked by 70 men on horseback, who were repulsed; some prisoners were made and were on their way to Havana.

The Cheapest and Best.

THE approach of another Winter, with its usual leisure for Farmers and others, induces the publishers again to call attention to the

WEEKLY CHRONICLE,

AN INDEPENDENT FAMILY NEWSPAPER,

At $1 per Annum, in advance.

Being published in connection with the DAILY MORNING CHRONICLE, we are enabled to offer a record of news more thorough than Weeklies generally; and being entirely independent of the "arbitrary sway" of any and all parties and sects, our record of passing events we trust is clear and impartial.

The coming year seems big with events of great political interest, and a paper having no party bias will be found interesting as a chronicle of the doings of ALL parties.

LOCAL MATTERS

Have a prominent place in the Weekly Chronicle, so that natives of Portsmouth resident at home or abroad, will here find mention of all matters of interest in this vicinity.

The Weekly Chronicle is of medium size, printed on good paper, and contains but few advertisements—giving twenty columns of news and miscellaneous reading each week, at the low price of one dollar a year.

Persian Parlor Stove.

THIS beautiful article was introduced to the public last season; and as it can instantly be changed from an open to a close Stove, and vice versa, it fully meets the wants of all those who prefer to burn wood only. The exterior never becomes sufficiently heated to burn off the polish, and consequently can be kept bright and clean, with very little trouble. The demand heretofore has been greater than the supply; and those who have been waiting for them, and all wishing a beautiful, substantial, and durable

Dr. J. P. Woolley's All-Healing and Strengthening Salve.

THIS salve is a sovereign remedy for lame back, a local rheumatism, pain in the side and breast, scalds, burns, frost bites, fresh wounds, bruises, sprains, weakness in the joints, crick in the back, old sores, chilblains, swellings, numbness, ague in the face and breast, cracked hands, biles, corns on the feet, and occasional horse of most kinds which the human kind is subject.

This Salve is a rare and valuable combination of warm, stimulant and anodyne ingredients, and will be found far superior to any other article of the kind heretofore discovered for the above complaints. There has never appeared a medicine which possesses the penetrating and healing power in so great a degree, while at the same time it cannot by any possibility produce injurious effects. By its action on the skin it moves all obstructions to the insensible perspiration—excites a healthy circulation of the blood—strengthens and invigorates the nerves—gives elasticity to the joints, and imparts strength to any part of the system which may have been weakened by sedentary habits or disease. BE CAREFUL HOW YOU STRIKE.—An amusing incident occurred, the other day, in a fashionable music store in New York, which should teach clerks to be careful in their sports:—

It appears that the clerks in this store had acquired a habit of playing off little tricks upon each other, and one of the sports was, if one saw the other stooping down to select music, or for any other purpose, he would seize a board, (generally the top of a box) and spank the stooping victim. This practice had gone on for some time, when one day one of the clerks who had caught the board most severely for some past transgression, and was "laying low" to catch his antagonist in a position that he might pay him off with interest, entered the store, and at the end of a back counter, he saw, to his great delight, his fellow clerk, doubled up in a beautiful position, with his head among the lower shelves, and his body a full angle. Now, thought he, is my time, Mr. Jerry—so he selected a good stiff board, about four feet long, and cautiously approached him; he gave him a blow that sounded all over the store, and brought him erect at once. At that moment Jerry appeared from behind a stack of books, with his face swollen with suppressed laughter, and the gentleman who was struck, stood in utter amazement, rubbing himself most dexterously. The offending clerk discovered, to his great astonishment and regret, that he had struck his worthy pastor, the Rev. Dr. ———, who was busy selecting music, in mistake for his comrade. Of course he was ready to fall on his knees for forgiveness, but the deed was done.—Picayune.

RAILWAYS IN PARIS.—The Paris correspondent of the New York Times says:—

The railways along the Seine for omnibuses, after the American fashion, is completed; but as there are to be two tracks, the first will not be open to the public till the second is also ready. The rails are hollow, and receive the wheels of the cars; they are very simply fastened by spikes to beech sleepers. This is thought to be sufficiently solid, as the route is almost deserted by ordinary vehicles.

Bay State Stoves.

THE Subscriber would inform his friends and the public, that he has for sale all sizes of this favorite Stove. Having sold them in this city for five years past, they have been thoroughly tested with wood and coal, and are found perfect in every respect.

Those put in operation four and five years since have had no repairs made upon them, and are to all appearance as good as ever. So great is the popularity of these Stoves, that many imitations of it are put into the market, such as the Granite State, Empire State, &c.; but none of them are equal to it in weight or quality of castings, cooking facilities, or economy of fuel.

To all who are in want of a GOOD Cooking Stove, we would say—buy a BAY STATE, and you are sure to get THE BEST STOVE IN THE WORLD.

The subscriber has for sale, also, a variety of other Cook Stoves, Cooking Ranges, Parlor Grates, Office and Parlor Stoves, Funnel, &c. for sale low for cash. E. A. STEVENS,

PROF. ALEX. C. BARRY'S

Tricopherous, or Medicated Compound.

FOR beautifying, curling, preserving, restoring and strengthening the Hair, relieving diseases of the Skin, curing Rheumatic Pains and healing external wounds. Bounded by no geographical lines, the reputation of Barry's Tricopherous pervades the Union. The sales of the article of late years have increased in a ratio that almost exceeds belief. Prof. Barry, after a careful examination of his sales book, finds that the number of bottles delivered to order, in quantities of from half a gross upward, during the year 1852, was within a trifle of 950,000.

It is unnecessary to present at length the evidences of the wonderful properties of the Tricopherous when the public have furnished such an endorsement as this. The cheapness of the article, and the explanations given of its chemical action upon the hair, the scalp, and in all cases of superficial irritation, first recommended it to the attention of the people. This was all that the inventor desired. Ever bottle advertised itself.—The effects of the fluid exceeded expectation. It acted like a charm. The ladies would not be without it. Country dealers in every section of the United States found they must have it; and thus he built up a wholesale trade of an extent hitherto unheard of as regards articles of this kind.—The highest point has not yet been reached, and it is believed that the sales this year will be a million and a half of bottles.

Liberal discount to purchasers by the quantity, and by all the principal Merchants and Druggists throughout the United States, and Canada, Mexico, West Indies, Great Britain, France, &c., and by Weeks & Potter, Brewers, Stevens & Cushing, and Wm. Brown, Boston.

For sale in Portsmouth by J. H. THACHER.

DR. CONINE'S

SYRUP OF GINSENG & MALVA.

The Great Chinese Remedy.

THIS Medicine depends more upon its own virtues and actual merit than any other ever before offered to the public.

The recipe is from Dr. CONINE, a gentleman who travelled many years in China, and in the island of that vicinity where this compound is the potent and effectual remedy for the numerous diseases arising from a disordered or debilitated stomach, and

Affections of the Lungs.

But what will particularly attract attention is its astonishing DISSOLVENT POWER.

By which it at once removes ALL PHLEGM or extraneous matter from the Throat, Stomach or Lungs. It is therefore

Anti-Expectorant,

And from attentions of trial here, it is now offered as Narvan's Known Remedy for the removal of Consumption, Whooping Cough, and all Coughs, by precipitating the Phlegm, instead of creating irritation by expectoration.

It is AROMATIC, and increases the general warmth, possessing the exhilarating qualities of the Tea Plant, which is one great cause of its universal popularity in all India beyond the Ganges, where as an

APPETISER

It probably has no equal in the Vegetable Kingdom

AS A DYSPEPTIC REMEDY, IT IS UNEQUALLED.

Its natural, genial warmth keeps the digestive powers ever in proper tone, soothing all irritation of the nerves, &c.

It will prove a more pleasant, safe and effectual Tonic than any Sarsaparilla or other boasted tonic remedy, and even nutritious, as well as exceedingly palatable. It will continue to be prepared in the best manner possible—no expense being spared—and in quart bottles.

Besides the numberless testimonials which we are receiving daily, of the good effect of the above medicine, we are allowed to refer to several physicians, who are now using the Syrup of Ginseng and Malva with great success.

"A Splendid Remedy."

THE GREAT REMEDY is at last discovered. Consumption can be cured!! and Coughs and Colds, the parents of that fell disease that so often brings woe to the homes of our land, vanish, as if by magic, before this SOVEREIGN REMEDY. This is that which has long been sought for, and is in full faith offered to the public as a certain cure for Coughs, Colds, Whooping Cough, Croup, Asthma and Consumption, and will in any case where lungs sufficient are left to sustain life, check the ulceration and raise the patient to health. This is not an idle boast, nor is this remedy sent into the market without a thorough trial, but has proved beyond a doubt that what has been asserted CAN BE DONE!

JOB AND CARD PRINTING promptly executed.

COURTSHIPS OF GREAT MEN.

If, my young friend, you desire to become the husband of a good wife, do not "stoop to conquer" the maidens. Rather be burned by the slow fire of love concealed than cringe before a fellow creature. Never flatter. That you declare yourself a woman's lover is a proof that you believe her worthy of esteem. It is both useless and wrong to talk to a woman of her virtues—I use the word in its largest acceptation—because she knows them all, and if she does not, such ignorance is bliss; wrong, because our good qualities are attended by a destroying devil, which, if you speak of them, appears and kills them, and takes the place which they occupied.

In our times, all women, when in love, are actresses; they feign coldness which they do not feel, and often say what they do not mean. In the days of the patriarchs, woman's conduct was the child of her heart. But let us tell how courted

WILLIAM THE CONQUEROR.—William, surnamed the Conqueror, of England, loved Matilda, the beautiful daughter of the Earl of Flanders, a wealthy, potent and politic prince. As a stateman, he was desirous for a league with the father; as a man, he yearned for a union with the daughter. she was comely and learned, "a mirror of prudence and perfection of virtue." She was sought in marriage by the greatest sovereign in Europe. William was a handsome man, an able legislator, and a warrior of renown. But his addresses were coolly received; for Matilda was enamored of a young Anglo-Saxon nobleman, who treated her as she treated William. For seven years did he serve an apprenticeship to Cupid; at the expiration of which, says Agnes Stickland, he, in 1047, waylaid Matilda in the streets of Bruges; as she was returning from mass, seized her, rolled her in the dirt, spoiled her rich array, and not content with these outrages, struck her repeatedly, and then rode off at full speed. The Teutonic method of courtship brought the affair to a crisis; for Matilda, convinced either of the strength of William's passion by the violence of his behaviour, or afraid of venturing a second beating, consented to become his wife. How he ever presumed to enter her presence again, after such a series of enormities, the chronicler saith not and we are at a loss to imagine.

This unflattering mode of "sparking" is not yet extinct. It exists among the aboriginal inhabitants of the Australian group, which has been justly stiled "the country of contradictions." Their treatment of the female sex, says Dr. Hugh Murray, in his "Encyclopedia of geography," is of all other particulars, the most atrocious. Their courtship consists in the most brutal violence. The intended husband, having contrived to find alone the unhappy victim of his love, begins by beating her to the ground with a club; then accumulates blows, till she becomes altogether senseless, when he drags her to his hovel regardless of her striking against shrubs and stones, till under such promising auspices she is fixed in the domestic establishment. All of their subsequent life is of a piece with the outset. Several of the colonists in vain attempted to count the scars with which the faces of these unfortunate beings were variegated.

SIR ISAAC NEWTON.—Of the courtship of this industrious philosopher, I have somewhere read an anecdote; although it is not to be found in several lives of him which I have searched. It is well known he was often absent-minded; that for example, he would sometimes rise and sit for several hours by his bedside undressed, and absorbed in thought; that he would often forget to dine until reminded by his domestics, that to live it was necessary to eat.

Once and once only he loved a young woman. One evening they were seated by the fireside together. He sat silently smoking. She was too proud of his love to be offended by his conduct. At length he took his pipe from his mouth, and seized her hand. She expected he was about to kiss it. Instead of doing so, however, he stirred the tobacco in the head of his pipe with her fore finger—a rather odd substitute for a pin! She was angry with him and their courtship ended.

ABERNETHY.—Of Dr. John Abernethy, one of the most eminent surgeons and medical writers of the last century, several anecdotes are recorded. He was extremely eccentric, or rather was extremely manly. He acted and spoke always as nature dictated and not as custom ordained. To a rich valetudinarian gentleman he once said: "Live on sixpence a day and earn it;" and to a lady of the same species who offered him a fee, he said: "Madam, keep your money and buy a skipping rope." When he loved he still continued to despise the forms with which society ever seeks to encumber the sayings and doings of men. He did not waste his time in courting, nor did he prostrate himself as is usually the case before the relatives of his Eve. He met her in the street, revealed his affection for her, and offered her his hand. She accepted it, and he immediately gave her a purse, with orders to furnish a house.

HALL, OF LEICESTER.—The Rev. Robert Hall, when on a visit to a brother clergyman, went into the kitchen, where a pious servant girl, whom he loved, was working. He lighted his pive, sat down, and asked her—"Betty, do you love the Lord Jesus Christ?" "I hope I do, sir," was the reply. He immediately added—"Betty, do you love me?" They were married.

DR. BROWN.—The Rev. John Brown, a worthy Presbyterian divine, of the old school, author of a Dictionary of the Bible and other theological works, after having sparked for seven years, asked his love if she would permit him to kiss her. Unlike most young ladies, she did not object. Before partaking of the luxury, he said: "Let us ask a blessing!" And it was so. He then kissed her. And behold it was good! Oh! exclaimed the enraptured saint, 'how savory! Will you give me another? But let us return thanks.' He did so. Thus I believe, for the first time in this world was offered up grace before and after kissing.

SAMUEL JOHNSON.—I have received by way of climax, Boswell's account of the marriage jaunt of Samuel Johnson:—

"I know not for what reason the marriage ceremony was not performed at Birmingham, but a resolution was taken that it should be at Derby, for which place the bride and bridegroom set out on horseback; I suppose in a very good humor. But though Mr. Topham Beauclerk used archly to mention Johnson's having told him with much gravity, Sir, it was a love marriage on both sides,' I have had from my illustrious friend the following curious account of their journey to church upon the nuptial morn, July 9:

"Sir—She had read the old romance, and had got into her head the fantastical notion a woman of spirit should use her lover like a dog. So, sir, at first she told me that I rode too fast and she could not keep up with me; and when I rode a little slower she passed me and complained that I lagged behind. I was not to be made the slave of caprice; and I resolved to begin as I meant to end. (Good, old Sam.) I therefore pushed on briskly, till I was fairly out of sight. The road lay between two hedges, so I was sure she should come up with me; when she did I observed her to be in tears."

"This," adds Boz, "it must be allowed, was a singular beginning of connubial felicity; but there is no doubt that Johnson, though he showed a manly firmness, proved a most indulgent husband to the last moments of Mrs. Johnson's life."

THE GROWTH OF THE BEARD.—The guards, drivers, stokers, and others employed on the Scottish Central Railway, have addressed the following letter to their superintendent:

"Sir—We, the servants of the Scottish Central Railway, beg to inform you that, having last summer seen a circular recommending the men upon the railways to cultivate the growth of their beards as the best protection against the inclemency of the weather, we have been induced to follow this advice, and the benefit we have derived from it induces us to recommend it to the general adoption of our brothers in similar service throughout the kingdom. We can assure them, from our own experience, that they will, by this means, be saved from the bad colds and sore throats, of such frequent occurrence without this natural protection."

ARAGO'S FUNERAL.—It is a singular fact that not a single member of the Provisional Government was present at the funeral of their collesgue. Lamartine, Dupont and Garnier Pages were absent from Paris; Ledru Rollin, Louis Blanc and Flocon are in exile; Albert is in a political prison, and Marrast is dead.

Such is the fate of the friends of republican and popular rights in Europe. Louis Napoleon sent more soldiers to this funeral than were engaged in the battle of Bunker Hill, under cover of respect to the savan, but really to curb the mercurial and untrustworthy populace.—Exeter News Letter.

SENATOR ATHERTON

We make the following extracts, from a well written notice of Mr. Atherton, in the Manchester Mirror.

New Hampshire is again called upon to mourn the loss of one of her most gifted sons. "Death loves a shining mark!" It has become our painful duty to announce that Hon. Charles Gordon Atherton died at the Manchester House, this city, at 1 o'clock, this afternoon, the 15th inst., in the fiftieth year of his age. Five years a member of the State Legislature, and three of those years Speaker of the House of Representatives, twelve years a member of Congress, and having just commenced an unexpired term of six years, he was known to our whole country, and, looking beyond political predilections, all admit his superiority in talents, in comprehensive learning, in acuteness and sagacity. By the Bar of this County and State, of which he was a distinguished ornament, his death will be deeply felt. Possessed of a powerful intellect, a close reasoner,—sometimes casting off the adamantine chains of logic and giving play to his wonderful sarcasm—a fine tincture of classic taste pervading all he said,—a pleasing and impressive speaker, he took the foremost rank as an advocate, and won the admiration of his hearers. The stamp of greatness was upon his noble brow, and a dignified respect and admiration for him followed him no less in the walks of private life than in our Courts and in the halls of Congress.

Self-reliant, high-minded, honorable, profoundly revering the wisdom of the great men in our history, especially the framers of the Constitution of the United States, never doubting the ability of the people to govern themselves, as he regarded the Union of these States as the polar-star of our liberties.

We regret that the greatness and glory of the man are so ephemeral—that no record is left of his profound reasonings and brilliant periods at the Bar, in the Councils of the State, and on many public occasions, except a few orations and his speeches in Congress. Appropriately, in reference to him, we can quote what we once heard him recite with great effect, in reference to Washington and Jefferson:

"But strew his ashes to the wind,
Whose sword or voice has saved mankind;
And is he dead whose glorious mind
Lifts thine on high!
To live in hearts we leave behind,
Is not to die."

With him the name of Atherton, so illustrious in the annals of our history, dies.

His grandfather, Joshua Atherton, was one of the Convention which framed the Constitution of the U. S.

Charles Humphrey Atherton, father of the deceased, was born at Amherst Aug. 14, 1773; graduated at Harvard College in 1794, and died Jan. 8, 1853. He was an eminent lawyer, and excellent man, whose history is part and parcel of New Hampshire treasures.

He married in Nov., 1803, Mary Ann, daughter of Christopher Toppan, of Hampton. She died Oct. 19, 1817, aged 37, leaving four children, of which Charles Gordon was the last survivor.

Charles Gordon Atherton was born July 4, 1804,—graduated at Harvard College 1822—read law with his father, and was admitted to the Bar in 1825, and opened an office, soon after, in Nashua village, in what was then called Dunstable. He was elected Representative to the State Legislature in 1830, and in '31 was chosen Clerk of the Senate. He was again chosen Representative in 1833-4-5-6, and Speaker of the House during three of those years. He was appointed Solicitor for this County in '34, but declined the appointment. He was elected Representative in Congress in '37, '39 and '41, and was elected Senator in '42, and took his seat in the Senate in March '43. His term expired in '49, and he was again elected to that place in '52, and took his seat in March '53. He was a leading member of the Constitutional Convention, in this State, in 1850.

In 1828, he married Ann Barnard Clark, a very accomplished and intelligent lady, eldest daughter of Hugh Hamilton Clark. They have no children. He leaves a large property of from 2 to $300,000.

How forcible now are his words upon the second inst., upon the death of the late Hon. S. H. Ayer:

"The suddenness of his untimely fate bears with it a striking lesson, to actors in scenes so transient, of the comparative unimportance of our struggles and conflicts, and the folly and wrong of indulging in harrassing anxiety, or undue asperity, or uncharitable judgement.

It teaches us the uncertainty of the fairest of earthly prospects."

When attending to some case in Court, last Thursday morning, he was taken with a paralysis of the left side, so that he was unable to speak for some time. He was taken to his rooms, where he received the best medical treatment that could be obtained. During the day he conversed and wrote on the nature of his disease, with an intelligence and accuracy of knowledge that astonished his physicians. Since Saturday morning he has been insensible and declining gradually.

A post mortem examination was held this afternoon, and the disease was found to be a softening of the right hemisphere of the brain. The left hemisphere was healthy. The disease has been in progress for some time. His brain weighed three pounds eight ounces and a half, avoirdupois weight. Size of the cavity of scull: antero-posterior diameter 7 1-2 inches; lateral diameter 5 3-8 inches; vertical diameter 5 1-4 inches.

John A. Dix, yesterday surrendered to his successor, John J. Cisco, the moveables, &c., of the United States Assistant Treasurer's office in this city.—N. Y. Herald.

LOCAL.

GERMANIA CONCERT.

This Concert comes off to-night at the Temple. We are requested to say that every seat in the Hall has been numbered, and it is hoped that all who propose attending, will secure tickets early to-day, and not wait till nearly time for the Concert to commence. Although the Hall is so constructed that all can see and hear and there is but little choice of seats, yet those who purchase tickets beforehand can have a chance of selecting their seats, if they choose, while those who do not thus supply themselves, will be obliged to take seats according to the numbers of the tickets that may be promiscuously sold to them at the door. There will then be no chance for making a choice—hence the necessity of securing seats. Do not neglect it. See advertisement.

We trust to-night will prove that our citizens are not behind-hand in appreciating good music, and that the Germanians will be greeted with an overflowing house.

The following selections, from numerous editorial notices, concerning the Concerts of this Company, will give some idea of their usual reception.

The Germanians and the President.—The Germanians passed through this City last evening, on their way to Boston from Washington, where they gave a very brilliant farewell concert on Wednesday evening, at which the President and other distinguished citizens were present. When the President made his appearance, they were in the midst of a brilliant peice of music, but by a sudden and felicitous change they struck off into the old National air of Hail Columbia. The effect was electrical. All present, as if moved by one common impulse, started to their feet, and stood gazing on the President, and listening to the spirit-stirring music by which he was welcomed. The entertainment was the first which the President has attended since his inauguration.—Baltimore Paper.

The Germanians.—We saw and heard enough of the opening concert on Saturday evening to know that the series will be as fashionable as that of last year. As the Germanians entered, all in white neck-cloths, they received a capital reception. We are not sure that some of the young ladies present did not include their sweet voices in the welcoming cheer. This Society is, beyond question, the best orchestra we have ever had, especially in non-operatic music. It deserves to be sustained.

Concert by the Germanians.—The Germania Musical Society has lost none of its attractions in the eyes of the Boston public, as their first concert and the rehersals attest. They have commenced the winter campaign in fine style, and with unabated popularity. To-night they give their second concert, and will undoubtedly have a full house.—Boston Paper.

Germanians.—The Germanians had a full house at their second Concert on Saturday evening.—The Concert was unusually good, and the attendance proved that they have lost nothing in the opinion of their friends by the comparison and competition of Jullien. For ourselves we must admit, that nothing has so firmly impressed us with the excellence of the Germania Orchestra, and of its conductor, as the opportunities we have just had of comparison with the famous orchestra of Jullien.

BOARD OF ALDERMEN.

In Board of Aldermen, last evening, it was voted that a Mr. Henely be discharged from the House of Correction, and his fine remitted.

Leave was granted to Messrs. Parry & Plumer to erect a gas light in Fleet street.

An invitation was received from the committee to attend the dedication of the Woodbury school on Monday evening—accepted.

Voted, (Council concurring) that the Collector issue notices to delinquent tax-payers after Dec. 5.

Bill for legal advice due the estate of Ichabod Bartlett was referred to the committee on claims.

Voted, that the Street Commissioner be directed to repair North street immediately.

Thursday next being Thanksgiving, the Aldermen will not meet on that evening.

THE WOODBURY SCHOOL HOUSE.

The new School-House at Gravelly Ridge has just been completed, and is to be dedicated on Monday evening next. This is, we think, the neatest and best hall of learning in this vicinity. It is of brick, one story, and probably cost $2500. It sets well back from the road, on a capacious lot—a quarter of an acre, near the site of the old wooden building. It will accommodate in comfort, nearly sixty scholars—being of ample size finished four teen feet high.

With its bright green blinds, and its neat entire build, it is an ornament to the Ridge. Some tasteful hand, we perceive, has already transplanted a few evergreens to its surrounding grounds, and will doubtless in due time see to it that all necessary trees and shrubs are provided for shade and beauty. It only needs a neat marble slab, that shall tell the name chosen to honor it.

There will doubtless be a full attendance at the dedication, which is to be at half past 6 o'clock on Monday evening next. Messrs. Nath'l D. Miller, B. Carkin, Chas. A. Wiggin and Wm. H. Dennett, the Committee, are sparing nothing to render the occasion one of pleasure and interest. Rev. Mr. Lamson is to offer the dedicatory address, original Odes have been written for the occasion by Rev. Mr. Moore and Miss S. A. Coffin, and remarks are expected from various gentlemen.

Chas. Levi Woodbury, of Boston has accepted the invitation to be present, and in his reply to the Committee, thanks them very neatly for the compliment bestowed upon his father in naming the house. The late Judge, whose name the new building is to bear, always took a deep interest in this school, visiting it at every opportunity till within a few years of his lifewhen public duties grew so thick abouthim—and the compliment now bestowed upon his memory is well merited.

For the Chronicle.

NEW CASTLE.—No. III.

The former Pastors of the Church in Newcastle, previously referred to, as among the men of learning and eminence in this place, may here be more definitely noticed.

1st. Rev. John Emerson, a native of Gloucester, Mass., son of Rev. John Emerson, senior, and grandson of Thomas Emerson of Ipswich—born 1670 and graduated at Harvard College, 1689. The same year, June 27th, "He providentially escaped with his life, by declining, though strongly urged, to lodge at the House of Major Waldron, in Dover, on the fatal night when the Indians wreaked their vengeance on the unsuspecting inhabitants of that place."

He was the minister of Manchester, Mass., from 1695 to 1698."

From the records of Gloucester, it appears that Rev. John Emerson, senior, was guardian of Nathaniel Martin of Newcastle, and, in that capacity, sold to his son, in 1694, part of the Argilla farm. These and kindred circumstances, might have been the occasion of introducing him to this place, where, on the 24th of May, 1703, he was invited to settle in the ministry, and soon after was ordained by Rev. Messrs. Cotton, Pike and Clark. His wife was Mary, daughter of Edmund Barter, of Salem, Mass.

In 1708 he visited England, spent some time in London, and "was handsomely noticed by Queen Anne," who was then on the British throne. In 1712 he was dismissed, and March 23, 1715, was installed the first pastor of the South Church in Portsmouth—Rev. Messrs. Toppan, Cushing and Cotton officiating on the occasion. During his ministry 124 were received into the church, 40 of whom soon after "the great earthquake" Oct. 29th 1727, which he ever after noticed by an annual sermon adapted to the occasion. He died Jan. 21st, 1732, aged 62. He is said to have been "an agreeable companion and a faithful preacher of the gospel."

2d. Rev. Wm. Shurtleff, a native of Plymouth, Mass., born 1689, son of Wm. Shurtleff, who finally settled in Carver, Mass., and grandson of Wm. Shurtleff of Marshfield, who in a terrific tempest 1666, was instantly killed by lightning, while a child in his arms and two others leaning on him, escaped unhurt.

Rev. Mr. Shurtleff was graduated at Harvard College, 1707, and settled in Newcastle, 1712. His wife was Mary, daughter of Hon. Theodore Atkinson. She made the bequest of a silver Tankard to the South Church in Portsmouth, to be kept for the use of the minister for the time being.

Rev. Mr. Shurtleff was installed as pastor of that church, Feb. 21st, 1733—a successor to Rev. Mr. Emerson there, as he had been previously, in New Castle. He died May 9th, 1747, aged 58. His remains rest beneath the Old South Church, in Portsmouth.

One of his successors thus testifies concerning him, "His name will long be mentioned with respect, for his uncommon meekness and patience under great trials, and for distinguished piety as well as pastoral fidelity."

Several of his sermons were published and are now extant—also a communication from him, published in "the Christian History," 1743.

3d. Rev. John Blunt, a native of Andover, Mass., born 1706, and graduated at Harvard College 1727. He was ordained Dec. 20, 1732, and died Aug. 7th, 1748, aged 42.

He appears to have been highly approved as a preacher of the gospel, and quite successful in the ministry in Newcastle.

A communication from him was published in "the Christian History," 1743. He is also respectfully referred to in the same periodical, by Rev. Mr. Shurtleff. His wife was a daughter of Hon. John Frost. His descendants are numerous and respectable. They reside in Portsmouth, in New York and other places. The author of the "Memoir of Major Charles Frost," Usher Parsons, M. D., formerly Professor of Anatomy and Surgery in Brown University, and in Dartmouth College, was a grandson of Rev. John Blunt. The Peninsula at Little Harbor, bearing his name, was formerly occupied and owned by this worthy family; and in this quiet and beautiful place, now reposes their precious dust.

After the decease of Rev. Mr. Blunt, the Parish, by their vote, appropriated 200 pounds, Old Tenor, to defray the expenses of his funeral, and continued his salary several months, for the use of his widow.

4th. Rev. David Robinson, a native of Stratham, N. H., born 1716, graduated at Harvard College 1738, was ordained at New Castle Nov. 30, 1748. The Parish voted to give him as a salary, "One Hundred and Forty Ounces of Silver, at 20 shillings per ounce, to be paid in Bills of Public Credit—the use of the whole Parsonage, as Dwelling House, Gardens, Barns, Pastures, Meadows and whatsoever hath been given to the Ministry, or set apart for the Ministers use in this Parish, also the contributions of strangers on the Sabbath days."

His ministry was very brief: in less than one year he deceased, Nov. 18th, 1749, aged 33.

5th. Rev. Stephen Chase, a native of Newbury, Mass., born Oct. 26, 1704, graduated at Harvard College 1728, ordained at Lynnfield, Mass. 1731, installed in Newcastle Dec. 5, 1756, and died Jan. 1778, aged 72. His posterity is found among the most influential citizens of this and other States, and among the "Merchant Princes" of the chief cities of the land.

6th. Rev. Oliver Noble, a native of Coventry, Con., born 1736, graduated at Yale College 1757, ordained at Newbury, Ms. 1762, installed in Newcastle, Aug. 18th, 1784, and died Dec. 15th, 1792, aged 56.

H. Weld Noble, Esq., his son, was an able and successful teacher of youth. He was, for sometime, employed in the public school in Newcastle, and is still remembered with affection and respect, by his numerous pupils.

The Monument, erected 1852, to the memory of these truly reverend and worthy men, beneath their honored names, bears the simple, but appropriate inscription—

"The Memory of the Just is blessed."

City Lyceum—The Cameneum last evening was comfortably warmed, pleasantly lighted, and occupied by a genteel audience. The lecture by E. G. Parker, Esq., was on Reading, as a means of a happiness and as a mode of culture eminently suited to the condition of the American people. It was a good lite rary performance, and was well delivered.

The next lecturer is to be Rev. Mr. Bodwell, of Framingham, who will speak on Friday evening of next week.

THREE DAYS LATER FROM EUROPE.

ARRIVAL OF THE ARABIA.

New York, Nov. 17.—The steamship Arabia arrived at this port at 9 o'clock this forenoon, bringing dates from Liverpool to the 5th inst.

The clipper ship Challenge had put into Fayal leaky. The Turks had crossed the Danube in strong force and occupied Kalafat.

Fighting had occurred in Wallachia, between the Turks and Russians. A detachment of Turks attacked the town of Giurgeon. A Russian force was dispatched to the assistance of the town, when an engagement ensued, with a considerable slaughter.

Another encounter took place near Kalafat, between a body of 4000 Turks and a like number of Russians. The latter were retreating.

In Circassia, and Dacghistan, the mountaineers have defeated the Russians and captured some forts.

It is stated positively that the Austrian Envoy has pressed the Sultan to accept a new note which the Czar approved of conditionally on its being accepted pure and simple, by the Sultan. The efforts of diplomacy are now directed to procuring the joint assent of the Czar and Sultan to the note. Its tenor has not transpired.

There was a talk of opening a Turkish loan in the United States.

Mr. Owen, U. S. Consul, had arrived at Naples.

A naturalized American citizen who had received his papers, has been kept in custody at Ancona by the Austrian officials, on no charge at all, except liberal opinions. The U. S. Consul had done what he could, and was met mostly by procrastination. The man was eventually released, but he was required to sign a declaration that he would never revisit Italy. This he refused to do, and he still kept under surveillance. It appears be to a case calling for prompt interference of the United States government.

THE BELGIAN ROYAL FAMILY are now on a visit to Cousin Victoria, in England. The royal party consists of the King of the Belgians, their royal highnesses, the Duke and Duchess de Brabant, the Count de Flandres, and the Princess Charlotte of Belgium. They crossed the channel in the mail packet Ruby, to Dover, after a boisterous passage of six hours. At Dover they found an express train ready to take them to London; and at the London terminus, the Queen's carriages were ready to take them across to the Paddington Station, where another express train was in readiness to take them to Windsor.

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 15.—From Mexico.—The steamer Texas, from Vera Cruz, arrived here to-day, bringing dates from Mexico to the 5th and from Vera Cruz to the 11th.—The difficulties which existed between the Mexican government and the Spanish Minister have been settled, and the latter has returned to his post.

A notification has been issued to contractors, inviting bids for the construction of a railroad from Vera Cruz to the Pacific, via Puebla and the city of Mexico. The time allowed for the bids is four months. It was rumored that Messrs. Bellanger & Richards, the latter an Englishman, had already obtained the contract.

Great fears were entertained of a famine in consequence of the harvest having failed at Durango, and in other interior ports.

The Cholera was abating, there being only a few scattering cases in Puebla and the city of Mexico.

General Larezer has been promoted to a General of the Division, for his services in suppressing the recent rebellion in Yucatan.

The country has been ravaged by the cholera, over 1700 have died in Nevada, including many of the most prominent citizens.

Indian depredations and massacres continued, and several mail robberies had been recently perpetrated.

HAVANA.—New Orleans papers received at Baltimore, confirm the account of the disturbances in Cuba previously received at Charlestown. It is said that about thirty persons belonging to prominent families had been arrested.

ONE MILE MORE, AND THE LAST.—The N. Y. Tribune says that the gambler who drove his horse one hundred miles, "not content with that cruelty, forced him on another mile to win a few more dollars, till the poor exhausted creature only found relief from his worse than brute driver in the sleep of death."

We have one question to ask, viz. Were the owner of this horse and the drivers, sober men? total abstinents?

PROSPECTIVE DUEL.—The Washington correspondent of the N. Y. Herald, writes—

"Fears are entertained that we may lose the services of Hon. Jefferson Davis as Secretary of War after the assembling of Congress, on account of the incipient affair of honor which has been raised between him and the Hon. Robert Toombs, a Senator elect from Georgia. It is, as Sir Lucius O'Trigger would say, "a mighty pretty quarrel as it stands," and, according to Southern usages, it can only be settled by an interchange of compliments at Bladensburg, or some other bloody locality. We trust the affair may be settled, however, as was the quarrel between Louis Philippe and Gen. Jackson, without coming to the arbitrament of saltpetre. We should regret to lose the Cabinet services of Gen. Davis until the democracy are thoroughly harmonized. We hope that Mr. Toombs will insist on waiting till the business is accomplished before undertaking the grave business of settling the disunion question with Gen. Davis or any other member of the Cabinet."

TRANSFER OF GEN. WOOL TO BALTIMORE.—By a recent order of the War Department, Gen. Wool, as Commander of the Eastern Department of the Army, is required to make Baltimore his Head Quarters, instead of Troy, N. Y.

Shelly, a slave belonging to Mr. Paddleford, of Georgia, who recently ran off, returned, and begged to be taken back again, saying that he had been persuaded to run away. His master consented, and he is now on his way to Savannah.

The Cheapest and Best.

THE approach of another Winter, with its usual leisure for Farmers and others, induces the publishers again to call attention to the

WEEKLY CHRONICLE,

AN INDEPENDENT FAMILY NEWSPAPER,

At $1 per Annum, in advance.

Being published in connection with the DAILY MORNING CHRONICLE, we are enabled to offer a record of news more thorough than Weeklies generally; and being entirely independent of the "arbitrary sway" of any and all parties and sects, our record of passing events we trust is clear and impartial.

The coming year seems big with events of great political interest, and a paper having no party bias will be found interesting as a chronicle of the doings of ALL parties.

LOCAL MATTERS

Have a prominent place in the Weekly Chronicle, so that natives of Portsmouth resident at home or abroad, will here find mention of all matters of interest in this vicinity.

The Weekly Chronicle is of medium size, printed on good paper, and contains but few advertisements—giving twenty columns of news and miscellaneous reading each week, at the low price of one dollar a year.

Persian Parlor Stove.

THIS beautiful article was introduced to the public last season; and as it can instantly be changed from an open to a close Stove, and vice versa, it fully meets the wants of all those who prefer to burn wood only. The exterior never becomes sufficiently heated to burn off the polish, and consequently can be kept bright and clean, with very little trouble. The demand heretofore has been greater than the supply; and those who have been waiting for them, and all wishing a beautiful, unique, and desirable

CHAMBER OR PARLOR STOVE,

will be glad to know that we have in Store all sizes, which we offer on the most accomodating terms. [n14] G. N. CARLETON, 15 Daniel st.

Dr. J. P. Woolley's All-Healing and Strengthening Salve.

THIS salve is a sovereign remedy for lame back, local rheumatism, pain in the side and breast, scalds, burns, freezes, fresh wounds, bruises, sprains, weakness in the joints, crick in the back, old sores, chilblains, swellings, numbness, ague in the face and breast, cracked hands, bites, corns on the feet, and occasional sores of most kinds which the human kind is subject.

This Salve is a rare and valuable combination of warm, stimulant and anodyne ingredients, and will be found far superior to any other article of the kind heretofore discovered for the above complaints. There has never appeared a medicine which possesses the penetrating and healing power in so great a degree, while at the same time it cannot by any possibility produce injurious effects. By its action on the skin it moves all obstructions to the insensible perspiration—excites a healthy circulation of the blood—strengthens and invigorates the nerves—gives elasticity to the joints, and imparts strength to any part of the system which may have been weakened by sedentary habits or disease. DON'T suffer with a Cough.—Use PRESTON'S COUGH SYRUP.

A Most Melancholy Occurrence.—Almost everybody has listened with sadness to the plaintive strains and saddening words of the old song, "The Mistletoe Bough," in which the story is told of a young bride, who, in playful humor on her wedding day, ran to hide from her spouse, and was found years afterwards, mouldered to ashes in a chest with a spring-lock. But a San Francisco paper relates a sadder tale which occurred in that city last month, and one which adds to its own horror by its reality. It says:

"A few days since we called attention to an advertisement of the loss of a little Spanish girl, answering to the name of Ventura, whose agonised mother was searching throughout the city for her. After looking for her in vain for several days, and coming to the conclusion that the child was dead, she went to a large trunk in her house, on Thursday, for the purpose of procuring some mourning apparel, when upon opening it, what was the mother's horror to see lying there the decaying remnant of her once beautiful child. The trunk had been left open on the day the child was lost, and it is supposed that the inquisitive little one, having seen the dresses inside, had taken a fancy to them, and upon attempting to procure them, had fallen into the trunk. The lid closed with a spring, and the little child died with suffocation. The tales of romance fall far short in depicting the agony which the poor mother felt upon this sad discovery—and the whole story is one which tends to prove the oft repeated saying that truth is stranger than fiction."

Bay State Stoves.

THE Subscriber would inform his friends and the public, that he has for sale all sizes of this favorite Stove. Having sold them in this city for five years past, they have been thoroughly tested with wood and coal, and are found perfect in every respect.

These put in operation four and five years since have had no repairs made upon them, and are to all appearance as good as ever. So great is the popularity of these Stoves, that many imitations of it are put into the market, such as the Granite State, Empire State, &c.; but none of them are equal to it in weight or quality of castings, cooking facilities, or economy of fuel.

To all who are in want of a GOOD Cooking Stove, we would say—buy a BAY STATE, and you are sure to get THE BEST STOVE IN THE WORLD.

The subscriber has for sale, also, a variety of other Cook Stores, Cooking Ranges, Parlor Grates, Office and Parlor Stoves, Funnel, &c. for sale low for cash. E. A. STEVENS, a16 12 and 14 Daniel st.

The "Sagamore."

THIS is the name of a new and beautiful COOKING STOVE, manufactured expressly for the subscriber, of the best quality of castings,—and which he offers to a discriminating public for their approval and favor, believing that an examination of this the latest production of the oldest Stove establishment in the State, will meet the wants of all interested in this important culinary apparatus.

AGENCY FOR BUSINESS

With the U. S. Patent Office, Washington,

No. 22 State Street, Boston.

IMPORTANT INFORMATION TO INVENTORS. The Subscriber (late Agent of the U. S. Patent Office, under the Act of 1837) determined to present advantages, in applying for Patents, superior to those offered to inventors by others, has made arrangements whereby the business will be prepared and conducted by him, THIRTY DOLLARS (instead of twenty, as paid back by others,) will be remitted by him in case of failure to obtain a patent, and the withdrawal through him within thirty days after the rejection. Caveats, Specifications, Assignments and all necessary papers and drawings, for procuring patents in this and foreign countries prepared, and advice rendered on legal and scientific matters respecting inventions, and infringement of patents.

Inventors can not only here obtain their specifications on the most reasonable terms, but can here avail themselves of the experience of 20 years' practice, an extensive library of legal and mechanical works, and correct accounts of patents granted in this and other countries; besides being saved a journey to Washington, the usual great delay there, as well as all personal trouble in obtaining their patents. Copies of claims of any patent furnished by remitting one dollar.—Assignments recorded at Washington.

R. H. EDDY,

Solicitor of Patents.

"During the time I occupied the office of Commissioner of Patents, R. H. Eddy, Esq., of Boston, did business at the Patent Office, as Solicitor of Patents. There were few, if any persons acting in that capacity, who had so much business before the Patent Office; and there were none who conducted it with more skill, fidelity, and success. I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the best informed and most skilful Patent Solicitors in the United States, and have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a person more competent and trustworthy, and more capable of putting their application in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office.

EDMUND BURKE,

Late Commissioner of Patents."

PROF. ALEX. C. BARRY'S

Tricopherous, or Medicated Compound.

FOR beautifying, curling, preserving, restoring and strengthening the Hair, relieving diseases of the Skin, curing Rheumatic Pains and healing external wounds. Bounded by no geographical lines, the reputation of Barry's Tricopherous pervades the Union. The sales of the article of late years have increased in a ratio that almost exceeds belief. Prof. Barry, after a careful examination of his sales book, finds that the number of bottles delivered to order, in quantities of from half a gross upward, during the year 1852, was within a trifle of 950,000.

It is unnecessary to present at length the evidence of the wonderful properties of the tricopherous when the public have furnished such an endorsement as this. The cheapness of the article, and the explanations given of its chemical action upon the hair, the scalp, and in all cases of superficial irritation, first recommended it to the attention of the people. This was all that the inventor desired. Every bottle advertised itself—The effects of the fluid exceeded expectation. It acted like a charm. The ladies would not be without it. Country dealers in every section of the United States found they must have it; and thus was built up a wholesale trade of an extent hitherto unheard of as regards articles of this kind.—The highest point has not yet been reached, and it is believed that the sales this year will be a million and a half of bottles.

Liberal discount to purchasers by the quantity, and by all the principal Merchants and Druggists throughout the United States, and Canada, Mexico, West Indies, Great Britain, France, &c., and by Weeks & Potter, Brewers, Stevens & Cushing, and Wm. Brown, Boston. d&w6m e22

DR. CONINE'S

SYRUP OF GINSENG & MALVA.

The Great Chinese Remedy.

THIS Medicine depends more upon its own virtues and actual merit than any other ever before offered to the public.

The recipe is from Dr. CONINE, a gentleman who travelled many years in China, and in the islands of that vicinity where this compound is the potent and effectual remedy for the numerous diseases arising from a disordered or debilitated stomach, and

Affections of the Lungs.

But what will particularly attract attention is its astonishing

DISSOLVENT POWER,

By which it at once removes ALL PHLEGM or extraneous matter from the Throat, Stomach or Lungs. It is therefore

Anti-Expectorant,

And from attentions of trial here, it is now offered as NATURE'S KINDEST REMEDY for the removal of Consumption, Whooping Cough, and all Coughs, by precipitating the Phlegm, instead of creating irritation by expectoration.

It is AROMATIC and increases the general warmth, possessing the exhilarating qualities of the Tea Plant, which is one great cause of its universal popularity in all India beyond the Ganges, where as an

APPETISER

It probably has no equal in the Vegetable Kingdom

AS A DYSPEPTIC REMEDY, IT IS UNEQUALLED.

Its natural, genial warmth keeps the digestive powers ever in proper tone, soothing all irritation of the nerves, &c.

It will prove a more pleasant, safe and effectual remedy than any Sarsaparilla or other boasted tonic remedy, and even nutritious, as well as exceedingly palatable. It will continue to be prepared in the best manner—no expense being spared—and in quart bottles.

Besides the numberless testimonials which we are receiving daily, of the good effect of the above medicine, we are allowed to refer to several physicians, who are now using the Syrup of Ginseng and Malva with great success.

"A Splendid Remedy."

THE GREAT REMEDY is at last discovered. Consumption can be cured!! and Coughs and Colds, the parents of that fell disease that so often brings woe to the homes of our land, vanish, as if by magic, before this SOVEREIGN REMEDY. This is that which has so long been sought for, and is in full faith offered to the public as a certain cure for Coughs, Colds, Whooping Cough, Croup, Asthma and Consumption, and will in any case where lungs sufficient are left to sustain life, check the ulcerated tube, and raise the patient to health. This is not an idle boast, nor is this remedy sent into the market without a thorough trial, but has proved beyond a doubt that what has been asserted CAN BE DONE.

CUBAN AFFAIRS.

Several weeks ago we noticed, and as far as we could, contradicted, several rumors about what the English were intending to do about slavery in Cuba. We deemed the different rumors so nearly contradictory, that all of them could not be true; and each one, by itself, seemed improbable. A few days afterward, the mail brought along a contradiction and denial of the English agency in the matter, from the English minister at Washington.

We now give below, the New York Herald's account of the manner, in which the several reports alluded to, were set afloat on the current of Havana news via New Orleans or elsewhere: and in publishing the whole article from the Herald, (which it pleasantly calls "A Little Truth about Cuba,") the reader will see a repetition of the same reasons which we gave, for not believing one syllable about the British interference in the matter.

We have the pleasure of being acquainted with Senor Mariano Torriente. He is a gentleman of some parts and some repute in his own country—has filled civil and military stations respectably—and enjoys the friendship and esteem of that exceedingly estimable man, Captain General Canedo. He came here some time since, hence went to Cuba, and while there labored very zealously, but we regret to say, not very successfully, to alter our opinion of Canedo, and our views generally of affairs on the island. Having failed in instructing us, Senor Torriente turned his philanthropic mind to the sorrows of the slave dealers in Cuba. The English were spoiling every especulacion magnifico in the way of negroes fresh imported from Africa. The slave traders poured their afflictions into Senor Torriente's bosom, and his warm feelings and ingenious mind soon suggested a remedy.—He left for England, and the next we heard of him was a rather savage onslaught upon him by one of the London journals. He was not idle, in truth. In his pocket he carried about a bran new scheme for settling all the disputes between England and Spain on the subject of the Cuban slave trade. This scheme was, in one word, a repeal of the existing treaties prohibiting the slave trade, and a legalization of the traffic for a period of eight or ten years, at the expiration of which Spain was to liberate the negroes imported during the same. This insane proposal Senor Torriente courageously laid before several distinguished statesmen in England. We need hardly add that where he escaped the treatment inflicted upon him by the newspaper above mentioned, he was politely ushered out, as a man whose intentions might be pure, but whose mind was hopelessly disordered.

Nothing daunted, Senor Torriente went to the expense of printing his lucubrations on the subject of the slave trade, and about the same time, curiously enough, it began to be rumored that England had made certain proposals to Spain to permit importations of apprentices from Africa into Cuba, on condition of their being emancipated at the end of a certain period. No one who knew anything of Englishmen or of politics paid the slightest attention to so absurd a story; but the Union swallowed it, and other journals which follow in its wake did so likewise. In point of fact, the Union wanted to divert attention from the abolitionist character of the Cabinet, and would have circulated stories ten times more ridiculous, if it had believed they would answer the purpose. It gained little, however, by this device, in this country.

The hoax was most successful in Cuba. There the highest authorities alluded openly to a treaty, executed by Lord Howden, under which Cuba would be allowed to capture negroes in Africa, bring them into the island, and keep them ten years as slaves. One can readily imagine the ecstacy such an announcement must have have created among the slave dealers. And when we bear in mind how carefully public opinion is blinded in Cuba—how all foreign independent journals are excluded and the domestic press governed by the Captain-General—it is not difficult to understand how the story has gained credit; and now almost every one in the island, not excluding our own correspondents—seems to believe it implicitly.

To reasoning men we need hardly spend time in explaining why such treaty has never or can never be proposed or agreed to by England. The scheme proposed by Senor Torriente, and caught up by the Cuban authorities, amounted, in plain terms, to a legalization of the slave trade for a period of time. Now, what earthly reason could England have for consenting to such an arrangement? What benefit would the negroes derive? England has spent millions during the past few years to suppress the traffic. She has threatened to break off her relations with Spain if her authorities continue to connive at it, and the British cruisers are baffled in their endeavors to arrest slavers. And yet we are told that this same England now actually intends to sanction this traffic for a period of ten years, in consideration of a promise by the Cubans to liberate the negroes they shall have seized during that period, so soon as it shall have expired!

Senor Torriente's scheme, and the terms of the supposed treaty, will of course be popular with the slave dealers, whom they would enable to make their fortunes without molestation from England. But is there an English ambassador living who dare sign such a treaty on behalf of his government? Is there a minister in England who would venture to face Parliament with the proofs on record of his having guaranteed to protect the slave trade for ten or any other period of years?

PROGRESS OF FIRE ARMS.—The percussion lock, it appears, was invented by an English clergyman—Rev. Mr. Forsyth—in the year 1807. In the year 1500, all fire-arms were fired by a lighted match carried in the hand. About 1510, the match-lock was introduced, which was so far an improvement, that the lighted match was attached to the gun. But a shower of rain was still an effectual damper of the hottest fight. Soon after, the wheel lock was invented, which produced ignition by the rapid revolution of a steel wheel against an inflammable substance. This lock was in use during the wars of the Commonwealth. The well known flint lock was introduced about the year 1692, and was in universal use down to the battle of Waterloo. The percussion-lock, for many years after its invention, was only employed in the slaughter of birds and beasts; but it is now applied in all the armies of Christendom, to the weapons designed for the destruction of men. The paper from which we derive these facts, was read, a few weeks ago, before one of the scientific societies of London. It enumerated the leading improvements which are now proposed in fire-arms, and these are at present so numerous, as to create the impression that the most ingenious men in every country are occupied in inventing more effectual modes of giving to fellow-creatures their quietus.—Home Journal.

PRESSURE.—The following is from the Philadelphia Ledger:

"There are no favorable signs of the times in the stock market. Extravagance is as rampant as ever, and there is as yet no change in expensive habits. People are still acting on the principle that a loan effected is as good as a debt paid. So long as credit can be maintained, the whole business public seem to think it safe to run in debt. The wildest sort of Railroad schemes are still pressed, under the delusive idea that a road made, whether economically or not, must pay. The most usurious rates are therefore allowed for the use of means to carry them on to completion.—Our merchants are driving their fast horses, building fine houses and stores, and our women sweeping our crossings with silks costing from two to five dollars per yard. These are among the causes of the present stringency in the money market, and until the cause is removed the effect will continue. Some of our sanguine friends are of opinion that "the good time coming" is near at hand, while many just as far sighted believe that bad as is the present, worse is yet to come."

The latest discovery of the excavators at Pompeii, is a group of skeletons in the act of flight, accompanied by a dog. There are three human beings, and one of them a young girl, with gold rings and jewels still on her fingers. The fugitives had bags of gold and silver with them, snatched up, no doubt, in haste and darkness. But the fiery flood was on their track; and vain their wealth, their flight, the age of one, the youth of the other. The burning lava rolled above them and beyond; and the faithful dog turned back to share the fortune of his mistress—dying at her side. Seen by the light of such an incident, how vividly that night of horrors looms upon the sense!—Home Journal.

Morning Chronicle.

SATURDAY, NOV. 19, 1853.

To New Subscribers.—To each person not now on our list, who shall subscribe for the Daily or Weekly Chronicle for the year 1854, and pay for the same in advance, we will supply the paper to Jan. 1, gratis. Terms for the Daily $3—Weekly $1.

The Cherokees.—The annual message of the principal chief of the Cherokee Nation, John Ross, to the National Council, has been published. He expresses serious apprehensions lest the newly proposed territory of Nebraska should be suffered to infringe on the boundaries of the Cherokee Nation. He says, if the boundaries proposed for the new territory should be adopted, the lands of the Cherokees will be intruded on. "But," adds he, "holding as we do, the repeated assurances of the Government, and the stipulations of solemn treaties, that the lands of the Cherokees shall never be embraced within the limits of any state or territory without their consent; it cannot be supposed that any such encroachment on our rights would be deliberately and intentionally made by the Government."—He, however, proposes that a solemn protest be entered against any such infringement on their boundaries.

Temperance and education are said to be progressing in the nation to an encouraging extent.

We wish we "could not suppose that any such encroachment" will be made on Indian or other rights, of our neighbors who pretend to own lands. But on the contrary, our past history compels us to say that we stand ready to claim every thing that adjoins us, and a good many things that do not.

Flogging in the Navy.—In his charge to the Grand Jury, at the opening of the Circuit Court at Providence, R. I., on Tuesday morning, Judge Curtis dwelt particularly upon the late law for the abolition of flogging in the Navy, maintaining that the flogging prohibited by it was simply flogging with the "cat," and that it left all the other modes of nautical chastisement unforbidden.

Perhaps it did. The people who petitioned Congress to abolish flogging, also petitioned in the same sentence, to abolish the grog, which, as everybody knows, is the occasion of most of the punishment on shipboard.

Congress did one of the things only, viz.: abolished flogging; and now Judge Curtis expounds and explains this to mean flogging with the cat only. Is it worthy of a judge to fritter away a humane law, so as to make it as little beneficial as possible? Is his dictum sound law?

New York.—A New York correspondent of the Boston Chronicle says, in a letter of the 15th:

The new police regulations go into effect here to-day. One of the distinctive features is the uniform which all the members are to adopt to-day and wear upon all occasions.—It consists of a navy blue frock coat, single breasted, to be always worn buttoned, and a cap. A star is also to be worn upon the left breast, which is never to be displaced or concealed upon any occasion. Drinking, smoking, and even talking, (with each other,) while upon duty, are strictly prohibited. The regulations, also, require the department to be closed to all members of fire and military companies and political clubs, in order to secure their entire independence of personal or secret influences. Policemen are hereafter to be selected for their merits for integrity, sobriety, capacity, and powers of endurance.

Many of these regulations are excellent, but some of them, that of talking with each other in particular, seem useless and impracticable. We can really understand now, why some policemen did not like to put on the uniform, alleging that their liberty and rights were interfered with. But the truth is, they do not like to wear a distinctive dress, because it will expose the wearer when he goes to forbidden places, or does forbidden things. We trust the police of New York will be improved. There was need of it.

A Question Answered.—We raised the query, "why call the Massachusetts law the Maine Law? There are many points of difference; some quite important."

To this the Boston Chronicle replies:—

We supposed it to be generally understood that the phrase "Maine Law," is used as applying to prohibitory or restrictive legislation—that which embodies the principle of the original Maine statute—without regard to State or locality. We refer, of course, to the seizure and destruction and confiscation of the property of the citizen, whether it be called 'spirits,' or be any other article, the right to hold and traffic in which is legalized, if not required by the law of Congress, or the government under which we live. Thus to disregard the rights of property is Maine Lawism—however much the statutes of various States, based on a common principle, may differ in their details.

Here we have the Boston Chronicle's definition, which would have been quite satisfactory, if one word had been omitted, viz. the word restrictive, which we have italicized, and which, while it changes the meaning essentially, also expresses a great deal of truth, as it regards the feelings of the repealers.—They oppose all really restrictive laws; all which operate with any stringency at all, in reducing the gains or the honors of a certain traffic.

The President's Message.—It is stated that the President's Message will be sent to the postmasters of the most important cities, in advance, to be given to the newspapers the moment it is presented to Congress.

The Robinson Divorce Case.—As we surmised, there is another side to a divorce case in Portland, Robinson vs. Robinson, that is to be on trial at the next January term of the Supreme Court in that city, and that was prematurely reported on one side only, in the "State of Maine" newspaper.

Now another correspondent of the same paper comes out against that one sided report; and, perhaps unconsciously, goes over upon the other side. He says:

Those who have heard the relation of the circumstances connected with this affair, from both parties, at issue, will be surprised to see all the blame cast upon the libellant.

It may be that this trial "is without a precedent in the history of divorces," yet, had you known more of the facts in the case, you would not have allowed your correspondent to have cast all the blame and reproach upon the libellant. There are usually two sides to all such litigations, and it so happens in this case, that the son, who is now so ready and earnest in defence of the respondent, has manifested as much zeal and energy in defence of the libellant, and was one of the most active agents in bringing about this lamentable case, and causing the mother to leave the family; and four of the five daughters advised and consented to the separation.

Your attention is drawn to this fact simply that the public may not prejudge the case, knowing that you would not wish your press to forestall public opinion, when a legal trial is near;—and the able counsel upon both sides are too honorable men to wish for anything of the kind.

Now we suppose the public, which is a sort of great democratic court, have both sides of the case in brief, either from the two parties, their "next friends," or their respective counsel. It appears to be a deplorable family quarrel, beginning in fanaticism, continued by folly, and ending in misery.

The mere result of such a suit, is of little consequence to the public; but the history of the case, which leads to the suit, must have valuable moral lessons. We will not prejudge the case; but offer one general remark which is suggested by its occurrence;—viz., that any fanaticism, or any folly, which breaks up a quiet domestic circle, or embitters a harmonious social system, must be most deplorable in its character, however apparently amiable its intent or benevolent in its purpose.

Nomination.—The Boston Chronicle informs us, that it will be fortunate if the citizens can prevail upon the present excellent and popular Mayor (Seaver) to continue at his post, and says:—"No man at the head of the Municipal Government, has ever discharged his duties more efficiently, or to more general acceptance, and the universal demand should, and no doubt will be, that he should "serve again," and yet again if need be."

It then goes on to state, that on the 15th, at a meeting of the Ward and County Committee of the Boston Union Association, they nominated the Hon. Benjamin Seaver, as their candidate for the mayoralty for the ensuing year, and commend to the Union and liberal men of Boston, of all parties, to secure his election.

The Traveller states that the Boston Union Association is the Liquor Dealers' Association; suggests that the nomination is most appropriately made; and says, there is a peculiar fitness in it, which must strike every reflecting mind.

Charging the People.—A clergyman, once on a time, was invited to settle as pastor over a congregation, which, though by no means poor, was nevertheless close in its money arrangements, and too frequently slow in its payments.

The conversation turned upon the subject of the forthcoming installation. A minister present observed—"By the way, I have been invited to deliver the 'Charge to the people,' on that occasion."

"You have?" replied a gentleman who had some acquaintance with the parish, "then sir," he continued, "if you charge that people, I advise you to take sight at their pockets."

Owing to a difficulty between the city authorities and the fire companies of Savannah, Ga., the latter have disbanded, and the insurance companies, fourteen in number, have refused to renew policies on property in the city.

We remember two disbandings of the fire companies in Boston; and on both occasions new companies were formed better than the old.

A Spirit Birth.—On Wednesday evening, Nov. 2, at 15 minutes after 7 o'clock, the spirit of Catharine De Wolf, wife of Andrew Jackson Davis, was born into the new life of the spiritual world. Possessed of the most brilliant and fascinating powers of mind; quickened by the most tender, truthful and ardent affections—she was pre-eminently fitted to adorn the great and beautiful cause to which she had so generously devoted herself. Many friends are impressed with the loneliness of places which have been long and often inspired with her presence; and her widowed companion, in the strength of his human affection, cannot do otherwise than sit down by her vacant chair, and the still couch where her form rested, and weep for the familiar lovelight that faded on the outward eye when she passed away.—N. Y. Reformer.

☞ It is reported that Mr. John A. Dix, late Assistant Treasurer at New York, was not absent from his office a single business hour during the six months he held his office. His sureties were two gentlemen of large fortune in the interior of the State of New York, each of whom became bound in the sum of $400,000 for the faithful performance of his duties.

LOCAL.

SABBATH SERVICES.

☞ Rev. Mr. Moore, of the North Church, will deliver the Third Discourse on The Lord's Prayer, to-morrow afternoon. And in the evening, at 7 o'clock, will be given a discourse on Intemperance.

This latter sermon is given, in view of a call which has been made upon the ministers of this State, of all denominations, to preach in connection with the subject of Temperance on the Sabbath preceding Thanksgiving day. It is hoped that there will be a general response, on the part of the pulpit of New Hampshire, to this very earnest and christian request of the ministry of Concord. In this city, we think the subject will be presented by nearly every pastor, during some part of the day.

☞ Rev. Mr. Willis, of the Universalist Church, gives the fourth sermon of the course he is delivering on doctrinal subjects, to-morrow morning. Subject—The parable of the sheep and the goats.

☞ Rev. Charles Bryant will deliver a sermon on the subject of Temperance, to-morrow in the forenoon, at the Pleasant Street Church.

☞ The first of Rev. Mr. Lamson's Course of Lectures to Young Men, which was deferred from last Sabbath evening, on account of the storm, will be delivered to-morrow evening, at the Middle Street Church.

☞ Rev. T. Foss will lecture at the Hanover Street Chapel, to-morrow evening, at the usual hour, on the subject of Slavery.

☞ Rev. J. Spaulding will deliver at the Methodist Church, on Sunday evening, 27th inst., the Lecture on the Tendencies of Romanism, which was postponed from Sunday evening last, by the weather.

☞ The Germanians' Concert, on Friday evening, in the Temple, was attended by a fashionable audience of about three hundred. The music of this band, (like good wine which needs no bush,) asks no puffing from any wind instrument of ours; but we only express the general feeling of the audience when we say it was excellent of its kind; and that the vocal performance as well as the instrumental, was highly gratifying.

☞ A man named Dennis Sullivan, broke his wrist yesterday, on the P. & C. Railroad by a slight derangement of a brake on a gravel train, near the Plains bridge.

A New Coal Stove.—And not only a new stove, but a new kind of a stove. Mr. Carlton tells his own story in another column—which you can't help seeing. He thinks the new burner the best yet,—the inventor evidently thinks so; and we think—that's a first rate advertisement, at any rate. Read it, and judge for yourselves.

☞ The addition of a few transient subscribers to the list of one of "our cotemporaries," is so strange and unusual an occurrence, that it "has confused and frightened the carriers." La! our carriers have learned not to be scared by a few scores of new stopping-places on their routes—the adding of the few citizens who do not now read the Chronicle, would increase our newsboys' duties but little.

☞ See Auction Column this morning. 'Twould be easier enumerating what is not to be sold, than what is to be.

Portsmouth and Dover Railroad.—Thursday, of this week, was the day appointed for the laying out of the Portsmouth and Dover Railroad by the Railroad Commissioners. The Directors and gentlemen interested in the road, met the Commissioners at Dover in the morning, and after settling preliminaries took up their line of march upon the surveyor's track of Dover point, dined with Mr. Hanson at the Dover Point house, and after dinner crossed the river at the proposed point for the bridge, and followed the exceedingly level track laid out within a few rods of the river down to the point of the proposed bridge which is to connect eastern Christian Shore with Nobles' Island, and there to connect with the Eastern Railroad. The Commissioners were, we learn, much pleased with the jaunt, and consider it an unusually favorable route.—Journal.

For the Morning Chronicle.

Messrs. Editors:—The following question appeared in the New York Universe, of Nov. 1st. The solution has not yet appeared. The question is to be solved without resort to Algebra, with an analysis of the same.

Question.—There are two towers, standing on a horizontal plane, at a certain distance from each other. The difference of their heights is 175 feet—if their difference from each other be multiplied by the sum of their heights the product will be 187500 square ft. The square of the distance from each other, is equal to the product of their heights. What is the height of each tower, and distance from each other?

I make the following

Answer.—Height of one tower, 400 ft.; other tower, 225 ft.; distance from each other, 300 ft.

FIRES IN NEW YORK.—On the morning of the 17th, at New York, the Empire Iron Works on 23d street were destroyed by fire. Also Brooks's Piano Forte Manufactory, the Empire Feed Mill, and Chapman's buildings, used for manufacturing purposes, by which about 1000 mechanics are thrown out of employment.

The total loss by the fire is about $400,000. Of this amount Sloan & Leggett of the Empire Foundry lost $353,000. They have insurance on stock and buildings of $253,000.—Christian Schwartz loses $8000. A. Longett & Co., agricultural implement makers, $7000; insured in two Providence offices for $1250 each.

Six large buildings were destroyed, and many exceedingly valuable and new pieces of machinery.

At the fire at the corner of Washington st., eight buildings, including Knox's factory, were entirely destroyed, and ten or twelve partially burnt. Knox's factory was occupied by several mechanics. The building was insured for about $35,000.

FROM THE BRITISH PROVINCES.—The St. John New Brunswicker says:

The Common Council have resolved to present a Gold Medal to each of the three men of the steamer Eastern City, who rescued the crew of the schr. Marie, during the recent gale.

On Saturday night last, thirteen soldiers belonging to the garrison in St. John, deserted in a body. Desertions both from St. John and Fredericton, are becoming very numerous. The Freeman says:—Either British soldiers have become wonderfully smitten with a love of Republicanism, or there is some cause of disaffection that urges the troops to desert in open day and in such large bodies.

The Sydney news says, that the Bridgeport Coal mines, after having been closed for the last twelve or fourteen years, are again to be opened and worked early in the ensuing spring.

NEWS AND MISCELLANEOUS ITEMS.—Intelligence has been received at Washington, that Lieut. Webster, of the United States Navy, died in Texas, on the 11th inst., of yellow fever.

The ship Calhoun, at New York, from Liverpool, arrived in 28 days, with 900 passengers. She lost six of her crew, and forty-eight of her passengers. The ship Delaware arrived also yesterday at New York, with 250 steerage passengers, and reports 15 deaths. The Prussian barque Cæsar, at the same port, brought 119 passengers from Hamburg, and reports 7 death. The Danish barque Miley, from Madeira, brought to New York yesterday, 100 passengers, and the Emma Fields, from Liverppool, 440. The Emma Fields reports forty-two deaths on the passage. This a most awful mortality. One hundred and eighteen deaths on board six ships!

Powers, the sculptor, has received from Washington an unsought commission as commercial agent of the United States at Florence, but has declined the appointment as wholly foreign to his professional pursuits.

Advices from the U. S. ship Vincennes, down to Sept. 20th, have been received. At that time the ship was at Simons Bay, Cape of Good Hope. The John Hancock, with most other vessels of the squadron, had also arrived there,—all well.

Cats are quoted in Australia at fifteen dollars each.

UTAH.—The Desert News of Oct. 1, contains Governor Brigham Young's address to the people of Utah. He gives permisssion to new comers to settle where they choose, provided it is a city that is or may be walled in, so that they may be secure from the ravages of the Indians. Anticipating the objections which are made against this step, he remarks: "Our cities are open, our streets wide, and we have the sweet mountain air and a quiet country. Do not be afraid to live together.—What kind of air did you breathe who lived in eleven, twelve, and fourteen story houses in your own country?" He further suggests that those who possess a contentious spirit may in a future world find themselves more inconveniently crowded than at present.

It has been determined by the City Council of Great Salt Lake City, to surround the city with a ditch and wall, with suitable gates and bastions. The Indians had appeared very quiet for some months, doing little damage except taking a little grain and vegetables occasionally, especially in the region of Summit Creek. A. W. Babbitt, Esq., has been appointed Secretary of the Territory.

DISTRESS IN MADEIRA.—On account of the failure of the grape harvest, the inhabitants of Madeira are said to be in a state of great distress and starvation. Some have removed to Jamaica, but others choose to linger out their miserable existence at home, rather than go to any place where they cannot have a priest and church of their own. Religious infatuation thus overcomes their fears of that worst of all fates—death by starvation.

TWO MEXICAN EX-MINISTERS SHOT.—Luis de la Rosa, formerly Mexican Minister to the United States, and Senor Tornel, one of President Arista's Ministers of War, were both shot recently, somewhere near the northern boundary of Mexico, by order of Santa Anna. De la Rosa was Minister of Foreign Affairs immediately after the capitulation of the City of Mexico, and was the immediate instigator of Santa Anna's expulsion from the country, and wrote a letter informing him of his disgrace. The other victim was also implicated in the same transaction. Both were shot summarily, without pretence of trial.—Santa Anna's conscience does not seem to check him much, when policy invites transgression.

FATAL ACCIDENT.—We learn from the Lowell News, that a young man named Bartholomew Purcell, about sixteen years of age, an apprentice in the machine shop at Lowell, was caught in a revolving belt on Tuesday morning, while engaged in his duties in his shop, and drawn repeatedly over the main shaft, which was making 120 revolutions per minute. When rescued, his right arm and one of his legs were broken, and his chest crushed. He lived but three-quarters of an hour after the accident.

THE CELEBRATED

LOWELL COAL & GAS BURNER

For Anthracite Coal.

MANY futile attempts have been made to construct COAL STOVES which should consume the gases, and at the same time be simple and easily managed.

We think that Mr. D. G. LITTLEFIELD, the Patentee of this Stove, has been eminently successful in his efforts to produce this result—indeed it is so unlike all other stoves, and so superior to them, that the whole truth would hardly be believed, except by those who have used them.

One ton of coal burned in this Stove will generate as much heat as TWO TONS consumed in any other Stove extant.

For a particular description we would refer the public to the following communication from Mr. Littlefield:

All skilful coal burners, and stove manufacturers, are conscious that a great error has pervaded the forms of all the apparatus for burning anthracite coal. No one, however, has been able to determine where the difficulty lay. Nearly all attempted improvements for consuming the gases, have been based upon the presumption that the common method of burning in a tight pot of some kind, either of cast iron or sheet iron lined with stone or brick, was correct, and their improvements have been made over and above this point in the apparatus. It is true the form of the pot has been changed from time to time, from the long cylinder with grate at the bottom, to the short and broad cylinder, and then to the bottle form, then square, then oval, and then contracted at the top, and then at the bottom, and very shallow, each having its advantages and disadvantages, but all operating substantially in the same manner in one respect, namely, that the gases are expelled from the coal and immediately rise unburned to the upper part of the apparatus, where they cannot burn perfectly, being withdrawn from the action and greatest heat of the fire, and must either pass through the flues, or into the apartment to be heated, thus causing a great loss of heat, and the only unpleasant difference between heat produced by coal and that of the wood fire.

Carburetted and sulphuretted hydrogen are freely liberated in burning coal. These gases, altho' perfectly combustible, and therefore easily disposed of, are really the direct cause of nearly all the inconvenience in burning coal. Being very volatile, a large portion of them escape through the flues unburned, or into the room from open stoves, and through the joints of close stoves, producing various unpleasant sensations, such as langor and headache, so common among those who live in a room heated by coal. In addition to this, they act upon and in time destroy the stove and pipe, particularly that part near the chimney. In any city where anthracite coal is used to any extent, the effects can be seen in that part of the chimney above the roof of nearly every house which has been built five years.

I wish now to call the particular attention of the reader to the common method of burning coal in a cylinder, with a flat grate at the bottom. It is well known that when a hard coal fire is started, it is with charcoal or some other very combustible material. The first impression made on the anthracite coal is to heat it; this expels the gases or most inflammable portion of the coal, which being volatile, and the pot open at the top, immediately rises above the coal, and is consequently out of reach of the strongest action of the fire. It is a well-known principle that a gaseous substance, expelled from a solid body by the action of heat, rises above and mostly escapes any further action of the same heat which expelled it. The experience of every one that has given attention to coal burning is, that the best results are obtained with the common pot, by a very slow process of burning, covered with ashes, or wet and fine coal. The reason is obvious. By this method more of the volatile substances are retained and consumed within the pot, and in contact with the coal, thereby producing a more perfect combustion of the fixed matter, as well as being burnt themselves, preventing the accumulation of old coal on the grate, and making no clinkers. Sometimes, with great care, a stove can be made to run from week to week, a result very desirable, but only obtained by the utmost care and skill. We need no better evidence that there is a radical defect in past construction of fire pots, than that with them the nicest calculation, prudence and judgment were necessary, to obtain comparatively poor results.—In fact, we may safely say that the form of pot open at the top, and with a grate at the bottom, for burning anthracite coal, is all wrong. The fire by its own action becomes wrong side up. The volatile matter, which is combustible, is expelled, and passes off imperfectly burned, instead of being consumed before it escapes, and helping as nature designed it, to consume the fixed matter in the bottom. A method of burning coal that accomplishes this object, that is, the combustion of the volatile matter in contact with the coal, is the only one that has any claim to be called scientific.

A stove constructed upon the principle above referred to, has been invented; and after repeated experiments, has been so far perfected as to justify its introduction into the market. Its construction is exceedingly simple, requiring but little skill in the operator, when a fire is once started, (which is easily done); all that is necessary is a constant supply of coal, and a little attention from time to time, to keep a fire from month to month.

Dr. J. P. Woolley's All-Healing and Strengthening Salve.

THIS salve is a sovereign remedy for lame back, local rheumatism, pain in the side and breast, scalds, burns, freezes, fresh wounds, bruises, sprains, weakness in the joints, crick in the back, old sores, chilblains, swellings, numbness, ague in the face and breast, cracked hands, biles, corns on the feet, and occasional sores of most kinds which the human kind is subject.

This Salve is a rare and valuable combination of warm, stimulant and anodyne ingredients, and will be found far superior to any other article of the kind heretofore discovered for the above complaints. There has never appeared a medicine which possesses such penetrating and healing power in so great a degree, while at the same time it cannot by any possibility produce injurious effects. By its action on the skin it moves all obstructions to the insensible perspiration—excites healthy circulation of the blood—strengthens and invigorates the nerves—gives elasticity to the joints, and imparts strength to any part of the system which may have been weakened by sedentary habits or disease. CONGRESS.—The New York Herald contains a complete list, with the exception of five vacancies in the Senate, of the Senators and members of the House of Representatives who are to compose the thirty-third Congress of the United States, which will convene at Washington on the fifth day of December next. The new Congress will be more democratic in its political complexion, and will contain more new members, than any previous one, as we find that nearly two thirds of the whole number of members elected are men who have never before set in the councils of the nation; and if the novelty should please them, and we have no reason to suppose to the contrary, the "long session" will be run to an unusual length. The democrats have one hundred and fifty-nine of the whole number of members, the whigs seventy one, and the abolitionists four; but the split in the democratic party in New York will no doubt be followed by a sub-division in Congress, which will give us the fourth political organization, antagonistic to all the others. What will be the relative strength of the national and free soil democrats we are unable to tell, and nothing but a show of hands can determine, which will no doubt take place shortly after the meeting of Congress. There will be five delegates from Territories in the House of Representatives; four of whom are already elected and on their journey to Washington, and one from Nebraska, a self-constituted territory, knocking at the door for admission. Taking the various important projects which will be brought before the coming Congress into consideration, and the numerous discordant elements which will compose it, we have reason to expect some lively times during the succeeding winter.

BIBLE EXCITEMENT.—There was some trouble at Ellsworth, Me., on Tuesday, in consequence of the rejection by the town authorities of an application from the Irish or Catholics that the school money be divided, and they receive their proportion, for the purpose of establishing a school, out of which the Protestant Bible should be kept. Considerable excitement ensued, and at night (according to a correspondent of the "State of Maine") two Catholic boys broke into one of the school houses, and destroyed all the Bibles found there. On Monday they were arrested, and one of them sent to jail. The Catholics are to establish a school immediately.

A man by the name of McLaughlin, of Chelsea, was drowned on Saturday evening. It appears that he attempted to jump on board the 6 o'clock boat at the pier, the boat being more than ten feet from the drop. The ferryman attempted to stop him, but he shouted, "I'm bound to go in that boat." He gave a tremendous leap, but did not reach the boat, and passed under the paddle wheels, thus taking a journey to "that undiscovered country." His body has been found.

Bay State Stoves.

THE Subscriber would inform his friends and the public, that he has for sale all sizes of this favorite Stove. Having sold them in this city for five years past, they have been thoroughly tested with wood and coal, and are found perfect in every respect.

Those put in operation four and five years since have had no repairs made upon them, and are to all appearance as good as ever. So great is the popularity of these Stoves, that many imitations of it are put into the market, such as the Granite State, Empire State, &c.; but none of them are equal to it in weight or quality of castings, cooking facilities, or economy of fuel.

To all who are in want of a GOOD Cooking Stove, we would say—buy a BAY STATE, and you are sure to get THE BEST STOVE IN THE WORLD.

FOR beautifying, curling, preserving, restoring and strengthening the Hair, relieving diseases of the Skin, curing Rheumatic Pains and healing external wounds. Bounded by no geographical lines, the reputation of Barry's Tricopherous pervades the Union. The sales of the article of late years have increased in a ratio that almost exceeds belief. Prof. Barry, after a careful examination of his sales book, finds that the number of bottles delivered to order, in quantities of from half a gross upward, during the year 1852, was within a trifle of 950,000.

It is unnecessary to present at length the evidences of the wonderful properties of the Tricopherous when the public have furnished such an endorsement as this. The cheapness of the article, and the explanations given of its chemical action upon the hair, the scalp, and in all cases of superficial irritation, first recommended it to the attention of the people. This was all that the inventor desired. Every bottle, advertised itself—The effects of the fluid exceeded expectation. It acted like a charm. The ladies would not be without it. Country dealers in every section of the United States found the most leave in it, and it was built up a wholesale trade of an extent hitherto unheard of as regards articles of this kind.—The highest point has not yet been reached, and it is believed that the sales this year will be a million and a half of bottles.

Liberal discount to purchasers by the quantity, and by all the principal Merchants and Druggists throughout the United States, and Canada, Mexico, West Indies, Great Britain, France, &c., and by Weeks & Potter, Brewer, Stevens & Cushing, and Wm. Brown, Boston. d&wtm p22

DR. CONINE'S
SYRUP OF GINSENG & MALVA.
The Great Chinese Remedy.

THIS Medicine depends more upon its own virtues and actual merit than any other ever before offered to the public.

The recipe is from Dr. CONINE, a gentleman who travelled many years in China, and in the islands of that vicinity where this compound is the potent and effectual remedy for the numerous diseases arising from a disordered or debilitated stomach, and

Affections of the Lungs.

But what will particularly attract attention is its astonishing

DISSOLVENT POWER.

By which it at once removes ALL PHLEGM or extraneous matter from the Throat, Stomach or Lungs. It is therefore

Anti-Expectorant,

And from attention of trial here, it is now offered as NATURE'S KINDEST REMEDY for the removal of Consumption, Whooping Cough, and all Coughs, by precipitating the Phlegm, instead of creating Irritation by expectoration.

It is AROMATIC, and increases the general warmth, possessing the exhilarating qualities of the Tea Plant, which is one great cause of its universal popularity in all India beyond the Ganges, where as an

APPETIZER

It probably has no equal in the Vegetable Kingdom
AS A DYSPEPTIC REMEDY, IT IS UNEQUALLED.

Its natural, genial warmth keeps the digestive powers ever in proper tone, soothing all irritation of the nerves, &c.

It will prove a more pleasant, safe and effectual Tonic than any Sarsaparilla or other boasted tonic remedy, and everything is prepared as exceedingly palatable. It will continue to be prepared in the best manner—no expense being spared—and in quart bottles.

Besides the numberless testimonials which we are receiving daily of the great effects of this above medicine, we are allowed to refer to several physicians, who are now using the Syrup of Ginseng and Malva with great success.

NEW MAP OF NEW HAMPSHIRE.

A correspondent of the Boston Traveller, writing from this State over the signature of J. R., gives the following interesting information and useful suggestions upon the subject of a new map of New Hampshire. We commend his remarks to the attention of our people, and hope the matter will meet their cordial approval. He says:

In the New Hampshire Legislature last June, a committee was appointed to inquire into the expediency of publishing a new and correct map of the State. That committee reported in favor of the measure, and resolutions were passed, sanctioned by the Governor, authorizing the appointment of a commissioner to obtain the necessary information, make estimates of the expense, and report to the next Legislature. They voted also an appropriation for the expenses of the commissioner. The Governor subsequently appointed J. S. Woodman, Professor of Mathematics in Dartmouth College, to this service; that gentleman has since been prosecuting his inquiries.

As this is a matter of common interest to the whole country, and as the people are slow to appreciate its importance so as to be willing to meet the expense, it is desirable to lay before them some information. Massachusetts has the honor of making the first map of a State from actual survey, and a noble one it is. Pennsylvania is now following the example on a similar scale. New Hampshire ought not to be behind her neighbors. The first map of New Hampshire of which we have any account, was made in 1761, by Colonel Blanchard and Rev. Mr. Langdon, entitled, "An accurate Map of His Majesty's Province of New Hampshire, taken from actual surveys of all the inhabited parts, and from the best information of what is uninhabited, together with the adjacent countries." Only one third of the State was then divided into towns. The map included in New Hampshire the eastern half of Vermont. How much actual survey was concerned may be easily imagined. It does not appear under whose auspices it was undertaken, except that it was dedicated to "Hon. Charles Townshend, His Majesty's Secretary of War." One copy of this curious antiquity is now in the office of the Secretary of State.

The next map of any pretensions was Holland's, of which I am unable to give the history. The third and last was Carrigain's, published in 1815. This was an excellent map for its time, ornamented with views of Boar's Head, Bellows Falls, and the White Mountains. All succeeding maps are reduced and imperfect copies of this, got up by the private enterprise of booksellers. Carrigain's map is wholly out of the market, and the plates, if in existence, will not give forth any more copies. This map professed to be from actual survey, and the maker did procure much actual surveying.

But what was then called actual survey does not now deserve the name, and there is, in fact, no accuracy to that map. For it was not made from one independent survey, which alone can give accuracy, but from a hundred town surveys, made by town surveyors of very limited knowledge; so that when the attempt was made to put them together, they would not fit, and the lines had to be cantracted and expanded at random. The same experiment was tried under far greater advantages in Massachusetts, when, to construct the present State map, towns were enjoined to make a map each of its own territory. After this was done, at immense labor and expense, it was all abandoned, and an original survey of the whole State, from scientific base lines, begun and carried through. The same remains to be done in New Hampshire.

Again, since Carrigain's map was published the lines of division in the State have been extensively changed. Five new counties have been made, and four times that number of new towns. The names of many towns, at least fifteen, have been altered for others, as Nottingham West into Hudson; so that the old map, and of course its intimations, present no accurate view of dividing lines and present nomenclature.

Further, when Carrigain's map was made, the State from Lake Winnipiseogee north, was almost a wilderness, and of course the country had to be delineated on the map from the "best information" that could be got, which was very scanty. No mountains were represented north of the White Mountains proper, whereas there is a range of towering peaks from Mt. Washington through Randolph, Jefferson and Kilkenny. Neither is the range south through Sandwich to the lake put down. Moat Mountain in this quarter is said to be 3200 feet high. All this region has of late become of paramount interest to the traveling public, and the surveys for a new map would not only be of vast service to that public in showing what is known, but develope and direct to interesting points now unknown or overlooked.

Further still, in the north part is a great amount of public lands, besides several townships, belonging to the college and academies. These lands are suddenly becoming very valuable for their timber, soil, and water power, by the opening of the Atlantic and St. Lawrence Railroad. But from the uncertainty of lines and titles, those public interests suffer continually from the depredations committed, and from general ignorance. The State could well afford to make a map for the protection of those interests.

When Carrigain's map was made, there were no railroads; now they interweave the State, and are causing new village and points of enterprise to rise all over the State. Then New Hampshire was not a manufacturing State. Now it is.

And not only these, but the agricultural and other economical interests of the State are concerned. Within the last ten years a geological survey of the State has been made under the sanction of the Legislature, and a very creditable work is that of Dr. Jackson's. A new map is needed which shall present these results to the eye, which may easily be done in a side map by itself.

Fortunately for the State, a portion of the work of an actual survey on the most scientific footing has been done by other folks. The United States coast surveying corps have established several lines in the eastern part of New Hampshire. From this they fixed points on several important heights in the interior of the State, thus determining, in perpetuity, the latitude and longitude of those points. Red Hill and Mount Washington, we understand, have been thus fixed. Again, all the triangulations of Massachusetts in the construction of their map on their northern border, will be available for New Hampshire on its southern border. It is understood there have been governmental surveys to some extent in Canada, which may be available for New Hampshire on the north. The Observatory now being erected at Dartmouth College, furnished with the best astronomical and surveying instruments, will also lend efficient aid in carrying out the survey on the western border of the State. These things the college will probably do for their own purposes.

A map such as is now proposed will reflect high honor on New Hampshire, besides the private advantages she will reap from it. Will there not then be found at the next session of the New Hampshire Legislature, an enlarged view and an open-handed liberality, saying, this work shall be done? We trust there will. Meanwhile the press, both in New Hampshire and out, will subserve a good object by lending its assistance.

A little incident occurred several days ago, not important to be sure, but yet pleasant enough to be mentioned. A gentleman, while conversing with a friend in his office, was complaining that he had several notes to meet, and could not imagine where the money was to be procured for that purpose, he having been disappointed in his calculations. Just about this time a small girl came near the door. She was poorly clad, and carried in her tattered apron a few chips, and was on her way to the place which she dignified with the name "home." She was barefoot, and her ankles were as red as beets. The friend remarked to the gentleman: "Here's a chance for the exercise of your charity. Buy her a pair of shoes, and before night you'll get money enough to pay your notes." The gentleman, not hesitating, accompanied the girl to a shoe store, and purchased her a good pair of shoes. She thanked her benefactor, and then skipped away, with a light heart, and rejoicing, while the benevolent gentleman participated largely in the joy which his generosity had produced in the object of his sympathy.

Before the lapse of an hour, as his friend had predicted, several persons called to pay the gentleman money; and he received not only a sufficient amount to meet his obligations, but had more than enough remaining to buy a pair of boots for himself.—Wash. Sentinel.

Morning Chronicle.

MONDAY, NOV. 21. 1853.

To New Subscribers.—To each person not now on our list, who shall subscribe for the Daily or Weekly Chronicle for the year 1854, and pay for the same in advance, we will supply the paper to Jan. 1, gratis. Terms for the Daily $3—Weekly $1.

Union of National Democrats and National Whigs.—The Syracuse (N. Y.) Republican, of the 17th inst., contains an important leader, developing the probability of a general union between the National Democrats and the National Whigs. As an indication put forth in an influential organ, it attracts considerable attention.

The last sentence, we suppose, belongs to the Boston Courier, from whence we take the whole paragraph. The union referred to, like other coalitions, is to our view quite as lawful as any other mode of political action. If an individual may join any party he prefers, why may he not change his relation when his preference changes? If one man may change, why may not one hundred or one thousand? And if two or more parties split up into factions, why may not the odds and ends come together, and so form new parties?

Still we do not believe such a union as above noticed will meet with much favor, nor do we believe that the two schools of Nationals above named, have any more thought or care about the Nation, or the Union, or the Constitution, than the great body of their neighbors. Attachment to them is a good and commendable trait; but it is possessed in a far greater degree, by the quiet and unobtrusive of all parties, than by the noisy and clamorous, who sigh and groan for public good, but mean their own.

Who Did It.—The Worcester Palladium has the following on the result of the election:

We are disappointed in the result of the election, though we have not disguised our fears, since the abuse at Washington against the Massachusetts democracy, that we might be defeated in carrying the State. The Constitution has been rejected in consequence of the array of the national administration against the coalition, in conjunction with causes of a peculiar character at home; not the least of which was the diversion of the catholic democrats of Boston and other places in favor of the whigs. One consequence of this will soon be the election of forty four Catholic Irishmen to represent the city of Boston; and that will be quite as agreeable to us as to the whigs. When the result is fully known, we shall have leisure to philosophize fully on the subject.

The Palladium is easily frightened, if the bare appehension of an Irish Catholic representation looks so alarming. It is a possibility at which we have looked, but it is not very probable. And should it happen—the world would survive the shock, we fancy, without any direful consequences.

The Secret Ballot.—By the present law in this State, the voters can use the sealed envelope, or throw an open vote in all elections of State officers. We have made inquiries of various ward officers in this city, respecting the number of voters who availed themselves of the privilege of using the secret ballot at the late election. In one ward, where the Democrats and Free Soilers cast upwards of 450 votes, only twenty-three envelopes were used. In the other wards, very few were used, and in some instances the votes were rejected, as the parties placed marks upon the envelopes, contrary to the Statute.—Boston Transcrip,

All right. The secret ballot-law, as the coalition passed it, was an entire preventive against double voting, and a safeguard against espionage. But as the Whigs amended it, it amounts to nothing, exactly as they intended it should.

Mayor of Boston.—We have already noticed Mayor Seaver's re-nomination by the liquor and Union interest in Boston. On the other hand, the "Young Men's League," an independent temperance and law-respecting body, of large numbers, (as they say,) are holding meetings for "a better nomination than may be expected by the Whigs." The "Citizens' Union," too, which last year threw over 5000 votes for Dr. Smith, are in the field, we hear, full of patriotism, and determined to effect the ousting of Mr. Seaver.

These things look like a spirited contest, of the Quadrangular or Pentangular form.

Conviction for the Murder of a Slave.—Thomas Motley has just been convicted at Alterborough, S. C., for the murder of a runaway slave, under circumstances of unparalleled atrocity. He first shot and then whipped the slave; afterwards put him in a vice, and tortured him. He then set him loose, started bloodhounds after him, who run him down, mangling him horridly; and then as a consummation of his fiendish purpose, he cut up the body and fed it out to his dogs.—Worcester Spy.

Please give us your voucher. The story is too bad to believe on mere rumor.

Mrs. Trollope.—The Florence correspondent of the Newark Advertiser, writing on the 20th of October, says:

Mr. Van Buren and his son have been joined here by Ex-Attorney-General Gilpin and lady, and Mr. G. Kemble. Mrs. Trollope, who resides here with her son, has invited them and some of our countrymen to dinner. She professes to regret the publication of her villainous book of travels, and seems disposed to conciliate American feeling. Her more recent writings, I am told, bring her some revenue.

FACT IN FABLE.

A young vine put forth its tender branches. The cold earth could not content it. If it remained there, the serpent would crawl over it, and autumnal leaves would cover it. The graceful beauty of its stems and flowers was worthy of elevation above meaner companionship. It lifted its tendrils to the tall tree near it, and claimed friendship. The towering pine did not object, but told the young aspirant that it had better seek a tree with its boughs near the ground, so that it could derive support from them, in its toilsome ascent to the higher sunshine. But the vine declared that it preferred such a tree, Other vines, it thought, were too dependent. Here they were all round, clinging to oak and ash, and spreading out their foliage on boughs bending down to the soil. It was resolved to cling to the almost branchless pine, and so prove its own strength and its self reliance.

"Ah!" said an old vine, "what foolishness!" The young vine waved itself in the summer air, and stretched forth its arms to the pine.—It clasped the strong trunk, and crept upward. Day and night did it seek to rise, but no sooner had it grown a few feet, than it longed for a sturdy branch on which to lean. The dry breeze and the hot sunshine so enfeebled it, that it implored help, but none came!

"Ah! what foolishness," exclaimed the old vine. The younger drooped. It was about to die. A woodman passed by and heard its mournings. With a gentle hand he unwound the branches, and bound them to a neighboring oak. There it grew; for there nature honored it.

Moral.—Pride must sooner or later learn its dependency.

The Eagle and the Humming Bird.—A towering eagle descended from his lofty flight, and rested amid the trees of the forest. A beautiful little humming bird flew by him, and the air was almost motionless as he passed.

"What a poor thing," said the eagle; "the clouds never bathe its wings, nor the sunshine gleam on it, ere its beams reach the cold earth."

"I can live where you cannot," replied the light wanderer; and it hastened away with delight. The royal bird scorned its insignificancy, and wondered at its nothingness.

Far off in a land where there grew nothing but a few flowers, the eagle and the humming bird again met; and the eagle was weary and faint. His strength was gone. His wing drooped and his eye was dim, for in that land he could find no food. But the humming bird flew about as cheerfully as ever among the flowers, and was as happy as it could be. It had sustenance in the lower sunshine and the pretty low flowers, while the eagle languished.

"Would that I were a humming bird!" exclaimed the eagle, as it covered itself among the flowers, and died.

Free Schools.—The Lowell Journal States that the sixth Article in the proposed new constitution of Massachusetts, has probably been adopted. It bears on sectarian schools, and reads as follows:

"All moneys raised by taxation in the towns, and cities, for the support of public schools, and all moneys which may be appropriated by the State for the support of common schools, shall be applied to and expended in no other schools than those which are conducted according to law, under the order and superintendence of the authorities of the town or city in which the money is to be expended; and such moneys shall never be appropriated to any religious sect, for the maintenance, exclusively, of its own schools."

Many towns polled a large vote in favor of this proposition. In Hampden, Hampshire, Franklin and Berkshire, it gained six hundred votes more than the others. In Boston, the majority against this proposition was 1221 less than against the others. In Lowell, where there was a majority of 147 against the first proposition, there was a majority of 286 for this; a difference of 443.

The idea that all Irish-American Roman Catholic citizens are opposed to this proposition in itself, is entirely without foundation.—The writer of this article in the Journal says he has conversed personally with many prominent Irish-Americans who opposed the new constitution, on this subject, and has found many of them who endorsed the principle herein embodied, say,—"I am satisfied with our common schools as they are now." This is the right sort of spirit for all caudid men, of whatever creed.

Indemnity.—H. W. Clinton, of the Lowell Morning News, has just been paid $500 by the New York and New Haven Railroad Co., as the amount claimed by him for injuries received at the Norwalk accident.

A Present.—The Portland Argus mentions that a Service of Plate, has been presented to Rev. Russell Streeter, recently pastor of the 1st Universalist Society in that city, by the Ladies of his Parish, as a mark of attachment. The service consists of an elegantly ornamented Pitcher, two Goblets, two Napkin Rings, two Knives, two Nut Pickers, Paper Folder, and Salver. The Pitcher bears this inscription:—

"Presented to Rev. Russell Streeter, by the Ladies of the First Universalist Society of Portland, as a testimonial of respect and esteem."

The Goblets are marked, one to Mr. and the other to Mrs. Streeter—as are also the Napkin Rings. The whole cost of the Service was $170. It is a beautiful token of regard, and it must be very consoling to them after a residence of six years, to find such kindly feelings existing at the separation.

LOCAL.

The Germanians.—Everybody who heard it, was pleased with the entertainment of the Germania Musical Society, at the Temple on Friday evening. Although an artistic and finely-finished performance of the first order, it was altogether more within the comprehension and appreciation of the mass, that most similar concerts—Ole Bull's, for instance; yet, though the price of admission was but half that charged by Ole Bull,—and was as low as could be afforded, the Germanians, a score or more of excellent performers, drew no larger audience than the former. There were four hundred or more present.

The lady vocalist, Mad'lle Pintard, received great applause, as did also the Flutist for his exquisite solo, the violinist for his, and indeed the entire band. The gentleman announced to sing, was unwell, and did not appear. The lady executed with uncommon brilliancy and accuracy; her pieces, particularly the Concert Polka, were rapturously received. There has not been so fine a Concert in Portsmouth for many years, and the gentlemen who were instrumental in giving this treat to our citizens, are entitled to their grateful thanks—appearances indicate that they won't receive much else. It is pleasant to have a visit from so large and fine a troupe occasionally, and it is to regretted there was not a fuller attendance.

☞ One of "our cotemporaries" claims to be "more carefully perused by the ladies and young men, than any other paper in this vicinity." Well, they will have to "read carefully" to find anything new in the miscellaneous or advertising line in that paper—some others need only "to be glanced at." It is easier and quicker quenching one's thirst from a vessel brimful, than from one drained nearly dry. We have good reason to believe there are many files of the Chronicle preserved, as of "any other paper in this vicinity."

☞ The Manchester American & Messenger learns that engineers are inspecting the route for a branch of railroad between that city and Candia, to connect with the Portsmouth & Concord Railroad.

We are glad to see this; and hope to see the Road also with all good speed. Where a short connecting link will open a long line of railroad to a place like Manchester; it must be of great advantage to build the link and create union with the long line.

For the Morning Chronicle.

NATURE'S MEANINGS.

BY H. D. M.

There's not a star that shines in Heaven;
There's not a flower that blooms on earth;
There's not a joy to mortals given,
All blissful in its purest birth:—
But guides to some more lasting light,
But thrills with hope of during bloom,
But tells of bliss forever bright,
That glows for aye! beyond the tomb.

Churches in Maine.—The three denominations excelling in numbers in the State of Maine, are the Baptists, the Methodists and Congregationalists.

From the minutes of the Maine Baptist Convention for 1853, we learn that there are in this State, 13 Associations, 291 Churches, 196 Ministers, 13 Licentiates, and 19,862 church members; there were 738 Baptisms the present year.

They report in their Sabbath School statistics 252 schools, 1867 teachers, and 14,237 scholars.

The Methodists have two conferences in this State, divided by the Kennebec. The minutes of each Conference is published separately. Adding together the numbers returned, they have in this State, 184 travelling preachers, 18,025 members in full connexion, and 3,579 probationers, making in all 21,604.

In connection with this denomination, there are 206 Sunday Schools, 2282 teachers, and 11,850 scholars.

We have not seen the Minutes of the Congregational State Conference for 1853. They last year reported 155 ministers, and 16,896 church members.

There are about 12,000 members connected with the Freewill Baptist Churches in this State.—Bath Tribune.

A Terrific Explosion.—Our foreign papers contain an account of the blowing up of the ship Victoria, when within a few days passage of Port Philip, Australia, to which port she was bound, from London April 1st. She was freighted with passengers and a general cargo—among which incredible as it may seem, were four hundred barrels of gunpowder! On the 20th of June, at 10 o'clock at night, an alarm was given that the ship was on fire, at which time the passengers were ignorant of the magazine. Every nerve was strained to launch the boats, which was accomplished just as the flames burst forth into the cabin, and all the people crowded in and pulled for dear life.

They had scarcely reached half a mile from the burning ship before the 400 barrels of powder blew up with terrific force. The ship appeared to be lifted bodily out of the water, and then, with the remaining portion of the cargo, shattered to atoms, and hurled to an immense distance. The sea for miles was covered with her fragments. Some fell into the boat and nearly swamped it, and several of the crew were much burned by the blast of the explosion. The poor creatures were exposed in the boat, without provisions of any description, not even water, for 56 hours, when they were picked up and taken to Melbourne.

What a Smile!—In a lecture before the Manchester (N. H.) Lyceum, Theodore Parker said: "Slavery bears about the same relation to free labor, that a clam-shell does to a reaping machine."

Lyceum Notice.

New Lyceum—At the Temple.—The next Lecture of the Course will be delivered on TUESDAY Evening next, by

Hon. ANSON BURLINGAME, of Cambridge.

Doors open at 7 o'clock, Lecture to commence at 7 1-2.

The tickets for the Lyceum at the Temple are all sold. All those who come with season tickets can be comfortably seated, but the Directors are compelled to refuse selling evening tickets, as the house is now sufficiently filled with season-ticket-holders. It is hoped no one will be disposed to take up more room than is absolutely necessary.

Ticket-holders will see the propriety of fully exhibiting their tickets at the door. They should have them in their hands ready for exhibition when they pass the door-keepers. As impositions have been practised, none can expect to enter before the ticket is exhibited.

When the names of the owners are marked on the back of their tickets, if lost in the Temple they can be returned.

The side-door towards Congress street will be open to accomodate those who wish to enter that way. [n18] C. J. COLCORD, Sec.

Greatest Discovery of the Age.

Planters, Farmers, Families and others can purchase no remedy equal to DR. TOBIAS' VENITIAN LINIMENT, for Dysentery, Colic, Croup, Chronic Rheumatism, Sore Throat, Toothache, Sea Sickness, Cuts, Burns, Swellings, Bruises, Old Sores, Headache, Musquito Bites, Pains in the Limbs, Chest, Back, etc.

If it does not give relief, the money will be refunded; all that is asked is a fair trial, and use it according to the directions.

It is an English Remedy, and was used by William IV. late King of England, and certified to by him, as a cure for Rheumatism, when everything else had failed.

Over 10,000,000 bottles have been sold in the United States, without a single failure, and many have stated that they would not be without it if it was $10 per bottle, in case of Croup, as it is as certain as it is applied.

It cures Cholera, when first taken, in a few hours; Dysentery in half an hour; Toothache in five minutes. It is perfectly innocent to take internally, and is recommended by the most eminent physicians in the United States. Price 25 and 50 cents.

Dr. Tobias could fill a dozen Newspapers with certificates and letters relating to the wonderful cures accomplished by his Liniment, but considers warranting it sufficient, as any person who does not obtain relief, need not pay for it.

Dr. Tobias has put up a HORSE LINIMENT in pint bottles, which is warranted cheaper and better than any other for Cholic, Scratches, Old Sores, Galls, Swellings, Cuts, Bruises, etc.

Price 50 cents. Dr. Tobias's Office, 240 Greenwich street, New York.

European Speculations.—Letters from responsible houses, received by the last steamer, induce the belief in diplomatic circles that there will be no war in Europe, peace being now considered almost certain.

The Star states that complaints have been received against the American Consul at Paraguay, for improperly using the American flag for the protection of one of the vessels stolen by Admiral Coe and sold to the enemies of the cause he was serving when he turned traitor. The Consul is said to have employed her in the service of the New York and Paraguay Company, whose agent he is, after Coe surrendered her, and had the American flag hoisted upon her for protection. The officers of the American squadron who were at Montevideo, when he brought her on the 20th of August, were taking measures to force him to haul down the flag; and were about to ask the State Department to cause his conduct to be investigated.

Appointment.—The Naval Constructor, John Leuthall, has been appointed Chief of the Bureau of Construction, vice Admiral Hart, who takes Mr. Leuthall's position.

Hon. Lynn Boyd of Kentucky has arrived in this city. It is said that he will be a candidate for re-election as Speaker of the House.

A sad affair occurred at the St. Charles Hotel, St. Louis, a few nights since by which two children were burned to death. A Mrs. Hicks, who occupied a room in the Hotel, left it that evening only to be absent a few minutes. She left in the room her two little girls, one aged 3 years and the other 13 months, the latter dying on the bed. While she was gone the oldest one commenced playing with the fire, when her dress accidentally caught, and she ran to the bed where her little sister lay, and in a few minutes the bed was in flames. The youngest child was burned to death, and very much disfigured by the action of the fire, and the oldest was found in the last agonies of death, and lived only a short time. The father left only a short time since for California.

THE WENTWORTH FORGERY.—Several days ago, we published a brief account of a pension forgery by a Mr. Wentworth, closing with Wentworth's suicide in Portland jail.—The Argus is indebted to Mr. Aaron Eveleth, of New Gloucester, whose name was one of those forged by the late Arnold Wentworth, for the following additional facts:—

One of these persons, Mary Eveleth, whose name was forged, was evidently a mere fictitious character, no such person being known in or around New Gloucester. The only connection Mr. Aaron Eveleth has with the supposed pension interest, is in the fact that his father married Arnold Wentworth's grandmother, the time of whose decease was the principal subject of the forgery. By this marriage, some of the family records of the Wentworths came into the possession of Mr Eveleth's father, and through him to his son. An examination of these documents produced a protracted correspondence between Mr. Eveleth and Mr. Wentworth, and abundant evidence was furnished the latter that widow Sarah Eveleth died in the fall of 1826. He stated that his object was get a pension for his father.

Mr. Eveleth informs us that, as far as he could judge of Mr. Wentworth from personal acquaintance and report, he was considered honest in his common transactions between man and man. But he evidently imbibed the idea that as the government was rich, a few hundreds or thousands would not be missed—an error which has proved fatal to himself. He leaves a family, and a father over 90 years old, to mourn his unhappy fate.

SINGULAR FACT.—An old lady who died some years since in Weymouth at the age of 93, is said never to have stirred beyond the town limits. Her ideas of the world around her must have been singularly vague and undefined—somewhat like those entertained by the Chinese, who in their maps represent China as comprising three-fourths of the habitable globe.

French Flour has been carried to Australia and California in good order. The barrels in which it was packed were steam dried, and the entire inside of the barrel lined with thick paper of strong texture, the paper pasted together so as to form an entire coating.

An engineer, who was taking a short pleasure trip on the Chicago and Alton Railroad, on Saturday, put his locomotive through a drove of oxen, and killed five of them. An employee on the same road was killed, and another horribly crushed, by the running of a wood train off the track.

The Boston Spiritualists have made arrangements for a series of public lectures at the Melodeon. Warren Chase, of Wisconsin, will commence the course, and will be followed by Judge Edmonds, of New York.

DISSOLVING VIEWS.—A late English paper, speaking of the Eastern Question, which at present engrosses the earnest attention of all Europe, says "it still maintains its character for rapid and perplexing oscillations—still continues to present a series of dissolving views."

AN OLD APPLE.—The Hallowell Gazette says:—Mr. P. Morton of this city, showed us an apple the other day, which he picked from a tree 31 years ago. The apple is in a good state of preservation and is quie a curiosity.

THE CELEBRATED

LOWELL COAL & GAS BURNER

For Anthracite Coal.

MANY futile attempts have been made to construct COAL STOVES which should consume the gases, and at the same time be simple and easily managed.

We think that Mr. D. G. LITTLEFIELD, the Patentee of this Stove, has been eminently successful in his efforts to produce this result—indeed it is so unlike all other stoves, and so superior to them, that the whole truth would hardly be believed, except by those who have used them.

One ton of coal burned in this Stove will generate as much heat as TWO TONS consumed in any other Stove extant.

For a particular description we would refer the public to the following communication from Mr. Littlefield:

All skilful coal burners, and stove manufacturers, are conscious that a great error has pervaded the forms of all the apparatus for burning anthracite coal. No one, however, has been able to determine where the difficulty lay. Nearly all attempted improvements for consuming the gases, have been based upon the presumption that the common method of burning in a tight pot of some kind, either of cast iron or sheet iron lined with stone or brick, was correct, and their improvements have been made over and above this point in the apparatus. It is true the form of the pot has been changed from time to time, from the long cylinder with grate at the bottom, to the short and broad cylinder, and then to the bottle form, then square, then oval, and then contracted at the top, and then at the bottom, and very shallow, each having its advantages and disadvantages, but all operating substantially in the same manner in one respect, namely, that the gases are expelled from the coal and immediately rise unburned to the upper part of the apparatus, where they cannot burn perfectly, being withdrawn from the action and greatest heat of the fire, and must either pass through the flues, or into the apartment to be heated, thus causing a great loss of heat, and the only unpleasant difference between heat produced by coal and that of the wood fire.

Carburetted and sulphuretted hydrogen are freely liberated in burning coal. These gases, altho' perfectly combustible, and therefore easily disposed of, are really the direct cause of nearly all the inconvenience in burning coal. Every very volatile, a large portion of them escape through the flues unburned, or into the room from open stoves, and through the joints of close stoves, producing various unpleasant sensations, such as langor and headache, so common among those who live in a room heated by coal. In addition to this, they act upon and in time destroy the stove and pipe, particularly that part near the chimney. In any city where anthracite coal is used to any extent, the effects can be seen in that part of the chimney above the roof of nearly every house which has been built five years.

I wish now to call the particular attention of the reader to the common method of burning coal in a cylinder, with a flat grate at the bottom. It is well known that when a hard coal fire is started, it is with charcoal or some other very combustible material. The first impression made on the anthracite coal is to heat it; this expels the gases or most inflammable portion of the coal, which being volatile, and the pot open at the top, immediately rises above the coal, and is consequently out of reach of the strongest action of the fire. It is a well-known principle that a gaseous substance, expelled from a solid body by the action of heat, rises above and mostly escapes any further action of the same heat which expelled it. The experience of every one that has given attention to coal burning is, that the best results are obtained with the common pot, by a very slow process of burning, covered with ashes, or wet and fine coal. The reason is obvious. By this method more of the volatile substances are retained and consumed within the pot, and in contact with the coal, thereby producing a more perfect combustion of the fixed matter, as well as being burnt themselves, preventing the accumulation of old coal on the grate, and making no clinkers. Sometimes, with great care, a stove can be made to run from week to week, a result very desirable, but only obtained by the utmost care and skill. We need no better evidence that there is a radical defect in past construction of fire pots, than that with them the nicest calculation, prudence and judgment were necessary, to obtain comparatively poor results.—In fact, we may safely say that the form of pot open at the top, and with a grate at the bottom, for burning anthracite coal, is all wrong. The fire by its own action becomes wrong side up. The volatile matter, which is combustible, is expelled, and passes off imperfectly burned, instead of being consumed before it escapes, and helping as nature designed it, to consume the fixed matter in the bottom. A method of burning coal that accomplishes this object, that is, the combustion of the volatile matter in contact with the coal, is the only one that has any claim to be called scientific.

A stove constructed upon the principle above referred to, has been invented; and, after repeated experiments, brought so far perfected as to justify its introduction into the market. Its construction is exceedingly simple, requiring but little skill in the operator, when a fire is once started, (which is easily done); all that is necessary is a constant supply of coal, and a little attention from time to time, to keep a fire from month to month.

AGENCY FOR BUSINESS

With the U. S. Patent Office, Washington,

No. 22 State Street, Boston.

IMPORTANT INFORMATION TO INVENTORS.—The Subscriber (late Assistant of the U. S. Patent Office, under the Act of 1837) determined to present advantages, in applying for Patents, superior to those offered to inventors by others, has made arrangements whereby on applications prepared and conducted by him, THIRTY DOLLARS (instead of twenty, as paid back by others,) will be remitted by him in case of failure to obtain a patent, and the withdrawal through him within thirty days after the rejection. Caveats, Specifications, Assignments and all necessary papers and drawings, for procuring patents in this and foreign countries prepared, and advice rendered on legal and scientific matters respecting inventions, and infringement of patents.

Inventors can not only here obtain their specifications on the most reasonable terms, but can here avail themselves of the experience of 20 years' practice, an extensive library of legal and mechanical works, and correct accounts of patents granted in this and other countries: besides being saved a journey to Washington, the usual great delay there, as well as all personal trouble in obtaining their patents. Copies of claims of any patent furnished by remitting one dollar.—Assignments recorded at Washington.

R. H. EDDY,

Solicitor of Patents.

"During the time I occupied the office of Commissioner of Patents, R. H. Eddy, Esq., of Boston, did business at the Patent Office, as Solicitor of Patents. There were few, if any persons acting in that capacity, who had so much business before the Patent Office; and there were none who conducted it with more skill, fidelity, and success. I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the best informed and most skilful Patent Solicitors in the United States, and have no hesitatation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a person more competent and trustworthy, and more capable of putting their application in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office.

PROF. ALEX. C. BARRY'S

Tricopherous, or Medicated Compound.

FOR beautifying, curling, preserving, restoring and strengthening the Hair, relieving diseases of the Skin, curing Rheumatic Pains and healing external wounds. Bounded by no geographical lines, the reputation of Barry's Tricopherous pervades the Union. The sales of the article of late years have increased in a ratio that almost exceeds belief. Prof. Barry, after a careful examination of his sales book, finds that the number of bottles delivered to order, in quantities of from half a gross upward, during the year 1852, was within a little of 250,000.

It is unnecessary to present at length the evidences of the wonderful properties of the Tricopherous when the public have furnished such an endorsement as this. The cheapness of the article, and the explanations given of its chemical action upon the hair, the scalp, and in all cases of superficial irritation, first recommended it to the attention of the people. This was all that the inventor desired. Every bottle advertised itself. The effects of the fluid exceeded expectation. It acted like a charm. The ladies would not be without it. Country dealers in every section of the United States found they must have it; and thus was built up a business, the like of an extent hitherto unheard of as regards articles of this kind. The highest point has not yet been reached, and it is believed that the sales this year will be a million and a half of bottles.

Liberal discount to purchasers by the quantity, and by all the principal Merchants and Druggists throughout the United States and Canada, Mexico, West Indies, Great Britain, France, &c., and by Weeks & Potter, Brewers, Stevens & Cushing, and Wm. Brown, Boston. d&wóm je22

DR. CONINE'S

SYRUP OF GINSENG & MALVA.

The Great Chinese Remedy.

THIS Medicine depends more upon its own virtues and actual merit than any other ever before offered to the public.

The recipe is from Dr. CONINE, a gentleman who travelled many years in China, and in the islands of that vicinity, where this compound is the potent and effectual remedy for the numerous diseases arising from a disordered or debilitated stomach, and

Affections of the Lungs.

But what will particularly attract attention is its astonishing

DISSOLVENT POWER,

By which it at once removes ALL PHLEGM or extraneous matter from the Throat, Stomach or Lungs. It is therefore

Anti-Expectorant,

And from attentions of trial here, it is now offered as Warren's Renown Remedy for the removal of Consumption, Whooping Cough, and all Coughs, by precipitating the Phlegm, instead of creating irritation by expectoration.

It is AROMATIC, and increases the general warmth, possessing the exhilarating qualities of the Tea Plant, which is one great cause of its universal popularity in all India beyond the Ganges, where as an

APPETISER

It probably has no equal in the Vegetable Kingdom

AS A DYSPEPTIC REMEDY, IT IS UNEQUALLED.

Its natural, genial warmth keeps the digestive powers ever in proper tone, soothing all irritation of the nerves, &c.

It will prove a more pleasant, safe and effectual Tonic than any Sarsaparilla or other boasted tonic remedy, and even nutritious, as well as exceedingly palatable. It will continue to be prepared in the best manner—no expense being spared—and in quart bottles.

Besides the numberless testimonials which we are receiving daily, of the good effect of the above medicine, we are allowed to refer to several physicians, who are now using the Syrup of Ginseng and Malva with great success.

MORNING CHRONICLE.

BY MILLERS & GRAY. PORTSMOUTH, N. H., TUESDAY, NOVEMBER 22, 1853. VOLUME 3. NO. 98.

THE DAILY MORNING CHRONICLE

is published by

FRANK W. MILLER, SAMUEL GRAY, & THOS. W. MILLER,

At No. 4 Exchange Buildings,

Pleasant Street,.....PORTSMOUTH, N. H.

TERMS $4 a year, or $3 if paid strictly in advance.

The Weekly Chronicle,

A family newspaper, containing the news of the week, with carefully selected miscellany, &c., is published every Saturday morning—at $1 a year in advance.

ADVERTISING.—For a Square of sixteen lines nonpareil, or less, one insertion 50 cts., three insertions $1, and liberal terms for continuance.

Yearly, quarterly or monthly advertisers liberally accommodated—and their advertisements inserted in both papers without extra charge, thus affording unequalled facilities to business men.

☞ All accounts settled semi-annually.

JOB AND CARD PRINTING promptly executed.

ENTERPRIZE AND BOXER.

J. T. Headley, in his recently published "History of the Second War with England," gives the following account of the battle between the Enterprize and Boxer, fought off Portland.

"The Enterprise was kept between Cape Ann and the Bay of Fundy, to chase off the privateers that vexed our commerce in those waters. She was a successful cruiser against these smaller vessels, capturing several and sending them into port. A few days before Perry's victory, this vessel left the harbor of Portland, and while sweeping out to sea discovered a strange sail close in shore. The latter immediately hoisted four British ensigns, and stood on after the Enterprize. Lieut. Burrows, the commander, kept away, and ordered a long gun forward to be brought aft and run out of one of the windows. He had but lately joined the ship, and hence was but little known by the under officers and men. The latter did not like the looks of this preparation, especially as he kept carrying on sail. They feared he had made up his mind to run, and this gun was to be used as a stern-chaser. From the moment they had seen the British ensign they were eager to close with the enemy, and the disappointment irritated them. The seamen on the forecastle stood grouped together, discussing the strange conduct on the part of their commander for a while, and then went to their officer and begged him to go and see about it—to tell the captain they wanted to fight the British vessel, and they believed they could whip her. The latter finally went forward and spoke to the first lieutenant, who told them they need not be troubled, Mr. Burrows would soon give them fighting enough to do. This was satisfactory, and they looked cheerful again. The preparations all being made, and the land sufficiently cleared, Burrows shortened sail and bore down on the enemy. As the two vessels, approaching diagonally, came within pistol shot of each other, they delivered their broadsides, and bore away together. The Enterprise, however, drew ahead, and Burrows finding himself ahead of the enemy's bows, ordered the helm down, and passed directly across his track, raked him with his long gun from the cabin window.

He then waited for him to come up on the other quarter, when they again moved off alongside of each other, firing their broadsides, till at last the main topmast of the English vessel came down. Raking her again with his long gun, Burrows took up his station on her bows, and poured in a rapid and destructive fire.

The serving men of the carronades being sadly reduced in numbers, and unable to manage their pieces, Burrows stepped forward, seized hold of the tackle to help them run it out. Placing his feet against the bulwark to pull with greater force, he was struck in the thigh by a shot which glanced from the bone and entered his body, inflicting a mortal and exceedingly painful wound. He refused, however, to be carried below, and laid down on deck, resolved, though writhing in excruciating agony, to encourage his officers and men by his presence so long as life lasted.

In forty minutes from the commencement of the action the enemy ceased firing, and hailed to say he had struck. The commanding officer ordered him to haul down his flag. The latter replied they were nailed to the mast, and could not be lowered till the firing ceased. It was then stopped, when an English officer sprang on a gun, and shaking both fists at the Americans, cried, "No—no," and swore and raved, gesticulating in the most ludicrous manner, till he was ordered below. This, together with the awkward manner of lowering colors with levers and hatchets, drew peals of laughter from the American sailors.

Lieutenant Burrows lived till the sword of the English commander was placed under his head, when he murmured "I die contented." This vessel, which proved to be the Boxer, was terribly cut up; but the number of killed was never ascertained, as they were thrown overboard as fast as they fell. She had fourteen wounded, while the loss of the Americans was one killed and thirteen wounded."

OBITUARY NOTICE OF THE SOFTS.—Fresh in our recollections is the obituary notice of the whig party given in the New York Tribune about one year ago. In summing up the results of the election in that State it gives the following obituary of the Softs.

The Softs are no more a power. Henceforth, we shall be obliged to confront the National Democracy of 48, standing squarely and earnestly on the Baltimore Platform, and warranted not to run from the Assembly Chamber when required to indorse or condemn the pro-slavery positions of the President's Inaugural. Once more we shall be brought face to face with the unsound and perilous doctrine of Gen Cass's Nicholson letter, so justly denounced by Secretary Davis as affirming a "squatter sovereignty" over the vast Territories of the Union, and suspending the tremendous question of Freedom or Slavery for a future State on the accident of forty or only thirty-five of the first seventy-five settlers therein happening to be for or against the blighting scourge. The Nationals are our national antagonists, whom we respect even while compelled to resist them; and the extinction of the Softs will clear the political atmosphere of many foul vapors and enable many dim eyes to see, where all is now darkness or confusion.

SHORT VOYAGE ROUND THE GLOBE.—The English Iron Screw Steamer of 300 horse power, which lately arrived at Plymouth, England, from Melbourne in 64 days, having made her outward passage in the same space of time, returned not by the way of the Cape of Good Hope, as has been stated, but by way of Cape Horn. She accordingly completed the circumnavigation of the globe in the short space of 128 days, or a little more than four months. She was actually under steam and canvass only 121 days. The total distance run out and home has been 27,900 miles; giving an average per day of nearly 230 miles, or slightly over 9 1-2 miles per hour. In the annals of steam navigation no such satisfactory result has hitherto been presented. Steam power has only been used as an auxiliary, when the winds happened to be light or adverse. The consumption of coal during the whole passage has therefore only amounted to 2,105 tons, of which 845 tons were expended outward, and 1,260 tons homeward, giving an average of rather more than 17 tons per diem.

The Argo in her late voyage completely beat the overland route by the delivery of the mails from Sydney in 21 days shorter space of time. A letter dated at Southampton, says that the splendid success of the Argo affords further proof of the correctness of the opinion long entertained there, that the best long sea route is that by way of the Cape of Good Hope, for the outward voyage, and that round Cape Horn homeward.

Democratic Victory.—The Boston National Democrat says:

"The election has also established this fact, that the national democrats now hold the balance of power in the Commonwealth, and they will assuredly use that power to accomplish those desirable reforms which the people need, and which the coalition failed to give them, notwithstanding the profusion of their promises.

And if the whig party, in the hour of temporary triumph, should set at nought the will of the people, and refuse to aid in accomplishing such reforms as the people need, the national democracy will hurl them from power, as they have the coalition.

The people of Massachusetts are really democratic, and whatever party may be in power, no essential departure from democratic principles will be tolerated by them."

Setting aside the little self-complacency visible in the above extract, there is some truth in it, especially in the latter part of it. The people of Massachusetts are indeed imbued with "democratic principles," and "whatever party" may get the ascendency for a time, those principles must be respected. One of the most deeply rooted of these principles, is, love of liberty and law, and a desire for their universal extension and enjoyment. Ardent partisans are apt to forget it; but it is at their own risk when they do so.

The people of that State, the real democracy, are at once conservative and progressive; ready and willing to make reforms, one by one, when they understand them; but not ready at any time, to throw every law into a heap of repeal, and then toss up a copper to see which shall be re-enacted. This democracy does not belong to any party exclusively, not even to the National, the Coalition or the Free:—it is found in them all, and outside them all; and exists in its greatest abundance and its greatest purity, among that class of men who trouble their neighbors the least by making a parade of it.

A Southern View.—The Charleston (S. C.) Mercury, speaking of the Fugitive Slave Bill, says—"the South has gained nothing but a loss by this bill. It was a stupid blunder on the part of Southern statesmen." It further says, "the hard features of the law, and the barbarous enforcement of them, provoke hatred to the institution abroad, and opposition to it at home."

We have seen this same view taken by other intelligent southern writers, and it is doubtless correct. The intelligent christian men and women of the South, abhor oppression and cruelty as heartily as those of any other locality—and such as these had not the chief agency in making the law, or in clamoring about a peace-offering at which the Charleston Mercury now points the finger of scorn. Trading politicians did the deed, and in so doing they "sold themselves for nought, and no man bought them." Now the Mercury laughs at them; and the lookers on say, "serves 'em right."

Good for the Lawyers.—When Uncle Sam foots the bills, and has plenty of funds to do it without grumbling, we should not wonder if cases were continued sometimes.

Here is a case in point. Some time last summer, a mulatto man named Freeman, a wealthy and respectable citizen of Indiana, was claimed by one Ellington, of Kentucky, as a fugitive slave. Freeman was thrown into jail, and there kept a long time, paying $1,00 per day privilege, when, by the greatest exertion, he was enabled to prove his freedom.—He then sued Ellington and the U. S. Marshal who arrested him, for false imprisonment. In behalf of the latter, Senator Bright, of Indiana, has written to Hon. Caleb Cushing, asking his opinion as Attorney-General of the United States, whether the case can be transferred from the Courts of the State of Indiana to those of the United States; and whether the Marshal may be authorized to employ counsel in his defence, at the charge of the United States. The Attorney answers the first question in the negative, and the latter in the affirmative. So the trial will go on in the Indiana Courts, and Uncle Sam foots the bill for the Marshal's defence. The points of law herein, if fairly reported, will have some interest to all classes of men who take the trouble to think about law at all, as having any possible connexion with justice.

The Rev. B. S. Fenton was installed pastor of the Franklin street Baptist Church, in Fall River on Tuesday evening. Sermon by the Rev. Moses How, of New York.

If Elder How preached the sermon, we strongly suspect it was no Baptist Church at all. Rev. Moses How belongs to the Christian Connexion.

Killed by Kindness.—The celebrated and highly-prized race-horse Tally-Ho, was treated by his groom to a mess of green corn, a few evenings since, at Fairfield, Va., and died in consequence, next day.

The fellow who "carried out a project" was obliged to bring it back again.

Pierre Toussaint.—Here is a book embellished with the portrait of a black man—Some abolition incendiary document, the reader says. Not at all. Toussaint was a negro slave, born in St. Domingo in 1766, and brought to New York by the family to whom he was a slave, and with whom he remained till he was set free by his mistress at her death. He was indeed, her main stay and support for years, and the steadfast friend of the family as long as he lived. He was a devout and devoted Roman Catholic all his days; and in his life and acts, he shone forth as a man and a christian, so that thousands who knew him, looked upon him with an admiration which forgot his sect and color, remembering only that he was one of nature's noblemen. He must be a very stupid man who can read the book without interest; and a very bad one who can read it without improvement. Toussaint died in New York, in June last, at the age of 86, and unusual honor was paid to his memory. His story is a very extraordinary one, and his example, it has been well said, "is a higher vindication of his race, or rather a nobler testimony to the beauty and force of character, than all the works of fiction that studious invention ever conceived." The Memoir is written by Mrs. Lee, Author of Three Experiments In Living, &c., &c.—an assurance that what is said is well said.

Crosby & Nichols, of Boston, are the publishers. The book is for sale by J. H. Foster in this city.

Butter.—There is, it appears, no real scarcity of this article, throughout the country, though in some localities there is no overplus. As the latest item in the butter market, we are glad to see it stated from the Schoharie, New York, Republican, that the recent fall in the price of butter has somewhat frightened the dealers thereabouts, who have been holding on for better prices, and consequently are now rushing the butter to market in haste. Ten or fifteen tons of butter passed through Schoharie on Monday's trains, on its way to Albany and New York. The speculators in New York have already large stocks on hand, and they will be obliged to let down a few notches in their price, or still hold on, perhaps to a disadvantage.

Flogging in the Navy and Merchant Service.—The words of the law by which flogging on ship board was abolished are—"That flogging in the Navy, and on board vessels of commerce, be and the same is hereby abolished from and after the passage of this act." The verb flog is thus defined by Webster: "To beat or strike with a rod or whip; to whip; to lash; to chastise with repeated blows; a colloquial word applied to whipping or beating for punishment, as to flog a school-boy or a sailor."

We think there must be a very grave error in the telegraphic report of the charge of Judge Curtis, at the session of the United States Circuit Court, in Rhode Island, where it is stated he said "that the flogging which is prohibited by this act, is only the flogging which had been practiced in the Navy—that is, with the cat. The law does not prohibit any other mode of correcting seamen."—Boston Transcript.

It seems strange that it should take more than a day to hear from Rhode Island by mail, if the telegraph has made Judge Curtis's cat decision worse than he made it himself. We have always supposed Judge C. to be a lawyer of eminence; but if he has decided or charged the rope's end back again into the sea service, in the face and eyes of so plain a statute as the above, he deserves a leather medal as well as Judge Myrick and Justice Pearson.

Honor among Thieves.—This is mostly a humbug of the romancers, though there may be such a thing now and then. In the Boston Municipal Court, Tolman Willey, Esq., had his overcoat stolen on Friday, while defending Johnson, one of the persons charged with robbing Francis Jennings and throwing him into the dock. At the close of his earnest appeal, he looked for his coat, but some of the "good people" had taken it.

A Real Scene.—Last Saturday, at the Howard Atheneum, in Boston, while playing in the "French Spy," Mr. D. S. Palmer received a blow upon his head in a combat scene, which injured him so severely that he fainted upon the stage, and with great difficulty got through the performance.

Got his Deserts.—On Sunday evening, (says the Lowell Herald) a scoundrel by the name of Woodbury Clough invited a young girl of sixteen, an operative in one of our mills, to take a walk with him. On her consenting he led her up into the neighborhood of the old burying ground and there basely attempted an assault on her person. He found out his mistake, however, and the girl, though without relatives in the city, found friends who yesterday had Clough arrested, when he was taken before the Police Court, and in default of payment of a fine of $10 and costs was sent for three months to the House of Correction.

Served him right! only not quite hard enough,—say the people. Pass him round, we say to the daily and weekly press.

A Savannah paper, in allusion to Miss Bremer's having called Savannah "the city of Gushing springs," says that "the old pumps, which are the only fountains in the place, ought to hold up their heads at the compliment, and wag their handles."

LOCAL.

DEDICATION OF THE WOODBURY SCHOOL HOUSE.

The above named school house, situated at Gravelly Ridge, in this city, was dedicated on Monday evening, Nov. 21st. Although the weather was unpropitious, the house was filled, and many stood in the entry for want of accommodations in the school room. Hon. C. S. Toppan was called upon to preside, and made a few introductory remarks, after which the following ode, written by Miss Sarah A. Coffin was sung:

ODE.

BY MISS S. A. COFFIN.

In olden times assembled crowds
Were wont with pride to gather round,
To dedicate some splendid pile,
To worship gods unknown, unfound.

But we, for nobler purposes,
Have congregated here to-day,
And to a known and honored God
We reverently commit our way.

Assembled in this spacious room
We've met, to consecrate these walls—
To educate the young—to add
One more to learning's valued halls.

Our Common Schools! New England's pride!
Most dear to every freeman's heart!
Nurs'ries of all that's good and great!
Our commonwealth's most glorious part!

Our Father, bless, we pray, the youth
Who will around this platform stand;
Touch them with the electric spark
Of wisdom from thy mighty hand.

Blessings we ask on all, who fill
This desk, to lead each infant mind
In knowledge, wisdom's, virtue's way!
Make it a task, by love refined.

May this room ever be the scene
Of tasks, and duties finished well!
Teacher and taught—united all—
Having one motto—"To excel!"

A prayer was then made by the Rev. Mr. Moore, after which an ode composed for the occasion, by the same gentleman, was sung by the choir:

ODE.

BY REV. MR. MOORE.

Let others wake the boastful strain
To sculptured temples rare;
And bow before the gorgeous fane,
To pay their worship there:—
But we will raise a nobler song,
The song of Freedom's band;
And sing,—while joy the strains prolong,—
The School House of the land!

Let myriad serfs in other lands,
Adore the conqueror's name;
And rear aloft with slavish hands,
The monumental fame:—
But we will rear with honest toil,
From inland to the coast,
The School House,—fruit of Freedom's soil;—
New England's pride and boast!

Go, ask of kings to tell you o'er
The story of their fame?
With all the noise of battle-roar,
Has died away their name.
But ask, O sons! whose fathers bled
The trophies of their hands?
Their shades, with majesty will lead,
To where the School House stands!

Hail: School House; Temple of the Free!
The shrine where Freemen bend!
The bulwark of our Liberty,—
Do thou our homes defend.
And while our rivers flow along,
And hills adorn the land:—
Let every heart awake the song—
"Now let the School House stand!"

A dedicatory address was then delivered by Rev. Mr. Lamson, which we intend to publish to-morrow.

Addresses were also made by Charles Levi Woodbury, Esq., of Boston, Rev. Mr. Moore, and Hon. C. S. Toppan. Rev. Mr. Hoyt, of Newington, being called upon to speak, declined, and sang a poem, which we shall also publish to morrow.

The choir then sang a voluntary.

N. D. Miller, Esq., in behalf of the committee of arrangements, thanked the gentlemen who had addressed the meeting, and the choir, which was under the direction of Mr. J. P. Payson, for the music furnished.

The benediction was given by Rev. Mr. Hoyt, and the exercises closed, at about half past 9 o'clock.

The proceedings were well arranged and carried out, and everything passed off in the most pleasant manner possible.

☞ Nearly all our clergymen earnestly discoursed on the subject of temperance, during some part of Sabbath last. One of them is reported as having said that there are not a dozen young men in Portsmouth who do not drink intoxicating liquors—or something to that effect. This is a mistake. He simply stated that a young man had told him that something like this was his opinion,—and that another had said that he did not know of twenty tetotallers among his young acquaintance, which was large. But the speaker discredited such a sweeping statement as the first, and went on deducing arguments from a more rational but still deplorable estimate. The truth is bad enough, in this matter; so let us have no exaggeration. And we are sure the reverend gentleman referred to made none.

☞ One of "our cotemporaries" says that "many have agreed to take his paper from and after the first of January, without the inducement of having it sent gratis for the two months previously." Perhaps it wouldn't be considered much of an "inducement,"—that offer, in his case.

Railroad to Dover.—A Dover correspondent of the Boston Herald says:

The exact distance from Dover to Portsmouth is 9 3-4 miles, and from Dover to great Falls 4 1-2 miles. The estimated costs per mile including land damages is $18,000, and the road will be in a running condition by the fourth of July next.

The Last Rose.—Mr. Job Jenness, of the Ocean House, Rye, has just laid on our desk a new blown rose, beautiful and fragrant, of the variety called the Early Juno Rose, which blew out on Sunday, on a bush growing in the open ground between the Ocean House and the Sea. The same bush was full of similar roses, in their proper season. We mean to use it in a Thanksgiving boquet.

Rhymes with Reason and Without.—We learn from the Boston Evening Gazette, that Mr. B. P. Shillaber has written a poem which he intends to deliver before several Lyceums. Those who heard Mr. Shillaber's poem at the late celebration in this city, will entertain no doubts that he will be as successful in this new field of labor as he has in his popular line, under the nom de plume of Mrs. Partington.

Take the Right.—That is the law of the road, among carriages and horsemen, and is so understood and observed. It ought to be the law of the streets and sidewalks, among foot passengers, where it would prevent much embarrassment. A gentleman, walking with a lady, should give her his right arm; and then, when two such couples meet, the two gentlemen come in the centre. There should be no walking three abreast, unless the track is clear. But the main thing is, keep to the right.

☞ Mr. Charles G. Smith has been appointed clerk of the Naval Storekeeper at this Navy Yard, vice Col. George Sparhawk, resigned.

Franklin Mills Hosiery, fine, substantial, and handsomely finished, may be found at the store of Towle & Co., agents for Portsmouth, who have lately furnished us with some specimens of the Manufacture. See advertisement.

☞ Owing to the unfavorable state of the weather, Rev. Mr. Lamson again postponed the commencement of his Course of Lectures to Young Men, to some evening which will be hereafter announced.

Lyceum Notice.

NEW LYCEUM—At the Temple.—The next Lecture of the Course will be delivered on TUESDAY Evening next, by
Hon. ANSON BURLINGAME, of Cambridge.
Doors open at 7 o'clock, Lecture to commence at 7 1-2.

THE tickets for the Lyceum at the Temple are all sold. All those who come with season tickets can be comfortably seated, but the Directors are compelled to refuse selling evening tickets, as the house is now sufficiently filled with season-ticket-holders. It is hoped no one will be disposed to take up more room than is absolutely necessary.

Ticket-holders will see the propriety of fully exhibiting their tickets at the door. They should have them in their hands ready for exhibition when they pass the door-keepers. As impositions have been practiced, none can expect to enter before the ticket is exhibited.

When the names of the owners are marked on the back of their tickets, if lost in the Temple they can be returned.

The side-door towards Congress street will be open to accomodate those who wish to enter that way. [n18] C. J. COLCORD, Sec.

ANOTHER SUICIDE.—Mr. William Currier of Wilton, committed suicide on Saturday morning by hanging himself in the barn of Mr. Abijah Hildreth. He was about 30 years old, had lost his wife, and leaves a family of five children. Anxiety of mind arising from pecuniary difficulties is supposed to have influenced him to commit the act. This is the seventh case of suicide which has occurred in this county since the 1st of September.—Manchester Democrat.

MR. Samuel Smith of Winchester, N. H., was drowned while returning home from Keene on Monday last. The river, in consequence of the heavy rain, had overflowed the road, and in attempting to drive through the water she got upset, with the fatal result above stated. A little boy who was with her was rescued.—Springfield Republican.

COLLISION.—Steamboat Commodore, from New York for Stonington, came in contact on Friday evening, in North River, with the brig Cape Town, lying at anchor, bound to Norfolk. The brig's jibboom, bowsprit, and cat-head were carried away, and considerable other damage was done. The Commodore was materially damaged above deck, having lost her cook house, stove wheel house, &c.—She drifted towards Red Hook, where she lay at anchor all night. The passengers remained on board. The Commodore's passengers arrived in Boston on Sunday night at ten o'clock.

JENNY LIND.—The New York correspondent of the Charleston Courier learns, through a friend just arrived from Vienna, that Mme. Goldschmidt has retained but $130,000 of the vast fortune which she made in this country, and that this comprises her entire worldly possessions. She will positively appear on the stage again next summer, but in concerts only. She will visit England first, but will not probably favor the "land of the West" again with her matchless voice.

JUST AND RIGHT.—In the Boston Municipal Court on Saturday, William Murphy, the fellow who made the murderous assault on watchman Zaccheus Holmes, in Green street, on the morning of the 30th ult., with an iron bar, and who was subsequently arrested on a shed in the rear of officer Rogers's house in Billerica street, was arraigned, and pleaded guilty of the assault; but denied the "malice aforethought." He urged, in mitigation, that he was drunk when he committed the crime, but it was shown that he was sober. He was sentenced to hard labor in the State Prison for ten years, including five days solitaty confinement. Master Murphy has already served a term of two years in our State Prison; and has spent four years of his youthful life in the Rhode Island Penitentiary.

The Funeral of Mr. Atherton took place at Nashua, N. H., Thursday, P. M. The attendance of citizens and strangers was very large; places of business were closed, and the whole town bore the aspect of mourning.—The funeral services were attended in the Unitarian Church, and the Rev. Mr. Gage of Westborough, Mass., and Rev. Mr. Le Baron of Manchester, N. H., officiated.

DEATH BY A POLICEMAN.—Officer John Stevens of Cincinnatti, while taking John M. Ragan to prison on Thursday, was severely assaulted by the latter, when the officer struck him three severe blows with his fist, one behind the ear, which dislocated the bones of the neck from their attachment to the head.—He expired soon afterwards. Stevens gave bail in $5,000.

There is very little doubt he will be acquitted, for the fatal blow seems to have been struck in self defence.

A SNAKE STORY.—A Texan tells a very good story of a snake in that country, which was caught one night stealing eggs. The writer and his wife were aroused in the middle of the night by the crash occasioned by the falling of their cups and plates from the dresser. Springing up to see the author of this "attack upon China," the correspondent found a large snake—attracted by a number of eggs—had crawled upon the shelf and swallowed an egg, and in order to get at the next, he had put his head and a portion of his body through the handle of a jug which happened to stand between him and the coveted delicacies. The handle was large enough to let his body, in its natural state, slip through, but not sufficiently large to let it pass through when puffed up by the egg. His snakeship, unable to advance or retreat, began a general floundering, and of course made much mischief.

Barnum says he has not sunk $40,000 in his Illustrated News. He says he never put but $20,000 into it, and thinks if the figures were squared, the amount sunk would amount to about $2,000.

Fights are easily got up. All that is required are three participants—two blockheads and a pint of new rum.

For the Morning Chronicle.

MATHEMATICS.—Messrs. Editors.—I notice in your paper the question, relative to the height and distance apart of two towers; but as the answer is given with the question, which requires but a moment's thought to find, I therefore cannot see the author's object in presenting the question, unless he wishes some one to show the method he took to find the answer, which is impossible for any one to do, because he may have found the answer by approximation, or by a method deduced from the analysis of the question, and therefore it is impossible for any one to show the method he took. I therefore submit the following question, which I think will require more thought to find the answer, than was required to find the answer to the question which appeared in your paper of the 19th inst.

Four towers stand on a horizontal plane, the difference in height of the two highest is 175 feet, which is also the difference in height of the two shortest towers. The square of their distance apart is equal to the product of their heights. Required the height of each tower and their distance apart, that is, the distance the two highest are apart, and the distance the two shortest are apart. C. S.

J. E. HAM,

TAILOR & DRAPER.

HAS just received another lot of fashionable Pantaloon Goods, Velvet Vestings, &c. &c., which will be made to order as low as can be had at any other establishment in this city.

Particular attention is giving to cutting Pantaloons, which is indeed one of the most difficult garments in the department of dress, and has heretofore received too little attention. The success we have had in this branch of our business enables us to ENSURE ALL with an easy and becoming FIT.

Gentlemen in want of any kind of Garment can be furnished at very short notice.

In the Coat Department, our customers have practical proof that we CANNOT BE BEAT.

Customers furnishing their own cloth will be attended to in the best possible manner.

☞ Wanted immediately 2 COAT MAKERS, to whom the highest prices will be paid.

Apply at No. 22 Market Street, up stairs.

THE CELEBRATED

LOWELL COAL & GAS BURNER

For Anthracite Coal.

MANY futile attempts have been made to construct COAL STOVES which should consume the gases, and at the same time be simple and easily managed.

We think that Mr. D. G. LITTLEFIELD, the Patentee of this Stove, has been eminently successful in his efforts to produce this result—indeed it is so much better than all other stoves, and so superior to them, that the whole truth would hardly be believed, except by those who have used them.

One ton of coal burned in this Stove will generate as much heat as TWO TONS consumed in any other Stove extant.

For a particular description we would refer the public to the following communication from Mr. Littlefield:

All skilful coal burners, and stove manufacturers, are convinced that a prejudice has pervaded the forms of all the apparatus for burning anthracite coal. No one, however, has been able to determine where the difficulty lay. Nearly all attempted improvements for consuming the gases, have been based upon the presumption that the common method of burning in a tight pot of some kind, either of cast iron or sheet iron lined with stone or brick, was correct, and their improvements have been made over and above this point in the apparatus. It is true the form of the pot has been changed from time to time, from the long cylinder with grate at the bottom, to the short and broad cylinder, and then to the bottle form, then square, then oval, and then contracted at the top, and then at the bottom, and very shallow, each having its advantages and disadvantages, but all operating substantially in the same manner in one respect, namely, that the gases are expelled from the coal and immediately rise unburned to the upper part of the apparatus, where they cannot burn perfectly, being withdrawn from the action and greatest heat of the fire, and must either pass through the flues, or into the apartment to be heated, thus causing a great loss of heat, and the only unpleasant difference between heat produced by coal and that of the wood fire.

Carburetted and sulphurretted hydrogen are freely liberated in burning coal. These gases, altho' perfectly combustible, and therefore easily disposed of, are really the direct cause of nearly all the inconvenience in burning coal. Being very volatile, a large portion of them escape through the flues unburned, or into the room from open stoves, and through the joints of close stoves, producing various unpleasant sensations, such as langor and headache, so common among those who live in a room heated by coal. In addition to this, they act upon and in time destroy the stove and pipe, particularly that part near the chimney. In any city where anthracite coal is used to any extent, the effects can be seen in that part of the chimney above the roof of nearly every house which has been built five years.

I wish now to call the particular attention of the reader to the common method of burning coal in a cylinder, with a flat grate at the bottom. It is well known that when a hard coal fire is started, it is with charcoal or some other very combustible material. The first impression made on the anthracite coal is to heat it; this expels the gases or most inflammable portion of the coal, which being volatile, and the pot open at the top, immediately rises above the coal, and is consequently out of reach of the strongest action of the fire. It is a well-known principle that a gaseous substance, expelled from a solid body by the action of heat, rises above and mostly escapes any further action of the same heat which expelled it. The experience of every one that has given attention to coal burning is, that the best results are obtained with the common pot, by a very slow process of burning, covered with ashes, or wet and fine coal. The reason is obvious. By this method more of the volatile substances are retained and consumed within the pot, and in contact with the coal, thereby producing a more perfect combustion of the fixed matter, as well as being burnt themselves, preventing the accumulation of old coal on the grate, and making no clinkers. Sometimes, with great care, a stove can be made to run from week to week, a result very desirable, but only obtained by the utmost care and skill. We need no better evidence that there is a radical defect in past construction of fire pots, than that with them the nicest calculation, prudence and judgment were necessary, to obtain comparatively poor results.—In fact, we may safely say that the form of pot open at the top, and with a grate at the bottom, for burning anthracite coal, is all wrong. The fire by its own action becomes wrong side up. The volatile matter, which is combustible, is expelled, and passes off imperfectly burned, instead of being consumed before it escapes, and helping as nature designed it, to consume the fixed matter in the bottom. A method of burning coal that accomplishes this object, that is, the combustion of the volatile matter in contact with the coal, is the only one that has any claim to be called scientific.

A stove constructed upon the principle above referred to, has been invented; and, after repeated experiments, has been so far perfected as to justify its introduction into the market. Its construction is exceedingly simple, requiring but little skill in the operator, when a fire is once started, (which is easily done); all that is necessary is a constant supply of coal, and a little attention from time to time, to keep a fire from month to month.

AN ADVERTISEMENT TO BE APPRECIATED.—The following missive tells its own story:

A Proclamation by Louis Lewisson.—Whereas, I have been supported with extraordinary good luck, for which I am thankful to Almighty God, and the whole People, who have backed me in the same, it behooves me to dispense some of my income to the poor of the city of Providence and State of Rhode Island and Providence Plantations; I do hereby invite (indiscriminately of religion) all poor people, to call on the 24th day of November, 1853, beginning at 7 o'clock in the morning, and continue through the whole day, and receive a good substantial Thanksgiving dinner, in front of my prosperous Bazaar.

And I further invite all the Poor People who should happen to be sick, to send their neighbors, a few days pevious to Thanksgiving, to my Bazaar, and leave the address of such sick people, and I will send them a good substantial Thanksgiving Dinner with my own Express, to relieve them.

☞ And I further invite all my work people who have ever worked for me since I came to Providence, to call on me privately, the day previous, and receive a bountiful supply for a Thanksgiving Dinner.

"He that giveth to the poor lendeth to the Lord God."

Providence, Oct. 22nd, 1853.

LOUIS LEWISSON.

Proprietor of the Clothing Bazaar, Nos. 21 and 23 South Main Street.

DEAR BOUGHT EXPERIENCE.—Here's the experience of a Maine Farmer who went West. Let our people profit by it. Ten years ago, a farmer in Aroostook, comfortably situated took the Western fever and taking with him $2000, settled in one of the Western States. A few days since he made his appearance in the town from which he had emigrated, with the remnant of his family, and applied the remnant of his property $200, to the purchase of a farm there. He had buried more than one half of his family in the West, and had now come back, he said, where life was easier and better.—Bangor Mercury.

PROF. ALEX. C. BARRY'S

Tricopherous, or Medicated Compound.

FOR beautifying, curling, preserving, restoring and strengthening the Hair, relieving diseases of the Skin, curing Rheumatic Pains and healing external wounds. Bounded by no geographical lines, the reputation of Barry's Tricopherous pervades the Union. The sales of the article of late years have increased in a ratio that almost exceeds belief. Prof. Barry, after a careful examination of his sales book, finds that the number of bottles delivered to order, in quantities of from half a gross upward, during the year 1852, was within a trifle of 850,000.

It is unnecessary to present at length the evidences of the wonderful properties of the Tricopherous when the public have furnished such an endorsement as this. The cheapness of the article, and the explanations given of its chemical action upon the hair, the scalp, and in all cases of superficial irritation, first recommended it to the attention of the people. This was all that the inventor desired. Every bottle advertised itself—The effects of the fluid exceeded expectation. It acted like a charm. The ladies would not be without it. Country dealers in every section of the United States found they could have it; and thus was built up a wholesale trade of an extent hitherto unheard of as regards articles of this kind.—The highest point has not yet been reached, and it is believed that the sales this year will be a million and a half of bottles.

Liberal discount to purchasers by the quantity, and by all the principal Merchants and Druggists throughout the United States, and Canada, Mexico, West Indies, Great Britain, France, &c., and by Weeks & Potter, Brewers, Stevens & Cushing, and Wm. Brown, Boston. d&wém je25

DR. CONINE'S

SYRUP OF GINSENG & MALVA.

The Great Chinese Remedy.

THIS Medicine depends more upon its own virtues and actual merit than any other ever before offered to the public.

The recipe is from Dr. CONINE, a gentleman who travelled many years in China, and in the islands of that vicinity where this compound is the potent and effectual remedy for the numerous diseases arising from a disordered or debilitated stomach, and

Affections of the Lungs.

But what will particularly attract attention is its astonishing

DISSOLVENT POWER,

By which it at once removes ALL PHLEGM or extraneous matter from the Throat, Stomach or Lungs. It is therefore

Anti-Expectorant,

And from attentions of trial here, it is now offered as NATURE'S KINDEST REMEDY for the removal of Consumption, Whooping Cough, and all Coughs, by precipitating the Phlegm, instead of creating irritation by expectoration.

It is AROMATIC, and increases the general warmth, possessing the exhilarating qualities of the Tea Plant, which is one great cause of its universal popularity in all India beyond the Ganges, where as an

APPETISER

It probably has no equal in the Vegetable Kingdom

AS A DYSPEPTIC REMEDY, IT IS UNEQUALLED.

Its natural, genial warmth keeps the digestive powers ever in proper tone, soothing all irritation of the nerves, &c.

It will prove a more pleasant, safe and effectual Tonic than any Sarsaparilla or other boasted tonic remedy, and even nutritious, as well as exceedingly palatable. It will continue to be prepared in the best manner—no expense being spared—and in quart bottles.

Besides the numberless testimonials which we are receiving daily, of the good effect of the above medicine, we are allowed to refer to several physicians, who are now using the Syrup of Ginseng and Malva with great success.

"A Splendid Remedy."

THE GREAT REMEDY is at last discovered. Consumption can be cured!! and Coughs and Colds, the parents of that fell disease that so often brings woe to the homes of our land, vanish, as if by magic, before this SOVEREIGN REMEDY. This is that which has so long been sought for, and is in full faith offered to the public as a certain cure for Coughs, Colds, Whooping Cough, Croup, Asthma and Consumption, and will in any case where lungs sufficient are left to sustain life, check the ulceration and raise the patient to health. This is not an idle boast, nor is this remedy sent into the market without a thorough trial, but has proved beyond a doubt that what has been asserted CAN BE DONE!

DEDICATION OF THE WOODBURY SCHOOL HOUSE.

DEDICATORY ADDRESS delivered by Rev. Mr. Lamson, at the Woodbury School House, in Portsmouth, Nov. 21st, 1853.

FRIENDS & FELLOW CITIZENS: I am happy to meet you on this pleasant occasion, and mingle with you in the services of the hour. The custom is a worthy one, though I believe comparatively recent among us, to mark the opening of our school-houses by some simple dedicatory service. I hail it as indicative of the increased importance which is attached to the common school.

The history of the common school system in New England carries us far back among the earliest years of the colonists from the mother country—and is significant of their character. In Nov. 1620, the Mayflower with her precious company reached our shores—and on the 21st of the December following, they had selected their place of settlement at Plymouth and effected a landing. Eight years from this time, in 1628, were laid the foundations of the colony of Massachusetts Bay. In 1636, 16 years from the landing of the Pilgrims, and eight years from the settlement of Massashusetts Bay, the General Court had already taken measures to establish Harvard College—a most remarkable fact. Go back in thought to the hardships and perils of the then few and exposed colonists. Want, sickness, the rigors of a severe climate, exposure to a savage foe; these added to the grief of separation from friends and home, would seem to have been sufficient to absorb the thoughts and interest of all hearts and minds. But it was them, in the midst of those early struggles and privations, that these noble men, with a high regard for their posterity, laid the foundations of an institution of learning that should be a blessing to distant generations. They were men of liberal culture themselves; men who had been trained in the Universities of the Old World, who could therefore appreciate the value of a good education. In 1647, but little more than 25 years from the landing of the Pilgrims, and less than 20 years from the settlement of Massachusetts Bay, 206 years ago, the law was passed in Massachusetts, which is the basis of our present common school system—the glory of our New England. It required that every township having fifty freeholders should build a school house and employ a teacher, and that every one having 1000 free holders should sustain a grammar school. Such and so early was the origin of that grand system which has shed its blessings upon us, and is now shedding them upon our children.

So soon after the first physical wants were provided for, did our pious ancestors turn their attention to the means of providing for the education of the masses. They had already founded the University of which they were proud. But its doors could necessarily be open only to the few—an aristocracy only could share in its privileges and receive its honors. They had seen in the old world the evil of overgrown and over-endowed Universities—raising up and perpetuating an educated class, while the people were left in ignorance and destitute of the means of instruction; and they resolved that no such inequality should exist in New England.

Seldom do we think of our deep indebtedness to the past—and certainly in no people on the globe should such thoughts be more frequent and affecting than with us. We, the descendants of the pilgrims, are born to a nobler inheritance. We can look through our entire history, and recall the very men who thought and toiled and suffered for our good. The facts concerning the early period of older nations are covered with mists, and so mingled with legend and fable that there is great difficulty and little satisfaction in the study of them. But to us the record comes full and clear. We can retrace the whole day, and mark the progress of its hours, from the earliest morning twilight down to the present hour.

By those who have gone before us, forests have been cleared, towns built, churches erected, laws framed and perfected, benevolent institutions organized, and to them, let it never be forgotten, do we owe our common school—a fact that should be taught to every child in New England. But how shall we discharge the debt thus due to the past? The men who thought and sacrificed and toiled and suffered for our good—how shall we repay them? Long since have they been removed from this theatre of action, and are where no praise nor offering of ours can reach them. But could they speak to us from their home in another world—were it left to them to answer from the skies, the question—ye noble departed ones! how shall we, your descendants, repay the debt we owe you? it is not difficult to conjecture what would be their reply. By laboring for their posterity, as we labored for you; by cherishing, improving and transmitting to those who shall come after you whatever is valuable in the institutions we founded. In this way alone, friends, can we discharge the immense debt which we owe to the past—by laboring for the future. The State, the town, the individual, which shall fail sacredly to cherish and regard the common school, will be recreant to a most solemn trust—unworthy of a descent from the noble fathers of New England.

The common school offers its privileges alike to the poor and the rich, and herein is its peculiar excellence. The rich and the poor here meet together. The man whose wealth makes it necessary for him to bear the chief burden of the expense, can claim no privilege for his children above the children of the penyless widow, who is neither able nor required to contribute a farthing to sustain the institution. For the poorest as well as the richest child, the district school house throws open its doors—and its cheerful fire burns—and its teacher waits to give instruction—and if needed the text books are gratuitously furnished.—Different as may be the homes of the children in the comforts and elegancies with which they are furnished, the child who comes forth from the hut of poverty enters the school room perfectly on a level with him who comes from the mansion of wealth and elegance. Thus breaking in upon and breaking down the distinctions which wealth and position are ever tending to create, the common school is most beneficial in its influence, and most congenial with the democracy of our institutions. It is beneficial both to the children of the rich and of the poor; teaching the former in the very outset of life the necessity of exertion, and encouraging the latter not to despair of attaining an elevated position.

Now this is as it should be. The State owes it to itself to provide that no portion of its children be permitted to grow up in ignorance; that poverty should not shut the light of knowledge from the mind of any child within its limits. It owes it to itself to see that in all its towns and villages school houses are erected, teachers employed and schools sustained. Leaving, as we believe it should, our religious institutions to be sustained on the voluntary principle, it has provided, as we believe it should, by legal enactments and penalties, that the means of a good education shall be placed within the reach of all its children. Over all our New England, therefore, the traveller may see in the district school house an evidence of the care which the State has for the children within its borders—may see one of the results of that law passed in the General Court of Massachusetts in 1647, or the still earlier one passed by the colonists of Connecticut in 1639.

The form of our government gives immense importance to the common school. It is considered, and rightly, of the first moment, that the children of royal parents in monarchial governments—to whom in coming years are to be entrusted the reins of government, be properly educated. Upon their training immense consequences are suspended. But in all our school houses are we training a company of rulers; those to whom in future years are to be entrusted the affairs of this government. The fact, then, that here the people govern instead of an individual or an aristocracy, gives to the question of the education of the people, all the importance that in other countries is attached to the children of the royal family. We all belong to the royal family; we are all princes of the blood. In some unpretending school house among the hills of New Hampshire, the little urchin has been conning his lessons to-day, who may hereafter sit in the presidential chair of these United States; and more than one who will unquestionably speak and act in the halls of Congress. This, as the history of the past and the facts of the present show, is no wild or extravagant conjecture. And does not the fact that from our common schools are to come our future presidents, and senators, and representatives—our governors, and judges, and advocates—our physicians and our ministers of religion—our leaders of parties and of reforms—in fine, that from these schools are to come those to whom are to be entrusted the dearest interests of this land—the precious legacy of our free institutions—give to them an unspeakable dignity and importance? What responsibilities are waiting to be borne by the children now gathered daily in the common schools of New Hampshire; and how great the influence which these schools are having upon their training for these approaching responsibilities.

The common school is closely identified with the interests of our protestant christianity. The spread and power of Romanism we have all reason to dread. While in catholic countries protestants are watched, and their liberties are curtailed, here the papist may come and rear his church anywhere—and build his college—and establish his seminary, and win over to his faith all whom he can. He has the largest freedom. He stands on an equal footing with the members of any other communion. We rejoice that it is so. We wish that there may be at least one land where truth and error may confront each other face to face, and fight the battle out with no aid on either side from the strong arm of the law. It is alike the genius of our government and of a protestant christianity to grant this. All that protestantism asks of the State—at least in this land—is to be let alone. But our common schools are not favorable to papacy. The system therefore has long been hated and plotted against, and the battle is not yet over. The hand of the Pope has been reached across the ocean, in the attempt to take the Bible from some of our common schools, and the attempt has been partially successful; and now the demand is that schools shall be supported from the public fund, in which papacy may be taught. It has been seen that the children of catholics who are trained in a New England school—mingling freely with the children of protestants—are with difficulty held in subjection to a Romish priesthood.—And indeed, it is to be doubted whether the education of the masses, in any true sense, could with safety be permitted by the church of Rome. Let the masses be taught to think and reason for themselves, and they will soon be found interpreting the word of God for themselves, and worshipping God according to the simplicity of its teaching, with no intervening priest. Our common schools are dangerous—we admit it—to the spread and safety of catholicism; and this not because they are sectarian, but precisely because they are not so. They are antagonistic to it—just as light is to darkness—as freedom is to bondage, and truth to superstition. And yet we fear that the attempt which has been made is yet to be made, again and again, until success crowns the attempt to establish catholic schools and support them from the common school fund.

We ask not for Protestant schools. We ask only that we may have schools which are neither Catholic or Protestant. The new Constitution in Massachusetts has been rejected in its main provisions by a large majority—but we rejoice that there is probably an exception in regard to the 6th proposition; and that that has been adopted by the people. It provides that no money raised by taxation for public schools shall ever be appropriated to any religious sect for the maintenance exclusively, of its own schools. Long may this continue to be the voice of the people not only of Massachusetts but of New Hampshire and of all New England, and of the whole land.—We want schools that are in the strictest sense common—free—open to the children of all communions; and most dangerous will be the innovation when the demands of any sect for exclusive schools are granted.

It is among the most encouraging features of the times that common schools are attracting the thought of the ablest minds and the interest of the best hearts of the land.—Good as the system always was, it must be confessed that till within a few years there were sad deficiencies in the duties of its application. Some of these still exist; but they are rapidly being remedied. Our State Secretaries and school Commissioners, our teachers institutes, and Normal schools and common school-journals and libraries — all which were unknown twenty-five years since, are making immense and salutary changes in the schools of New England. Men of the finest culture and of the largest abilities—men fitted for any station and duties in the land, have given their time and toil and talents to the work of elevating our schools. In Massachusetts, certainly, one of her noblest and best furnished minds, is now wholly devoted to this work. He who can look back over a quarter of a century can see immense changes every where around him. The last quarter of a century has been a period of invention, and of unprecedented material progress. Our railroads, our electric telegraphs, and our steam packets, are bringing most widely separated portions of our land within speaking distance of each other, and causing the most distant nations to be but a few days travel from us. Should one who passed away some twenty-five years since, suddenly reappear among us, what are to us daily and familliar occurrences would be to him full of wonder. Such rapid material progress should be accompanied by a corresponding intellectual and moral advancement. And one who has passed twenty-five years since he left a common school in a New England village, cannot fail to see a vast contrast between the advantages which he enjoyed and those which are offered to his children. The day has gone when the first and prime qualification of a teacher is physical strength—an ability to flog any half dozen of the smartest boys in the district. The day is fast drawing to a close in which the meanest building in the village shall be the school house. And the change in our text books is equally great and propitious.

I remember to-night—who of us does not—the school house of my childhood. It comes before me just as it looked when I first trembligly entered. It was one of the best of its times—a two story brick building—standing in some fifty feet from the street—and on one side of the lane leading to it was the shop of the village blacksmith—and on the other the dwelling and yard of of the village carpenter—a man who inspired me with more terror than any mortal whom I have ever known. The interior of the school room was an oblong square, with a central aisle running through it and separating two long rows of benches, each of which was made to seat some six or eight. These benches were some eight or ten inches wide, and were placed in the middle of the space which separated the writing desk in front from the back of the writing desk behind—so that the scholar from the inner end of the bench in passing to and from his seat must crowd along a very narrow passage behind all who sat outside of him. In the centre of the school room was a place ten or twelve feet wide extending across the room and occupied by an immense box stove—and by the teacher's desk. In a cold day in winter we had one of the finest illustrations that can be immagined of the temperature of the various zones on the earth's surface—one torrid, two temperate and two frigid zones. It was in the torrid zone that I, as was customary, commenced my experience in that never to be forgotten school room—on a narrow and most uncomfortable seat attached to the back of the last writing desk—and within four or five feet of a stove often red-hot. Here with the injunction to keep my eyes on my book and to sit still, I was placed. Year by year I moved backwards till I was graduated from the frigid zone. The teacher for several winters was one of the sternest of men—belonging to a class existing now only in the memories of the middle aged or the aged. He was one of the most ingenious of men—and his ingenuity seemed to have full exercise in devising modes of torture for wayward boys. At one time a boy might be seen with a cord around his wrist and the other end of it drawn tight over the stove funnel above his head—at another one would be placed in the middle of the floor and required to hold a large stick of wood in one hand above his head, and another boy placed to watch him and report to the master if his elbow bent—and at another when two culprits were detected at once they were to stand and hold a stick of wood by having one end placed between the teeth of each boy. The school-books were the English Reader, the Art of Reading and the Columbian Orator—Webster's Dictionary with its oblong covers—Welch's Arithmetic—and Murray's English Grammar: for which, notwithstanding its shoal of successors and supplanters, I still cherish the profoundest respect, and commend any modern grammar just in proportion as it resembles that.

Such was the school of my childhood, and one of the best which country villages afforded twenty-five years since. In many respects the changes have been great. The character of teachers has changed—the modes of discipline and instruction and school books have changed—but in no particular has the improvement been greater than in our school houses.

We have met to-night to set apart to its future use this cheerful and pleasant building, which in obedience to the spirit of improvement, has been made to take the place of one of the inconvenient structures of a past generation. We congratulate the parents and children that they have now a school room so neat and comfortable and pleasant. Here may your children and children's children receive the rudiments of that learning which will fit them for the conflicts and duties of life. Here may many a lad be reminded by the name which you have chosen, of the virtues and distinguished excellencies of our honored fellow-citizen so recently taken from us, and be stimulated to high and noble attainment by the thought.

It is a slight but beautiful and singularly appropriate tribute to the memory of the great man who was so long your neighbor, which you have conceived by affixing his name to this newly erected building. His name and memory are the property of the nation, and will be cherished among her most sacred treasures. But the scene of his labors and the memorials of what he said and did were not here in the neighborhood of his residence. That residence alone remains to remind you that he was your neighbor, and when as is possible, that has changed owners, and the name of another is affixed to it, there will be no memorial left. But the name given to this school will be perpetual, and tell to the children of a far distant posterity that this was the home of Woodbury—that it was here in his brief relaxations from public duties, he retired to enjoy the quiet of his own domestic circle.—Here, while this building stands, may a school be sustained worthy to be called, The Woodbury School of Portsmouth.

But, parents, may I just remind you, as I sit down, that your children have a moral and spiritual as well as an intellectual nature. This chaste and pleasant structure bespeaks a worthy care for the intellect. Be not less solicitous for the higher natures of your children. Prohibited, as it necessarily must be, is all directly religious culture from the common school. It is therefore more imperatively demanded of the parent, at home. This building will one day crumble to ruins. It is perishable. But the minds which will here be taught are indestructible, and will live when this and all other buildings of earth—and the itself—shall have passed away. That immortality of being will derive its character, not from the culture of the intellect, but from that of the heart.

Chas. Levi Woodbury, Esq., being then called upon by the Chair, made a most earnest and interesting address, in the course of which he used the following extract from a Lyceum Lecture, written and delivered by his father, on "Traits of American Character."

"The whole number of scholars in all places of instruction is over one in six of our whole white population; thus exceeding much the ratio of one to eight or nine, which is considered a high standard in a well educated country and surpasses Prussia, so much celebrated for her one in seven.

This trait in our character is, in this way, by official returns, demonstrated in a striking manner, and its yearly increase gives a strong guarantee, that the rising generation will be enabled both to understand better their rights and duties, and administer well and defend well the constitution and laws.

It thus becomes next to morality the greatest security for our republican institutions; because it instructs all that there are duties as well as rights recognized in the freest government, and that law and order are to be maintained as well as liberty.

It is the want of this general education among the people, that has made most of the revolutions in Europe so unstable, so full of bitter fruits, and has led the intelligent often to dread them there, quite as much as bigotry and despotism allied, deeming tranquility and safety, with some rapacity, in a few, better than anarchy and spoils by the many.

Where neither morals nor education exist to guide reforms they become mere servile insurrections, worse than the unbridled revolt of slaves, if they are, as usual, instigated by the corruption of demagogues and usurpers.

But entrust power to bands where information and principles exist to use it, whether they come from the work-shop of farm, or the counting house, the vessel's deck, or the forum, and new vigor is yearly infused into the administration of public affairs; disorder is discountenanced; the corruption of wealth and fashion counteracted, and our national character as well as national institutions are preserved unsullied."

Rev. Samuel Hoyt, of Newington, declined making a speech, and sung the following song, written by himself for the occasion, to the tune of "The Grave of Bonaparte." It was sung finely.

ORIGINAL SONG.

We have come from the city with glad hearts and free,
From its beautiful suburbs this structure to see;
To rejoice with each other, and praise that great name,
The source of all knowledge—forever the same.

We this beautiful fabric to science devote,
And pray that it never may be of less note
Than the noble philanthropist, statesman and sage,
Whose name it shall bear on our history's page.

We rejoice that true science, more precious than gold,
Is beginning her beauties and worth to unfold;
That she stretches her wings from the east to the west,
Conferring upon us her richest bequest.

May she onward advance and encircle the earth,
Redeeming from error and spreading the truth,
Till the regions as sad and as dark as the tomb,
Shall be cheered by her light and saved from their gloom.

May the name of our Woodbury ever excite
A thirst for true knowledge, for freedom and right;
And our sons and our daughters his footsteps pursue,
In all that is virtuous and sacred and true.

And when the dark clouds, that encompass us here,
Shall be all swept away;—our sky being clear,
We shall see as we're seen, and know as we're known,
And praise and adore Him who sits on the throne.

Rhode Island.—The people of this State voted on Monday, not to call a Convention to revise the Constitution. They did the same thing last June, and have now done it over again by an increased majority.

WILLIAM C. HARRIS.

Death of Master Harris.—It becomes our duty to announce the sudden and unexpected demise of our old and distinguished Schoolmaster, Wm. C. Harris, Esq., aged 67. He was in his school, and was engaged in attending to the recitations of a class, just before noon, when he paused, opened the door and leaned his head on his desk, but in a moment fell to the floor. The pupils instantly procured two medical men, but he was beyond the reach of their aid, and expired in about ten minutes. He has been a teacher in our schools, public and private, and in those of the neighboring town of Newington, between thirty and forty years;—and for faithfulness, energy and thoroughness in this capacity, has been greatly distinguished and highly esteemed.

His numerous pupils, (hundreds of whom met him for the last time on the 4th of July,) will lament his loss and cherish his memory, with a kind of filial regard for their respected teacher and highly valued friend.

He was a native of this place, a son of Abel Harris Esq., merchant; and was himself engaged in mercantile and maritime affairs in early life. His death was probably occasioned by apoplexy.

☞ Mr. Burlingame's Lecture, at the New Lyceum in the Temple, last evening, was a beautiful comparison of the Past with the Present. He would not disparage the Past, but took a sufficiently flattering view of the Present, and looked forward with strong hope and firm assurance to the futute.

Mr. Burlingame has a clear voice, enunciates well, and being familiar with his lecture, delivered it without notes, with freedom to himself and ease to his audience. The general sentiment was correct, and the lecture, without being at all profound, was yet very pleasant. We were quite amused at one illustration of advancing liberality in politics and religion, as coming from this particular lecturer, when he said that in these days it is next to impossible to keep a party together. In that connexion we could not blame the conservatives for wishing for the "good old times," which can never more return.

☞ We have given great space to the details of the services at the Dedication of our new School-House. The occasion was one of unusual interest to all present, and we take pleasure in putting the documents on record. Mr. Lamson's address is an able production, and we promise every thinking person they will not consider the time spent in reading it as anything but well-spent.

☞ We shall print no paper on Friday morning. Advertisers will please notice, and bring in their Thanksgiving advertisements to-day.

☞ The N. H. Gazette, speaking of the "accession to its subscription list, which one of 'our cotemporaries' is crowing over," says, "Vive la Humbug! 'Blow your horns!' sound your loudest blasts. Let the welkin ring with your shouts of victory.

'The time is ripe and rotten ripe for change.
Then let it come—'

into our pockets."

California Cranberries.—We have examined three odd looking fruits, which go by the above name, which were raised in Walpole, Mass., from seed sent from California. They look something like an enormous potato-apple, being about an inch in diameter, round, and very full, with a smooth green skin, covered with a dry film, for defence.—It is said they will yield abundantly. These which we have seen are the property of Mr. Robert Shillaber, sent him by a friend: and he will get a crop from them if any body can. They may be seen for a few days at this office.

☞ Mr. B. P. Shillaber, in the Boston Post, contradicts the story that he has written a poem for delivery before Lyceums this winter, and denies that he has any such intention.—The reason is not given, but it is probable that Mrs. Partington prefers the quiet fireside and the round of daily household duties, to any public exhibition of strong minded women or female clergymen.

A Clumsy Name.—The Boston Courier says:

The Portland State of Maine, a neutral journal, has, with all due regard to the taste of its sponsors, the most clumsy title of any newspaper which is upon our exchange list.

That is true. We often have occasion to name it; and are commonly obliged to say, "the State of Maine" newspaper, in order to avoid a confusion of ideas.

The Adams House, in Boston, has been taken by Daniel Chamberlain, who keeps it as temperance house.

At Geoogetown, D. C., flour declined on Friday to $5,37 1-2 per bbl.

Durability of Wood.—The piles under the London Bridge have been driven 500 years, and on examining them in 1846, they were found to be little decayed. Old Savoy Place, in the city of London, was built 650 years ago, and the wooden piles, consisting of oak, elm, beech and chestnut, were found upon recent examination to be perfectly sound. Of the durability of timber in a wet state, the piles of a bridge built by the Emperor Trajan, over the Danube, afford a striking example. One of these piles was taken up and found to be petrified to the depth of three-fourths of an inch; but the rest of the wood was not different from its former state, though it had been driven 1600 years.

A Venerable Preacher.—Mr. George Fletcher, of London, who will be one hundred and seven years old next February, recently preached at the Methodist Chapel Nottingham. One of the papers says of him:—"Mr. Fletcher was left an orphan at the age of thirteen, when he enlisted in the army, and served in the first American war. In the course of a few years he joined the Guards, and was under the command of Sir Ralph Abercrombie, at whose death he was present. After a service of 21 years he was discharged, and was employed in the West India docks until he was about 90 years of age. He was a class leader amongst the denomination to which he belonged for 80 years, and had conversed and associated with Wesley and Whitfield. He walks perfectly upright, can read clear print with the aid of glasses, can hear tolerably well, and is remarkably cheerful and conversational.

Ill Arranged Marriages.—At Louisville, Ky., on the 9th, Col. Young, aged fifty-five, was married to Mrs. B. Rice, aged eighty. On board steamer Senora, on a late trip from New Orleans to St. Louis, "the famous shepherd boy," Thomas G. Noel, of Jefferson, led forth from the ladies' cabin the beautiful and accomplished Miss Lydia Stinson of Evansville," and they were joined in marriage by a justice. He had never seen her until they met on the deck of the steamer.

RAILROAD COLLISION.—On Monday evening the train from Boston for New York via Fall River, was suddenly stopped when in the vicinity of Stoughton, by the splitting of one of the wheels of a car. The conductor knowing that the Bridgewater train must be but a short distance behind, took his lantern and ran back towards the approaching train, a distance of fifty rods or more, swinging his lantern to attract the attention of the engineer of the train, which was then in sight.

Unfortunately, owing to the fog or some other cause, the signal was not seen by the engineer of the Bridgewater train in season, but this train came in collision with the rear car of the train for New York, crushing about half the length of the car into splinters, the locomotive running on top of the wreck.—There were but few passengers in the car.—Four of the number were seriously, and it is feared fatally injurnd. One of them is Rev. Mr. Potter, of South Carolina,—the others' names are not known.

The accident appears to have been the result of defective arrangements on the part of the road. It appears by the time-table that these two trains regularly start from Boston together. In case of an accident to the steamboat train within a few miles of Boston, a collision could hardly be avoided.

For whipping his daughter, aged 19 years, on Sunday, Oliver Shaw, of Palmer, has been sent to the house of correction for ninety days.

Served him right. If the daughter ever had need of such discipline, it must have been long before that age. But probably the poor wretch of a father had been drinking, (though "the paper don't say" so,) for no purely temperate man, unless insane, would offer or think of such a thing.

Washington, 21st.—The report that the United States Consul had succeeded in negotiating a treaty with Brazil, by which the river Amazon is to be opened to the world, is contradicted by high authority. So far from being true, the Emperor of Brazil has peremptorily refused to negotiate upon the subject.

ELECTION FRAUD IN NEW YORK.—Considerable excitement has been occasioned in New York by charges brought against the three Inspectors in the First District of the 20th Ward, viz:—that of falsifying the returns, and they have been held to bail for $2000 each. From the Express we learn that:

The three inspectors all swear that they were foreign born—one of them in Ireland, and two of them in Scotland; so that it seems there was not an American born citizen presiding over the ballot box! The fraud alleged is, causing, the day after the election, tickets to be printed at the True Democrat (Soft) office for C. Tucker, (Whig,) instead of Cummings H. Tucker, (Whig,) and the substitution of the C. Tucker votes by the Inspectors, for the Cummings H. Tucker ones, throwing the former out, and thereby electing Mr. Conkey, (Soft) Alderman. The affair is one which is likely to make a great deal of noise.

The indictment of Deputy Marshal Wynkoop, for his attempt upon the life of Bill, a fugitive from slavery, at Wilkesbarre, Pennsylvania, will present for adjudication this question—What amount of brutality may a United States Officer practice in the recapture of a fugitive? It is desirable that this point be settled. If the life of a fugitive is of no value, the fact should be known. If, on the contrary, it has a price, let it be established. Let us know what the rights of the slave are, if he has any, and also the rights of the community, and the dictates of humanity and justice, if these things have not become obsolete. It would seem, however, that they were regarded as obsolete at Wilkesbarre, when Bill's pursuers were firing at him, and the people of the place were looking on, never lifting a finger, while a man was shot down before their eyes. —Worcester Spy.

MINISTERS ON A STRIKE.—At a recent meeting in Boston, of Unitarian clergymen without parishes, it was unanimously agreed that the ordinary rates of compensation are totally inadequate to the support of the minister and his family, and that it is time the fact should be made known to the parishes. The arrangements made by these clergymen is that those societies which pay a salary of from $500 to $800 per annum, shall allow $12 per Sabbath and expenses, for temporary supplies; salaries of $800 to 1000 per annum, $15 and expenses; salaries of $1200 to 1500, $20 per Sabbath and expenses; salaries of $1500 to $2000, $25 per Sabbath and expenses. The expenses are travelling and board, and the whole matter has reference only to single Sabbath engagements.

LEGAL VALUE OF A MAN'S NOSE.—At the late term of the Court of Common Pleas in Hillsboro' County, a man was tried for biting off another's nose, last Thanksgiving Day. The Jury decided that he should pay for the delicious mouthful of meat thus forcibly obtained, the sum of $70.42. This may, therefore, be considered as the legal value of a man's nose in this State!—Reporter.

A WARNING TO BAD WRITERS.—The Toledo Blade tells a good story of a man who owned a building which was situated on land belonging to the Michigan Central Railroad. The superintendent, who writes a very bad hand, sent a short letter to Mr. S., ordering him to remove the building at once. But the house was not removed, and three months afterwards the superintendent met S. and began to scold him for not removing the nuisance as desired, when it appeared that the man had received the note, and not being able to make out its contents, had supposed it to be a pass over the road, and had been riding back and forth all summer on the strength of it!

Upwards of half a million of the public debt was cancelled last week.

THE CELEBRATED

LOWELL COAL & GAS BURNER

For Anthracite Coal.

MANY futile attempts have been made to construct COAL STOVES which should consume the gases, and at the same time be simple and easily managed.

We think that Mr. D. G. LITTLEFIELD, the Patentee of this Stove, has been eminently successful in his efforts to produce this result—indeed it is so unlike all other stoves, and so superior to them, that the whole truth would hardly be believed, except by those who have used them.

One ton of coal burned in this Stove will generate as much heat as TWO TONS consumed in any other Stove extant.

For a particular description we would refer the public to the following communication from Mr. Littlefield:

All skilful coal burners, and stove manufacturers, are conscious that a great error has pervaded the forms of all the apparatus for burning anthracite coal. No one, however, has been able to determine where the difficulty lay. Nearly all attempted improvements for consuming the gases, have been based upon the presumption that the common method of burning in a tight pot of some kind, either of cast iron or sheet iron lined with stone or brick, was correct, and their improvements have been made over and above this point in the apparatus. It is true the form of the pot has been changed from time to time, from the long cylinder with grate at the bottom, to the short and broad cylinder, and then to the bottle form, then square, then oval, and then contracted at the top, and then at the bottom, and very shallow, each having its advantages and disadvantages, but all operating substantially in the same manner in one respect, namely, that the gases are expelled from the coal and immediately rise unburned to the upper part of the apparatus, where they cannot burn perfectly, being withdrawn from the action and greatest heat of the fire, and must either pass through the flues, or into the apartment to be heated, thus causing a great loss of heat, and the only unpleasant difference between heat produced by coal and that of the wood fire.

Carburetted and sulphuretted hydrogen are freely liberated in burning coal. These gases, altho' perfectly combustible, and therefore easily disposed of, are really the direct cause of nearly all the inconvenience in burning coal. Being very volatile, a large portion of them escape through the flues unburned, or into the room from open stoves, and through the joints of close stoves, producing various unpleasant sensations, such as langor and headache, so common among those who live in a room heated by coal. In addition to this, they act upon and in time destroy the stove and pipe, particularly that part near the chimney. In any city where anthracite coal is used to any extent, the effects can be seen in that part of the chimney above the roof of nearly every house which has been built five years.

I wish now to call the particular attention of the reader to the common method of burning coal in a cylinder, with a flat grate at the bottom. It is well known that when a hard coal fire is started, it is with charcoal or some other very combustible material. The first impression made on the anthracite coal is to heat it; this expels the gases or more combustible portion of the coal, which being volatile, and the pot open at the top, immediately rises above the coal, and is consequently out of reach of the strongest action of the fire. It is a well-known principle that a gaseous substance, expelled from a solid body by the action of heat, rises above and mostly escapes any further action of the same heat which expelled it. The experience of every one that has given attention to coal burning is, that the best results are obtained with the common pot, by a very slow process of burning, covered with ashes, or wet and fine coal. The reason is obvious. By this method more of the volatile substances are retained and consumed within the pot, and in contact with the coal, thereby producing a more perfect combustion of the fixed matter, as well as being burnt themselves, preventing the accumulation of old coal on the grate, and making no clinkers. Sometimes, with great care, a stove can be made to run from week to week, a result very desirable, but only obtained by the utmost care and skill. We need no better evidence that there is a radical defect in past construction of fire pots, than that with them the nicest calculation, prudence and judgment were necessary, to obtain comparatively poor results.—In fact, we may safely say that the form of pot open at the top, and with a grate at the bottom, for burning anthracite coal, is all wrong. The fire by its own action becomes wrong side up. The volatile matter, which is combustible, is expelled, and passes off imperfectly burned, instead of being consumed before it escapes, and helping as nature designed it, to consume the fixed matter in the bottom. A method of burning coal that accomplishes this object, that is, the combustion of the volatile matter in contact with the coal, is the only one that has any claim to be called scientific.

A stove constructed upon the principle above referred to, has been invented; and, after repeated experiments, has been so far perfected as to justify its introduction into the market. Its construction is exceedingly simple, requiring but little skill in the operator, when a fire is once started, (which is easily done); all that is necessary is a constant supply of coal, and a little attention from time to time, to keep a fire from month to month.

No. 22 State Street, Boston.

IMPORTANT INFORMATION TO INVENTORS. The Subscriber (late Agent of the U. S. Patent Office, under the Act of 1837) determined to present advantages, in applying for Patents, superior to those offered to inventors by others, has made arrangements whereby on applications prepared and conducted by him, THIRTY DOLLARS (instead of twenty, as paid back by others,) will be remitted by him in case of failure to obtain a patent, and the withdrawal through him within thirty days after the rejection. Caveats, Specifications, Assignments and all necessary papers and drawings, for procuring patents in this and foreign countries prepared, and advice rendered on legal and scientific matters respecting inventions, and infringement of patents.

Inventors can not only here obtain their specifications on the most reasonable terms, but can here avail themselves of the experience of 20 years' practice, an extensive library of legal and mechanical works, and correct accounts of patents granted in this and other countries; besides being saved a journey to Washington, the usual great delay there, as well as the personal trouble in obtaining their patents. Copies of claims of any patent furnished by remitting one dollar.—Assignments recorded at Washington.

R. H. EDDY,

Solicitor of Patents.

"During the time I occupied the office of Commissioner of Patents, R. H. Eddy, Esq., of Boston, did business at the Patent Office, as Solicitor of Patents. There were few, if any persons acting in that capacity, who had so much business before the Patent Office; and there were none who conducted it with more skill, fidelity, and success. I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the best informed and most skilful Patent Solicitors in the United States, and have no hesitation in recommending to inventors that they cannot employ a person more competent and trustworthy, and more capable of putting their application in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office.

Greatest Discovery of the Age.

PLANTERS, Farmers, Families and others can purchase no Remedy equal to DR. TOBIAS' VENITIAN LINIMENT, for Dysentery, Colic, Croup, Chronic Rheumatism, Sore Throat, Toothache, Sea Sickness, Cuts, Burns, Swellings, Bruises, Old Sores, Headache, Musquito Bites, Pains in the Limbs, Chest, Back, etc.

If it does not give relief, the money will be refunded; all that is asked is a fair trial, and use it according to the directions.

It is an English Remedy, and was used by William IV. late King of England, and certified to by him, as a cure for Rheumatism, when everything else had failed.

Over 10,000,000 bottles have been sold in the United States, without a single failure, and many have stated that they would not be without it if it was $10 per bottle, in case of Croup, as it is as certain as it is applied.

It cures Cholera, when first taken, in a few hours; Dysentery in half an hour; Toothache in five minutes. It is perfectly innocent to take internally, and is recommended by the most eminent physicians in the United States. Price 25 and 50 cents.

Dr. Tobias could fill a dozen Newspapers with certificates and letters relating to the wonderful cures accomplished by his Liniment, but considers warranting it sufficient, as any person who does not obtain relief, need not pay for it.

Dr. Tobias has put up a HORSE LINIMENT in pint bottles, which is warranted cheaper and better than any other for Cholic, Scratches, Old Sores, Galls, Swellings, Cuts, Bruises, etc.

Price 50 cents. Dr. Tobias's Office, 240 Greenwich street, New York.

PROF. ALEX. C. BARRY'S

Tricopherous, or Medicated Compound.

FOR beautifying, curling, preserving, restoring and strengthening the Hair, relieving diseases of the Skin, curing Rheumatic Pains and healing external wounds. Bounded by no geographical lines, the reputation of Barry's Tricopherous pervades the Union. The sales of the article of late years have increased in a ratio that almost exceeds belief. Prof. Barry, after a careful examination of his sales book, finds that the number of bottles delivered to order, in quantities of from half a gross upward, during the year 1852, was within a trifle of 950,000.

It is unnecessary to present at length the evidence of the wonderful properties of the Tricopherous when the public have furnished their endorsement as this. The cheapness of the article, and the explanations given of its chemical action upon the hair, the scalp, and in all cases of superficial irritation, first recommended it to the attention of the people. This was all that the inventor desired. Every bottle advertised itself.—The effects of the fluid exceeded expectation. It cured like a charm. The ladies would not be without it. Country dealers in every section of the United States found they must have it; and thus was built up a wholesale trade of an extent hitherto unheard of as regards articles of this kind.—The highest praise has not yet been reached, and it is believed that the sales this year will be a million and a half of bottles.

Liberal discount to purchasers by the quantity, and by all the principal Merchants and Druggists throughout the United States, and Canada, Mexico, West Indies, Great Britain, France, &c., and by Weeks & Potter, Brewers, Stevens & Cushing, and Wm. Brown, Boston, and Hewin jc29

By which it at once removes ALL PHLEGM or extraneous matter from the Throat, Stomach or Lungs. It is therefore

Anti-Expectorant,

And from attentions of trial here, it is now offered as NATURE'S KINDEST REMEDY for the removal of Consumption, Whooping Cough, and all Coughs, by precipitating the Phlegm, instead of creating irritation by expectoration.

It is AROMATIC, and increases the general warmth, possessing the exhilarating qualities of the Tea Plant, which is one great cause of its universal popularity in all India beyond the Ganges, where as an

APPETISER

It probably has no equal in the Vegetable Kingdom AS A DYSPEPTIC REMEDY, IT IS UNEQUALLED.

Its natural, genial warmth keeps the digestive powers ever in proper tone, soothing all irritation of the nerves, &c.

It will prove a more pleasant, safe and effectual Tonic than any Sarsaparilla or other boasted tonic remedy, and even nutritious, as well as exceedingly palatable. It will continue to be prepared in the best manner—no expense being spared—and in quart bottles.

Besides the numberless testimonials which we are receiving daily, of the good effect of the above medicine, we are allowed to refer to several physicians, who are now using the Syrup of Ginseng and Malva with great success.

"A Splendid Remedy."

THE GREAT REMEDY is at last discovered. Consumption can be cured! and Coughs and Colds, the parents of that fell disease that so often brings woe to the homes of our land, vanish, as if by magic, before this SOVEREIGN REMEDY. This is that which has so long been sought for, and is in full faith offered to the public as a certain cure for Coughs, Colds, Whooping Cough, Croup, Asthma and Consumption, and will in any case where lungs sufficient are left to sustain life, check the ulceration and enable the patient to health. This is not an idle boast, nor is this remedy sent into the market without a thorough trial, but has proved beyond a doubt that what has been asserted CAN BE DONE!

THIS SIDE AND THAT.

BY FANNY FERN.

I am weary of this hollow show and glittr,e—weary of Fashion's stereotyped lay-figures,—weary of smirking fops and brainless belles, exchanging their small coin of flattery and their endless genuflexions: let us go out of Broadway—somewhere—anywhere. Turn round the wheel, Dame Fortune, and show up the other side.

"The Tombs!"—we never thought to be there! nevertheless, we are not to be frightened by a grated door or a stone wall, so we pass in; leaving behind the soft wind of this Indian Summer day, to lift the Autumn leaves as gently as does a loving nurse her drooping child.

We gaze into the narrow cells and draw a long breath.—Poor creatures, tempted and tried.—How many to whom the world now pays its homage, who sit in high places, should be in their stead? God knoweth. See them with their pale faces pressed up against the grated windows, or pacing up and down their stone floors, like chained beasts. There is a little boy not more than ten years old: what has he done?

"Stolen a pair of shoes!"

Poor child! he never heard of "Swartout." How should he know that he was put in there not for stealing, but for doing it on so small a scale?

Hist! Do you see that figure seated in the farther corner of that cell, with his hands crossed on his knees? His whole air and dress are those of a gentleman. How came such a man as that, here?

"For murder? How sad! Ah! somewhere in the length and breadth of the land a mother's heart is aching because she spared the rod to spoil the child.

There is a coffin, untenanted as yet, but kept on hand; for Death laughs at bolts and fetters, and many a poor wretch is borne struggling within these gloomy walls, only to be carried to his last home, while none but God may ever know at whose fireside stands his vacant chair.

And here is a woman's cell. There are two or three faded dresses hanging against the walls, and a bonnet, for which she has little use. Her friends have brought her some bits of carepting, which she has spread over the stone floor, with her womanly love of order, (poor thing,) to make the place look homelike. And there is a crucifix in the corner. See, she kneels before it! May the Holy Virgin's blessed Son, who said to the sinning one, "Neither do I condemn thee," send into her stricken heart the balm of holy peace.

Who is that? No! it cannot be—but, yes, it is he—and what a wreck! See, he shrinks away, and a bright flush chases the marble paleness from his cheek. God bless me!—That R- should come to this! Still Intemperance, with her thousand voices, crieth—"Give! give!" and still, alas! it is the gifted, and generous, and warm-hearted who oftenest answer the summons.

More cells?—but there is no bed in them; only a wooden platform raised over the stone floor. It is for gutter drunkards—too foul, too loathsome to be placed upon a bed—turned in here like swine, to wallow in the same slough. Oh how few, who, festively sipping the rosy wine, say "my mountain stands strong, e'er dream of such an end as this.

Look there! tread softly: angels are near us. Through the grated window the light streams faintly upon a little pallet where, sweet as a dream of heaven, lies a sleeping babe! Over its cherub face a smile is flitting. The cell has no other occupant; angels only watch the slumbers of the prison cradled. The place is holy. I stoop to kiss its forehead. From the crowd of women pacing up and down the guarded gallery one glides gently to my side, saying, half proudly, half sadly, "'Tis my babe."

"It is so sweet, and pure, and holy," said I. The mother's lip quivered; wiping away a tear with her apron, she said in a choking voice:

"Ah, it is little the likes of you, ma'am, know how hard it is for us to get the honest bread!"

God be thanked, thought I, that there is one who "judgeth not as man judgeth;" who holdeth evenly the scales of justice; who weigheth against our sins the whirlpool of our temptations; who forgetteth never the countless struggles for the victory, ere the desponding, weary heart, shuts out the light of Heaven!

THE HORSES OF THE SAHARA.

The French General Dumas, director of affairs in Algeria, has just published an interesting and original work on the Horses of the African desert, in which he gives all the experiences of Abd-el-Kader and other Arab chiefs, as well as his own—from which the following passages are translated:

The horse of the true breed (hoor) has his position amongst the Arabs of the desert like the date tree. According to his age he bears a different name, and is even more famed for his exploits than for his genealogy. The horse is of the true race, which after a long journey shakes himself, paws the ground, neighs when a feed of barley is offered to him, which he begins to eat eagerly after smelling it three or four times. It is of the horse of this kind that the Arabs say, 'Give him barley and abuse him.' If a horse neighs with joy at the sight of an oasis and seems to salute, with graceful movements of his head, the green trees and the flowing waters; if he never drinks without bending his knee, and so as to mark, by an undulating line from croup to the head, the flexible curve of his body; if his nostrils dilate continually; if his eyes are always in movement; if his ears rise and fall alternately; if, at the least noise, he quivers without changing place, he is of noble blood. He can bear thirst, hunger, and fatigue. 'Give him barley and abuse him.'

But if the Tell, the region of grain, is closed against the horse of the Sahara, he is able to pass the whole year without barley; and yet, to perform journeys of 30 leagues a day, without any other nourishment than dates and the coarse herbage of the desert—the alfa which makes him travel, the guetof which makes him fight, and the guetof which is even better than barley. It was thus that Abd-el-Kader, driven from the Tell, passed like a flash of lightening from one extremity to the other of Moghreb without making a single halt, and often at the head of a thousand horsemen.

Abd-el-Kader himself, in his letter to Gen. Dumas, gives examples of the powers of endurance of the desert horses, which would be incredible, if he had not proved them to be true at our expense, i. e., the French. He speaks amongst others, of a gallop of five or six hours a day, continued for 25 successive days, which suppose a distance of 25 leagues (75 miles) traversed every day. This is not all adds the Emir: A horse travelling every day, and which eats as much barley as it pleases, can continue this for three or four months, without resting a single day.

As to the swiftness of the Barbary horse, a fact is cited by General Dumas which will give an approximate idea of it. A French general, suddenly arrested at Oran, required to see certain papers which he had left at Tlemcen. Tlemcen is 35 leagues (105 miles) from Oran, and the route which separates them is cut up by mountains and ravines.—The arrested general confided his barb to an Arab messenger, who promised to return on the following day. He arrived, in fact, at the same hour the following day, with the documents in question. The horse had travelled 80 leagues (210 miles) through a difficult country, having halted only once and been fed once.

As some mention is often made of the greater or smaller difference which exists between the Barbary and Arab horse, let us speak, in passing, of the manner in which the breed of horses is tried in the two countries. The nejdih, the horse of Arabia, is tried by being made to gallop seven leagues (21 miles) in a certain time, and then to eat a measure of barley. In Algeria the trial is the same in result, but different in the manner. The horse under trial must race with three relays of fresh horses, over distances of three leagues each, and arrive first at the goal each time. If he is successful, and after that eats barley, his master is reputed a fortunate man throughout the whole of Sahara, and the horse's renown is without rival.

It is curious to compare, in point of view of the locomotion gained by means of the horse, the habits of the South American horsemen with those of the Arab. Here we have, in place of the desert of sand, the Sahara, the desert of grass, the Pampas. The Pampas are 800 leagues across, and in these almost limitless plains live, in an almost wild state, innumerable herds of horses. The Guacho, in the midst of the wilderness, selects the horse which he determines to ride, throws the lasso over it, drags the horse thus bought to him saddles it, and gallops along. After three or four hours of furious riding the horse falls, and the rider continues his course on another caught in the same way. Thus the Guacho, mounting horse after horse, performs a journey of 100 leagues in 24 hours.

The Arab has not the resource of the Sahara in changing his horse at his will, and the nature of the soil of Africa renders this mode of riding impossible. In the Pampas the horse is seldom worth more than 50f. The price of a horse sometimes rises to 20,000f. in the Sahara. The former horse only performed two or three journeys of 30 leagues in his life; the latter can recommence on the the morrow a journey of 60 leagues.

THANKSGIVING.

All our readers, that is all in New Hampshire, have probably found out before this time, that it is Thanksgiving Day in the Old Granite State: and as one good turn deserves another, we should not be greatly surprised nor greviously offended, if some friends in Maine, about dinner time, should happen to come over into New Hampshire and help us.

There has been some small talk about a simultaneous Thanksgiving all round. A good many States eat dinner in concert to-day. But we perceive that Thanksgiving in Vermont is this year December 8th, on the second Thursday of the month. It is appointed a week later than usual, in the expectation that the Legislature will have adjourned by the 8th.

When and where thanksgiving days are appointed, is comparatively unimportant: but a thankful, contented, trusting heart is a well-spring of life to him who hath it. This no one can have, unless he cherishes a strong confidence in the wisdom and goodness of the benevolent Creator and bountiful Giver of all things. With this spirit, less of earthly blessings than surround us now, would move us to true acts as well as feelings and expressions of thanksgiving: without it the greatest abundance would but see us cold, thankless and cheerless.

We have no fear that any reader will fail to respond to this appeal in his feelings; and we hope that not a few may be as cheerful and free in giving to those who need, as joyfully thankful in receiving benefits to themselves.

Ministers and Churches in the Political Arena.

Under this title, the Boston Courier lately contained a column of matter, finding fault with some ministers and churches for being in such arena. Some of the talk is wise, and some quite otherwise. Among the sayings are these:

The true vocation of the clergy, and their highest respect and influence, is not much consulted in such ill-advised interference with political matters; they very generally betray much ignorance in so doing, which necessarily lowers them in the estimation of such of their parish as are experienced in such things.

* * * * * * *

We need Christianity to soften the asperity of party, to heal division, and to keep the soul from evil influence in contact with the world; and the ministry are set apart to their office, that they, by more continuous prayer and meditation apart from political strife, may more powerfully affect their people by holy living and conversation.

Now we happen to have seen a considerable number of demagogues, belonging to the medical, legal and clerical professions. And we have also seen other demagogues who belonged to no profession whatever, unless they were professors of politics. And we know not why, in this country, where in theory all voters may hold office, the clergyman and the christian should stand back, because they are too holy, and let the lawyer and the doctor and the heathen do the dirty work of politics, if it be dirty. If the ballot box be the palladium of our liberties, as men say it is, it is very singular that no man may touch it unless his hands are so dirty as to fear no contact with pitch.

It was not, however, chiefly with the purpose of making comments, that we copied the above extracts, but of stating a few facts about political parsons. Not to go back to revolutionary times, when ministers preached up liberty, and several of them took the field,—we will just mention the Reverend Doctors Stewart and Dewey, who in 1850 took the field of controversy, and broke a lance in defending the fugitive slave law, for which service, doubtless, the latter was rewarded with a sinecure chaplaincy in the Navy. Then we may mention the Rev. Mr. Wood of Concord, who certified to Gen. Pierce's temperance and devotion pending the election: and last but not least, we must not omit to state the fact, that the principal orators in the Webster party in Boston, (of which the Courier has heard,) were the Rev. Messrs. Hubbard Winslow, Charles W. Denison, and Matthew Hale Smith.

We do not say they "betrayed much ignorance in so doing," or that they ought to have been "more continuous in prayer and meditation apart from political strife." We only throw out the facts, to be read in connexion with the extracts; with the particular request that no reader will presume to laugh, in his sleeve or otherwise.

Too Cheap.—An error in our daily of Wednesday, made Flour at Georgetown $5,37 cts. It should be $6,37. The error did not begin with us.

The saw mill belonging to Mr. Oliver Hayes, in Madbury, N. H., was entirely destroyed by fire on the 10th inst.

CAT LAW.

Since we wrote a few words for Tuesday's Daily, on Judge Curtis's charge on flogging, the following abstract of the charge has appeared in the Providence Journal. It is more full than the telegraphic despatch, which was evidently defective and inaccurate, but which (says the Boston Advertiser,) was nevertheless seized upon for intemperate comment in quarters where that method of proceeding is agreeable. This account puts quite a different face upon the matter.

"The grand jury was charged by Judge Curtis. The charge was confined to an exposition of the recent act of Congress abolishing the punishment by flogging in the American Navy and vessels of commerce. The first question considered was whether the provisions of the act were limited to the navy and merchant vessels, or extended to ships engaged in the fisheries. The Judge stated that the language employed left the intention of Congress in much uncertainty in this respect, but he construed the act to extend to fishing vessels, and he drew this conclusion from the object and policy of the law, from the nature of the employment of such vessels, and the jurisdiction which Congress had heretofore assumed to exercise over such vessels. He defined punishment by flogging to be punishishment by the infliction of stripes with the cat of nine tails, or punishment which was the same in nature and effect; (1) but stated that the act did not extend to blows inflicted to enforce the immediate execution of orders, or for the suppression of disturbance, (2) and that the jury, before finding an indictment for violation of the act, must be satisfied that the accused was knowingly (3) violating, or might be taken to be knowingly violating the act, and was not inflicting a punishment which he supposed was not prohibited by the act, and that they should not find an indictment against any one who, from his position, would not have been made acquainted with the passage of the act." (4)

Notes by the Chronicle.

(1) The statute is plainer than the Judge's definition. That could hardly be mistaken; this is a fine hook whereon to hang quibbles.

(2) This is right. A blow in self defence, or to enforce obedience in a storm, a battle, or a mutiny, differs as widely from a flogging, in the seaman's sense of the word, as justifiable homicide differs from wilful murder with malice aforethought.

(3—4) The phrases between these figures, are very bad law indeed. "Ignorance of the law excuseth no man," is an old law maxim, older than Judge Curtis's grandfather. We do not exactly like it, however, in some of its applications. But what kind of officers have we on board our naval ships, our merchantmen, or fishermen? None that can't read.—None who do not read the papers. Every one of them knows that flogging is abolished by act of Congress. The fisherman, however, on board of which the flogging occurred, happened in the case which has just been tried, to be a whaling ship, where it was possible the news might not have reached; but the jury deemed it so improbable as to pay no heed to the suggestion.

There is one not too many in the report as above printed. And if the above is the gist of the Judge's charge, it does not amount to much.

Finally, the Boston Post informs us that, "in the case tried, the jury, under this instruction, found that beating with a piece of rattling stuff was a flogging."

The jury found a good common sense verdict, exactly as they would probably have done, in case no learning had been wasted over so plain a case of law and fact.

Union of Spain and Portugal.—The Paris Correspondent of the London Times states that the question of the union between Spain and Portugal is again seriously discussed by persons of all parties; and the difficulty that would otherwise be encountered in the unwillingness of Portugal to be absorbed, as it were, in she larger country, would be removed by calling to the crown of the "Iberian Peninsula" the Duke of Braganza, son of the Queen Donna Maria da Gloria, and who is now in his 17th year. However feasible or otherwise, the matter is really discussed.

If the position taken by the English and French ambassadors in their joint letter to the King of the Sandwich Islands remonstrating against the annexation tendencies of his government is correct, such a union cannot take place. It will be recollected that they held in effect that a nation cannot surrender its nationality.—Boston Journal.

The pretensions made by nations, or rather by governments, about such matters, are mostly of the genus humbug. Great Britain granted us, or surrendered to us, our own nationality, when she could not help it. Capt. Cook was at Owhyhee before Britain acknowledged our independence. Now, therefore, let us re-annex the Sandwich Islands to our continent, which we shall own by-and-by, when our manifest destiny gets a little nearer to its completion.

In the mean time, let us ask, What is Great Britain? England, Scotland, and Wales, formerly three nations or kingdoms, now all joined in one. Ireland, too, has been gently slipped into the same yoke,—and thus, four nations have become one kingdom. Here is precedent enough for Portugal, Spain, and the Islands of the sea. In history there is precedent enough for any amount of national fraud and violence. But it ought to be the glory of a great and free people to do right, with or without precedent. There is not enough thought of this.

LOCAL.

MUSIC OF ALL KINDS.

Our musical critic still adheres to his expressed opinion that the music of the Germania Band was "excellent of its kind," and would respectfully ask where the auditor can be found who will say it was not so?

He also takes this opportunity to express his opinion on some other recent musical performances, which seem to agitate the neighborhood very like a tempest in a teapot. The youngsters have kept up a daily and nightly blowing on little "tiny horns" for a long time, although a testy old gentleman who knows other people's business better than his own, told them some time ago, they were paying too dear for the whistle, and blowing away their breath for nothing. Still the incorrigible urchins keep up a tooting only equalled by the Pope Night boys, until at last having no peace by day, nor rest by night, the old gentleman has become desperate; and throwing away his nightcap, has rushed out of bed in his flannels, cudgel in hand, to exterminate the musicians by one desperate effort.

But alas: he beats the air in vain; exhausted by the effort, he gasps out his indignation in incoherent snatches, and sends them by a feeble Messenger—while he creeps back to his lonely pillow, to reflect on the ingratitude of republics, and the folly of these fast men of Portsmouth, who will read the news fresh every morning, and advertise their goods when they receive the

☞ The Messenge tries to ridicule "the idea that men disposed to give their dollars for a paper for a year, could not be more readily secured as subscribers by having it given them for fourteen months." Well, we have known some men to "give their dollars for a paper," to stay some tottering concern toward the owner of which they were friendly enough, or to have the paper's supposed support of some party. But as we never ask favors from any party, and never lacked or professed to lack an efficient patronage, we have solicited no subscribers on any such grounds.

N. B. Our offer to give receipts to new customers from this time to the end '54, for a year's subscription, has been accepted in many instances. By the way, it is an old custom here—and is still open.

Keep your Doors fastened.—Within a day or two, some scoundrel entered the house of one of our citizens, coolly walked up stairs, appropriated to himself a good cross and chain, and then left the premises undisturbed. The inmates heard the footstep on the stairs, but supposing it to be one of the family, took no notice of it, and did not discover their loss until some hours afterwards. From the entry of the same house two coats have been stolen within as many years.

City Lyceum.—The lecture this week is postponed on account of Thanksgiving, to Friday evening. Mr. Bodwell, now of Framingham, Mass., is the lecturer. He gave us, last year, two very instructive lectures on the Church of England, and the Dissenters—clearly and ably written, and finely dellvered; and it is but reasonable to expect a literary and intellectual treat from him now.

A MEMENTO.

At the festival of the Sons of Portsmouth, on the 4th of July last, Rev. T. Starr King of Boston, one of Master Harris's scholars, took the following respectful notice of the teacher and his teachings, which may fitly be called to mind at the present time.

We passed the building to-day, which stands first in my gratitude and love, where I learned the best lesson which can be taught to any child—how to study—and where the whole foundation of the little instruction I have gained in life was thoroughly laid. The faithful teacher, to whom hundreds of the Sons of Portsmouth are so deeply indebted, is with us here, and I rejoice that I am permitted to-day, to bear witness to his fidelity and the unspeakable value of his labor for me, and to offer him my gratitude for his great service to me as a boy. There are scores of us who were pupils of Mr. Harris. Let me recall to them how often he has told us that we should one day think of him for his thoroughness in drilling us, for his sternness of discipline, and even for the occasional whippings which we now see were less frequent than we deserved. Fellow-citizens, let us prove that our old teacher,—whose heart is faithful to all his pupils, past and present, while his form is endeared to us by the hallowing touches of age,—let us prove that he was indeed a true prophet, by publicly thanking him here for all he has done for us, in three hearty cheers.

[Mr. Harris rose at the request of Mr. King, and the whole company united in most enthusiastic cheers.]

Judd's Celebrated Baking Powders.—Two experienced bread makers, within our knowledge, have tried a batch each, with the above article as a raising power; and have found it easy, quick and sure, when managed exactly as directed. The directions on each box are plain and explicit, and any person who can read, may make good bread by it.—It is also highly recommended by those who used it elsewhere, as very economical, making not only good bread, but a great deal of it, and making cake quick and cheap. See advertisement.

More Donations.—The Mercantile Library Association, on Wednesday received two valuable donations from Boston,—one of 90 volumes of Books from James T. Fields, Esq.; the other of 100 volumes from Wm. H. Hill, Esq.—This institution meets with much favor from those who best understand its objects.

Judd's Baking Powder.

THIS is a Nutritious and Healthy Baking Powder, to be used instead of yeast, and is made of prepared Corn Starch and Arrow Root.

In the ordinary method of raising bread with yeast, a large amount of the best portion of the flour is lost by the decaying process of fermentation. 100 lbs. of dried flour, yeasted and baked, and then dried from moisture, leaves but 86½ lbs.—13½ lbs, is lost by fermentation; but 100 lbs. of dried flour and 6 lbs. of this powder, baked and dried as above, leaves 105¼ lbs. of real unfermented nourishment. There is, then, gained from a barrel of flour, used with Judd's Baking Powder, about 40 lbs. of bread.

This powder contains no injurious substances, but is a simple, nourishing compound, put up on dietetic principles by Mr. Judd, the inventor, a thorough practical Chemist. It is daily used and recommended by some of the ablest physicians at New Haven, who are acquainted with the manufacturer and his process of preparing it.

It is manufactured by Wm. L. Rogers & Co., New Haven, and is put up in boxes of three sizes, at 12, 25 and 37 cts. each, with directions attached.

For sale by JOHN YEATON,

ILLNESS OF THE PRESIDENT.—Washington, Nov. 22.—The President has been suffering this week with a slight attack of bilious remittent fever, and by the advice of his physician, Dr. May, is confined to his room, although convalescent. He hopes to be out in a day or two.

DESPERATE AFFRAY.—There was a terrible fight in Vandewater street, New York, on Sunday afternoon, between two parties of Irishmen, and some bystanders were seriously wounded; among them, a little son of policeman Wigan, who was struck senseless by a flying missile, and is not expected to recover.

THE UMPIRAGE.—A despatch from Washington states that Mr. Joshua Bates, of the firm of Baring Brothers & Co., has been appointed umpire to the Mixed Commission, in London, and has accepted. The office was first offered to Mr. Van Buren, who declined. The appointment of Mr. Bates is honorable in the highest degree to the Commissioners, the British government, and to Mr. Bates.—This gentleman is a native of the "Old Colony" Plymouth.

DISCHARGED.—John Stevens of the Cincinnati police, who was arreseed for killing John Ragin, who resisted the officer in attempting his arrest, has been discharged from custody. The deceased had in a drunken delirium, assaulted his parents' house; and when arrested, resisted the officer, threatened with oaths and curses to kill him, and kicked him three times with great violence,—when the officer in self defence struck him with his fist, and thus knocked him down in the street. The jury returns a verdict that he came to his death by the fall, which, striking his head on the curbstone, dislocated his neck. Ragin was notorious as a thief, and was only released from the chain-gang a few hours previous to this occurrence. He was a single man. The whole is a deplorable case. The wages of sin is death.

A FAT CASE FOR LAWYERS.—John Walker, a Cincinnati Brewer, recently deceased, left an estate estimated at $260,000, of which $70,000 is in real estate. By will he devised to his wife, in cash, $10,000, her dowry of one third in all real estate, for her natural life, &c. This, it is alleged, would give her in interest about $2500 a year. She claims, as they were childless, she being a second wife, that she, as next of kin, is entitled to the whole of the personal estate, besides her dower in the reality. The nineteen heirs of Walker claim, that if Mrs. Walker elects to take by the will, she relinquishes the $10,000 legacy, and all the personal property, and can take only her dower in the reality. The case is in court.

Very likely it may be a fat case; but unless more particulars are stated, no lawyer could understand it. For instance, the "paper don't say" whether there were any children by the former marriage of the husband, or not, though from the phrase "they were childless," we guess there were none. In New Hampshire, the line of succession is clearly marked by statute. We suspect the word not, should be inserted between "Mrs. Walker elects" and "to take by the will."

DRUGGED BEER.—The Boston Chronicle has often spoken of bad liquors, impure and pernicious. In the local or Boston department of that paper, there is the following instance of drugged beer.

A bright and intelligent lad, about twelve years old, son of very respectable parents, was brought up by a watchman of the Boylston division, on charge of drunkenness. It appeared that the family had spent the summer in the country, and had just returned to the city. The boy was at play with his companions, when they induced him to drink some spruce beer, which had been drugged. The little fellow who had never drank any liquor before, became intoxicated, when this model watchman arrested him, and, instead of carrying him to his parents as any other officer who knew his duty would have done, he took the boy to jail, kept him locked up from Saturday night till Monday morning, when he was found guilty and fined $2 and costs.—This watchman who had performed such a remarkable arrest, neglected to apprise the parents of the boy, and in the most extreme grief and anxiety they remained, till by accident they found where he was, and rescued him from the society of criminals. This proceeding is remarkable, inasmuch as a large number of men and women who are arrested nightly for drunkenness are discharged in the morning.

The principal hotels in New York will furnish to the inmates of the house of industry and the poor of the Five Pots is a substantial thanksgiving dinner.

General Cass has engaged a suite of apartments at Willard's, Washington, for the winter, and intends to bring his daughter there, keep a carriage, etc. This will be quite a change from the very plain mode of life of the General in Washington, for a number of years past.

SNOW.—A gentleman who arrived in Portland on Friday, rode on his way thither, from Harrison to Oxford in a sleigh. At the same time snow was eight inches deep at Ossipee.

POSTPONEMENT OF ELECTION OF U. S. SENATOR.—The Georgia Senate postponed the election of U. S. Senator until the next session—five democrats voting in the affirmative. Great excitement prevailed.

TRAGEDY—AN ACTRESS SHOT—SUICIDE.—An actress named Mrs. Helena Gage was shot in New Orleans, on the 15th, by a French schoolmaster named J. Bettford, for refusing to elope with him. He afterwards killed himself. Mrs. Gage was alive at last accounts.

U. S. SENATOR FOR ALABAMA.—A Despatch announces the election of Jeremiah Clemens as United States Senator from Alabama.

THE CELEBRATED

LOWELL COAL & GAS BURNER

For Anthracite Coal.

MANY futile attempts have been made to construct COAL STOVES which should consume the gases, and at the same time be simple and easily managed.

We think that Mr. D. G. LITTLEFIELD, the Patentee of this Stove, has been eminently successful in his efforts to produce this result—indeed it is so unlike all other stoves, and so superior to them, that the whole truth would hardly be believed, except by those who have used them.

One ton of coal burned in this Stove will generate as much heat as TWO TONS consumed in any other Stove extant.

For a particular description we would refer the public to the following communication from Mr. Littlefield:

All skilful coal burners, and stove manufacturers, are conscious that a great error has pervaded the forms of all the apparatus for burning anthracite coal. No one, however, has been able to determine where the difficulty lay. Nearly all attempted improvements for consuming the gases, have been based upon the presumption that the common method of burning in a tight pot of some kind, either of cast iron or sheet iron lined with stone or brick, was correct, and their improvements have been made over and above this point in the apparatus. It is true the form of the pot has been changed from time to time, from the long cylinder with grate at the bottom, to the short and broad cylinder, and then to the bottle form, then square, then oval, and then contracted at the top, and then at the bottom, and very shallow, each having its advantages and disadvantages, but all operating substantially in the same manner in one respect, namely, that the gases are expelled from the coal and immediately rise unburned to the upper part of the apparatus, where they cannot burn perfectly, being withdrawn from the action and greatest heat of the fire, and must either pass through the flues, or into the apartment to be heated, thus causing a great loss of heat, and the only unpleasant difference between heat produced by coal and that of the wood fire.

Carburetted and sulphuretted hydrogen are freely liberated in burning coal. These gases, altho' perfectly combustible, and therefore easily disposed of, are really the direct cause of nearly all the inconvenience in burning coal. Being very volatile, a large portion of them escape through the flues unburned, or into the room from open stoves, and through the joints of close stoves, producing various unpleasant sensations, such as languor and headache, so common among those who live in a room heated by coal. In addition to this, they act upon and in time destroy the stove and pipe, particularly that part near the chimney. In any city where anthracite coal is used to any extent, the effects can be seen in that part of the chimney above the roof of nearly every house which has been built five years.

I wish now to call the particular attention of the reader to the common method of burning coal in a cylinder, with a flat grate at the bottom. It is well known that when a hard coal fire is started, it is with charcoal or some other very combustible material. The first impression made on the anthracite coal is heat at; this expels the gases or most inflammable portion of the coal, which being volatile, and the pot open at the top, immediately rises above the coal, and is consequently out of reach of the strongest action of the fire. It is a well-known principle that a gaseous substance, expelled from a solid body by the action of heat, rises above and mostly escapes any further action of the same heat which expelled it. The experience of every one that has given attention to coal burning is, that the best results are obtained with the common pot, by a very slow process of burning, covered with ashes, or wet and fine coal. The reason is obvious. By this method more of the volatile substances are retained and consumed within the pot, and in contact with the coal, thereby producing a more perfect combustion of the fixed matter, as well as being burnt themselves, preventing the accumulation of old coal on the grate, and making no clinkers. Sometimes, with great care, a stove can be made to run from week to week, a result very desirable, but only obtained by the utmost care and skill. We need no better evidence that there is a radical defect in past construction of fire pots, than that with them the nicest calculation, prudence and judgment were necessary, to obtain comparatively poor results.—In fact, we may safely say that the form of pot open at the top, and with a grate at the bottom, for burning anthracite coal, is all wrong. The fire by its own action becomes wrong side up. The volatile matter, which is combustible, is expelled, and passes off imperfectly burned, instead of being consumed before it escapes, and helping as nature designed it, to consume the fixed matter in the bottom. A method of burning coal that accomplishes this object, that is, the combustion of the volatile matter in contact with the coal, is the only one that has any claim to be called scientific.

A stove constructed upon the principle above referred to, has been invented; and, after repeated experiments, has been so far perfected as to justify its introduction into the market. Its construction is exceedingly simple, requiring but little skill in the operator, when a fire is once started, (which is easily done); all that is necessary is a constant supply of coal, and a little attention from time to time, to keep a fire from month to month.

The subscriber has secured the right to manufacture and sell this

Greatest Discovery of the Age.

PLANTERS, Farmers, Families and others can purchase no Remedy equal to DR. TOBIAS' VENTIAN LINIMENT, for Dysentery, Colic, Croup, Chronic Rheumatism, Sore Throat, Toothache, Sea Sickness, Cuts, Burns, Swellings, Bruises, Old Sores, Headache, Musquito Bites, Pains in the Limbs, Chest, Back, etc.

It will does not give relief, the money will be refunded; all that is asked is a fair trial, and use it according to the directions.

It is an English Remedy, and was used by William IV. late King of England, and certified to by him, as a cure for Rheumatism, when everything else had failed.

Over 10,000,000 bottles have been sold in the United States, without a single failure, and many have stated that they would not be without it if it was 50 per bottle, in case of Croup, as it is as certain as it is applied.

It cures Cholera, when first taken, in a few hours; Dysentery in half an hour; Toothache in five minutes. It is perfectly innocent to take internally, and is recommended by the most eminent physicians in the United States. Price 25 and 50 cents.

Dr. Tobias could fill a dozen Newspapers with certificates and letters relating to the wonderful cures accomplished by his Linimeut, but considers warranting it sufficient, as any person who does not obtain relief, need not pay for it.

Dr. Tobias has put up a HORSE LINIMENT in pint bottles, which is warranted cheaper and better than any other for Cholic, Scratches, Old Sores, Galls, Swellings, Cuts, Bruises, etc.

Price 50 cents. Dr. Tobias's Office, 240 Greenwich street, New York.

PROF. ALEX. C. BARRY'S

Tricopherous, or Medicated Compound.

FOR beautifying, curling, preserving, restoring and strengthening the Hair, relieving diseases of the Skin, curing Rheumatic Pains and healing external wounds. Bounded by no geographical lines, the reputation of Barry's Tricopherous pervades the Union. The sales of the article of late years have increased in a ratio that almost exceeds belief. Prof. Barry, after a careful examination of his sales book, finds that the number of bottles delivered to order, in quantities of from half a gross upward, during the year 1852, was within a trifle of 950,000.

It is unnecessary to present at length the evidences of the wonderful properties of the Tricopherous when the public have furnished such an endorsement as this. The cheapness of the article, and the explanations given of its chemical action upon the hair, the scalp, and in all cases of superficial irritation, first recommended it to the attention of the people. This was all that the inventor desired. Every bottle advertised itself.—The effects of the fluid exceeded expectation. It acted like a charm. The ladies would not be without it. Country merchants in every section of the United States found they must have it; and thus was built up a wholesale trade of an extent hitherto unheard of as regards articles of this kind.—The highest point has not even been reached, and it is believed that the sales this year will be a million and a half of bottles.

Liberal discounts to purchasers by the quantity, and by all the principal Merchants and Druggists throughout the United States, and Canada, Mexico, West Indies, Great Britain, France, &c., and by Weeks & Potter, Brewers, Stevens & Cushing, and Wm. Brown, Boston. d&w6m je22

DR. CONINE'S

SYRUP OF GINSENG & MALVA.

The Great Chinese Remedy.

THIS Medicine depends more upon its own virtues and actual merit than any other ever before offered to the public.

The recipe is from Dr. CONINE, a gentleman who travelled many years in China, and in the islands of that vicinity where this compound is the potent and effectual remedy for the numerous diseases arising from a disordered or debilitated stomach, and affections of the Lungs.

But what will particularly attract attention is its astonishing

DISSOLVENT POWER.

By which it at once removes ALL PHLEGM or excrescenes matter from the Throat, Stomach or Lungs. It is therefore

Anti-Expectorant,

And from attentions of trial here, it is now offered as NATURE'S KINDEST REMEDY for the removal of Consumption, Whooping Cough, and all Coughs, by precipitating the Phlegm, instead of creating irritation by expectoration.

It is AROMATIC, and increases the general warmth, possessing the exhilarating qualities of the Tea Plant, which is one great cause of its universal popularity in all India beyond the Ganges, where as an

APPETISER

It probably has no equal in the Vegetable Kingdom

AS A DYSPEPTIC REMEDY, IT IS UNEQUALLED.

Its natural, genial warmth keeps the digestive powers ever in proper tone, soothing all irritation of the nerves, &c.

It will prove a more pleasant, safe and effectual Tonic than any Sarsaparilla or other boasted tonic remedy, and even nutritious, as well as exceedingly palatable. It will continue to be prepared in the best manner—no expense being spared—and in quart bottles.

Besides the numberless testimonials which we are receiving daily, of the good effect of the above medicine, we are allowed to refer to several physicians, who are now using the Syrup of Ginseng and Malva with great success.

This valuable Medicine is daily effecting some of the most astonishing and wonderful cures that have ever been known. All who have used it for Asthma, Coughs, Spitting of Blood, Whooping Cough, Croup or Hives, Consumption, Chronic Pleurisy, Hoarseness, Pain and Soreness of the Breast,—

CAN AND DO ATTEST TO ITS USEFULNESS.

BRONCHITIS,

A Disease which is annually

SWEEPING THOUSANDS!

To a premature grave

IS CURED BY IT!

This expectorant immediately suppresses the Cough and Pain, subdues the Inflammation and Fever, removing the Difficulty in Breathing by producing a free and

EASY EXPECTORATION,

So that a Cure is soon Effected.

It is useless for the Proprietor to state any more than the article really is, for upon trying it will fully testify. In case it does not give satisfaction,

"A Splendid Remedy."

THE GREAT REMEDY is at last discovered. Consumption can be cured!! and Coughs and Colds, the parents of that fell disease that so often brings woe to the homes of our land, vanish as if by magic, before this SOVEREIGN REMEDY. This is that which has so long been sought for, and is in full faith offered to the public as a certain cure for Coughs, Colds, Whooping Cough, Croup, Asthma and Consumption, and will in any case where lungs sufficient are left to sustain life, check the ulceration and raise the patient to health. This is not an idle boast, nor is this remedy sent into the market without a thorough trial, but has proved beyond a doubt that what has been asserted CAN BE DONE!

A PIG IN A CARPET BAG,

OR HOW SIGNOR BLITZ FIXED HIM.

Done for the N. Y. Spirit of the Times, by Demi-John.

Since people have got to carrying dogs, bundles, chests of tools, loaves, market-baskets, and such like truck, inside omnibusses, we presume no regular patron of the Kipp and Brown, the Murphy, or any other line, would be much surprised to hear of a pig being transported in a carpet-bag, and the carpet-bag bundled into a Broadway omnibus, besides. A pretty strong proof that such a thing could be done, was witnessed in a Broadway omnibus a few days since.

The day was rainy, and everybody out of doors in bad humor, of course—particularly such as, after waiting under a dilapidated awning, or in a dripping doorway, for half an hour, rush into the rain and mud and run the risk of their lives to get a 'bus, and be told by twelve inside that it's "all full." As a general thing, persons thus bluff'd off cypher their way back to the pavement the best way they can, and wait for another chance; but there are some who will not stand it, and force their way into the vehicle, no matter how many object.

One of these won't-be-refused persons paid liberally for his boorishness, as the story will show. An omnibus filled with its complement of twelve, was hailed by a big man in a shaggy coat, and carrying a large carpet-bag. The driver stopped, of course. Who ever heard of a driver fancying his stage full?

"All full!" "Go on, driver!" "There's no room here, sir!" And a dozen other exclamations, came from the insiders; but the driver sat still on his box, and the dripping stranger pulled away at the door, which a man was holding together by a strap. The outsider was too strong for the insider, however, and pulling the door open, jumped in, and passed roughly along over boots and gaiters, to the front of the stage. Here he deposited his carpet-bag upon the feet of a lady passenger, and crowded about one third of his huge person upon the bit of spare space on the opposite seat, and "faced the audience."

A pretty idea to keep a man standing out in the rain and mud, wasn't it?", exclaimed the angry intruder.

The ladies looked at each other and smiled, while the men laughed out right.

"May be I've been amongst civilized people some in my life," said the now fairly 'riled' stranger, "even of they didn't have painted stages and painted people in 'em."

This drew a deprecating glance from the ladies, while the gentleman looked as if they wouldn't mind pitching the fellow out.

"Wee-e-e-e!" came from the carpet-bag.

"Hello! what's that? asked a little man with big hair and a thin voice.

A pig in a carpet-bag! shouted another.

"Wee-e-e-ooh—ooh—ooh—w-e-e-e!" from the carpet-bag.

Throw it out! cried the man with the thin voice.

"There aint any pig there!" roared the shaggy coat. "Them's my close, and noth'n else."

"Wee e-e-e!"

The deuce there aint, from the little man. Pitch him out, with his live pork.

"Let 'em try it!" roared the shaggy. Who is agoin' to do it?

"Wee-e-e-e!—ooh—ooh—wee-e-e!"

Gentleman, we can't stand this any longer; go out with your hog, you brute! cried the little man, assuming indignation.

Stop the stage and let me out! cried one of the ladies.

"I tell you I aint got no pig in that bag," growled the shaggy man—"I'll bet ten dollaas on it. The critter is somewhere else—in some of the seats, may be."

"Wee-e-e-e!"

Here the alarm of the ladies began to be intense. Several insisted on getting out, and one improvised a very good feint at a faint.

Sit still, said the little man—I'll go out and see the driver. This nuisance is not to be born any longer.

The stage was stopped, and the little man got out, and did see the driver—enough, at any rate to hand up his sixpence—and then walked straight into Stuyvesant Institute, bestowing as he entered the door, rather a quizzical look at the people in the stage.

"Who is that fellow?" growled the shaggy coat—I've a mind to get out and thrash him The idea of my having a pig in that carpet bag!

That man? answered the person addressed—that is Signor Blitz.

"The Devil!"

"No, not quite; but rather a clus' relation. You can go on, driver."

Is Spain, a Cabinet Council has decided to grant to the Protestants a special burying ground. Even this is progress for so benighted and priest-ridden a country as Spain,—one of the best spots on earth, and yet one of the meanest nations. Could its ecclesiastical fetters be broken, it would speedily rise into consequence and comfort.

For the Morning Chronicle.

PAST, PRESENT, AND FUTURE.

Hon. Mr. Burlingame's Lyceum lecture, on Tuesday evening, was a rebuke and refutation of the idea that any "good old times" were better than the present. This sighing for the past has been practised ever since Time was very young—and we doubt not will continue yet. But it is all gammon, as the lecturer plainly shew, reasoning from fact and philosophy. The same persons, or others like them, who now cry "hard times" "bad times," "O for the good old times," "Times aint now as they used to be," &c., (which last is true, for "the times" are always improving) have drawled out the same croak almost from the beginning of time. The past is past—the present is gone ere we are fully aware of it—the future is all we have to hope for, and it is enough. Let us then learn all we may from what has gone before us—make the best possible use of the advantages offered in the present—and thus be enabled to trust fully and firmly in the glorious hereafter. We can fully respond to the sentiment of both the songs, "The happiest time is now," and "There's a good time coming."

Mr. Burlingame is one of the free soil orators of Massachusetts, a class of very talented men, who are too fond of drawing dark pictures of the future,—and we supposed he was of the same mind with his coadjutors.—But throughout his lecture, in several appropriate allusions to America's greatest curse, he stated the existence of slavery here to be sectional and not national, the exception and not the general rule; and expressed full faith that with the developement and improvement of the American,—which type of mankind he regarded as the very highest that has ever existed—this spot upon the white robes of the young Republic, will be entirely eradicated.—His closing remarks, expressing the hope and belief that such a day will come in due time, was received by the audience with a degree of satisfaction that found expression in hearty applause. PROGRESS.

THE WRONG PIG.—Everybody that has ever read anything classical, has, of course, read the story of Catharine and Petruchio, and yet therein Shakspeare has illustrated the common prejudice of the male sex. The Lion and the Statuary are exhibited here as prominently as in the old fable. How does it happen that the fairest portion of creation is always considered the best representative of a scold, a termagant, and a shrew? Why is it that loquacity is ever coupled with her name, and why is it that we worship and defame the sex at the same time, like the Indian that breaks to pieces his God when all his wild prayers are not answered. It is simply because men have, in all former ages, been the chroniclers, and in spite of the mildness and gentleness and love that go to make up the female character, we still cling, with perverse fondness, to this crude slander of any crabbed satirist, who would have us to believe that women have no merit in speech except the merit of the last word, and no brevity except the concentrated venom of a taunt. For my part (horresco referens) I know more male than female scolds, and where one woman of my acquaintance renders her household unhappy by a contrary and perverted temper, I know at least half a dozen men whose snappishness would take the edge off a screw auger.—N. Y Spirit of the Times.

Morning Chronicle.

SATURDAY, NOV. 26, 1853.

To New Subscribers.—To each person not now on our list, who shall subscribe for the Daily or Weekly Chronicle for the year 1854, and pay for the same in advance, we will supply the paper to Jan. 1, gratis. Terms for the Daily $3—Weekly $1.

A Hard Charge.—A clergyman in Portsmouth, N. H., in a discourse, Sunday, on temperance, asserted that there was not a dozen young men in that city who were not addicted to the use of intoxicating liquors. This is a hard charge—if true.—Boston Bee.

It is not true. No such charge was made by the clergyman. He mentioned that such a statement had been made to him, which he could not credit.

This reminds us of a Sermon which we heard from Theodore Parker, a few years ago, "of the Morals of Boston," a passage of which was reported exactly as the last Sunday's remark was in the above case. Mr. Parker said he had stated, a Sunday before, that he believed there were ten honest men, and ten honest bargains in business, where there was one dishonest. But during the week, some of his friends, men in business, informed him that he was too charitable.—Now, said Mr. P. if this be so, then the spirit of Trade is corrupt, &c., &c. The reporter published the statement that Mr. Parker said The Spirit of Trade is corrupt, &c.

We came to the conclusion then, that the reporter must either be a wilful liar, who meant to injure Mr. Parker if possible, or must be so stupid as to misunderstand the plainest statement of two or three propositions. And we begin to believe, now, in what we used to regard a fiction,—that many hearers "listen with the elbows," and understand accordingly.

Capt. Field.—We are glad to see that the President of the United States has reversed the sentence of the Court Martial on Governor's Island, cashiering Capt. H. B. Field; and orders him to be discharged from arrest.

The Fall River Railroad Accident.—The Rev. Dr. Potter was not fatally injured as at first supposed, and will doubtless recover.

The following named persons, however, were very seriously scalded and otherwise injured, and their lives are in imminent danger:

Capt. Fredrick Kent, ship master, of Boston, Capt. Henry J. Winchenback, ship master, of Boston; Mr. J. B. Babcock, merchant, of St. Andrews, N. B.; and Mr. Parsons, teacher in Lynn High School.

The unfortunate parties all remain at Bridgewater, where many of their friends have gone to attend them.

The steamer Germania from Bremen (formerly the Acadia of the Cunard line) put in to Halifax on her way to New York, and the Halifax papers have the following in relation to her passengers:

"Her passengers are a motley group, among whom are some one hundred and fifty Jews, who have evidently turned their backs upon Jerusalem, except, as some people assert, it is to be rebuilt in the Western World. About one hundred passengers are en route to California, and nearly all are seeking a home in the far West."

Fatal Railroad Accident.—Springfield, Nov. 22d.—A Mr. Wright, of Montague, while in a state of intoxication, was run over in Deerfield, this afternoon, by the cars of the outward train from Boston, on the Massachusetts and Vermont Railroad, and was instantly killed.

Collector Redfield of New York.—The National men of New York are using their undisguised and united exertions to secure the rejection of Mr. Collector Redfield, of New York, the successor of Judge Bronson, by the United States Senate.

Rhode Island Constitution.—Providence, Nov. 22.—All the towns but two gave a majority of 3800 against the Convention.—The vote is more than two to one.

The Pekin (China) Gazette, in enumerating the spoils captured from a defeated insurgent detachment, says: "The rebels lost a quantity of powder and ball, together with a number of standards and umbrellas." An umbrella, especially of Chinese manufacture, must be rather a clumsy article with which to enter into an engagement with an enemy.

Rev. Antoinette L. Brown united a happy couple in the bonds of matrimony at Rochester, N. Y., last week. She conducted herself with marked grace and propriety throughout the interesting ceremony, omitting nothing pertinent to the occasion, except the primeval injunction.

Father Gavazzi, the ex-Catholic priest, is to deliver five anti-popery lectures in Boston next week.

Election Anecdote.— A good story has been told to us, the scene of which is located in Lowell, illustrative of the flats and sharps of the late election. A democratic son of Ireland, who lacked nothing with regard to the privilege of voting, except the money to procure his naturalization papers, applied to the rallying committee of his party, who promptly furnished the needful; the new citizen took the requisite oaths, and proceeded to the place of election. Here he armed himself with a democratic state ticket of the Bishop stamp, and also with a sheet of noes against the adoption of the Constitution. His political guardians objected decidedly to this mode of dividing his virgin suffrage, but the newly made citizen stopped them with the remark:—"Arrah, honey, didn't I take an oath this morning to support the Constitution; and do you think I shall forswear myself so soon?" The friends of the voter had no answer for such a query, and he quietly deposited his votes in the boxes, according to his pleasure and judgment.—Boston Courier.

LOCAL.

ADDRESS
OF THE MANAGERS OF THE CITY MISSION.
For the Chronicle.

In all communities there are, of necessity, numbers of persons, who are dependent on the kind attentions and liberality of others for the conveniences and comforts of life. It is impossible in the arrangement of society to to avoid this necessity to any very great extent. Society not only recognizes the necessity, but organizes its benevolence to meet its claims, and in so doing it reaps the double advantage of doing good and getting good.—There is a giving which impoverishes not; there is a doing which wearies not; and such giving and doing are pre-eminently exhibited in all those christian and politic systematic efforts in behalf of those who in the providence of God, are in our midst, and more or less dependent upon our benevolence.

Though there are persons, who are always thus dependent upon the kind notice of the community, the inclement winter makes them to be very particularly the objects of regard. The cold and wintry season brings its urgent demands for appliances for comfort, which other portions of the year do not make upon the limited means of many families. The infirm, the sick, and many under other adverse circumstances, who are in every respect worthy of the kindness of their neighbors, do, in the inclement season, particularly need the substantial expression of that kindness; and without it they must suffer. "They who have the comforts of life may be happy; but those who want them must be miserable."

Kind words to the needy are certainly pleasant. Good advice and lessons of virtue are very proper; but something more than this is needed. Bread, wood, clothing, stoves, shelter and such like things, supply great needs; and without these, kind words to the needy are simply a mockery. "We pay taxes," says one, and thus we give to the support of the poor. But then are all the claims of true christian benevolence, and all the demands on the kindness of a good citizen discharged, when he pays his poor tax? Here is a sick husband; a hard-working wife, and a family of children. The winds and cold of winter are all round the humble home. The season demands extra expenses all unprovided for.—You look in upon the family. The stove is cold; the children are ill-clad; the mother toiling for daily bread and medicine; scarcely securing enough to comfort the wants—the pressing wants of nature. Look in upon them. How much comfort will it afford to reflect, as you turn away from the scene, that you have a receipt for your last poor tax? And this is not merely a supposed case. There are many such instances. Poverty, from some unforeseen and unavoidable causes steals into many a home. And the community has a kind work, a work of rich reward to perform in their behalf.

The City Mission, in which may be organized the benevolence of the friends of the poor and the suffering, intends to make an effort in behalf of this class in our community during the coming winter. The missionary will attend to the disbursement of the means placed at his disposal, with discretion, and according to the circumstances of cases as they come under his notice in the prosecution of his labors. It is his duty to seekout the ignorant and the vicious, to advise and instruct them; but how much good will advice, or a tract or a testament do to a sick, hungry and cold family, unless he can send also a little wood, or a parcel of clothing, or some provisions, or medicines, or anything of this sort which may be really needed?

The Managers of the City Mission are assured that, according to the limited means of the Mission, it is accomplishing a good work in the community. And all that is wanted, is the hearty and substantial co-operation of the citizens generally, to make it extensively useful to the interests of the entire city. The citizens cannot give their time to these concerns; but the missionary is ever on the look out for those who need attention, and he can do many a thing to comfort a family, which others could scarcely attend to. He can procure employment for husbands and fathers; he can procure good instruction for the larger children; he can speak comfort and give comfortable things to the suffering; he can deter from vagrancy the idle and vicious; he can exhort the intemperate to sobriety and industry; he can get others to school, who perhaps need only a pair of shoes, or some other article of clothing; and in many ways do an amount of good not only to the immediate subjects of his mission, but also to the whole community. All that is needed is the kind co-operation of the citizens at large to secure the most efficient work in the matter, and the incalculable good of all.

The managers of the Mission would therefore appeal to the community to aid them and their missionary, in this cause, by their contributions. Each one can give something: if we each give what we can, we shall have abundance; and our reward is in the consciousness of doing good.

By order of the Managers—
Joseph M. Edmonds, Sec'y.

☞ Rev. Mr. Bodwell's Lyceum Lecture at the Cameneum last evening, was on the Women of England; and in the discussion of this subject the orator was quite successful: choosing his points well; and illustrating most of them with descriptions, incidents and scenes, drawn from his recollection, observation and experience.

No dissenting voices will be found in that audience, from the opinion that the lecture was excellent in its kind, well written, and fitly spoken.

The lecture on next Thursday evening, will be by Rev. Mr. Lane, of Newburyport.

Drowned.—A man named Henry Bickford, of Durham, fell overboard from Eldredge's Wharf on Wednesday night last, at about 9 o'clock, and was drowned. The night was very dark, and it is supposed he mistook the wharf, as the gondola to which he was attached was lying at the next wharf. His cries for help where heard, but before assistance could be rendered he sank, and was carried beyond reach by the tide.

SABBATH SERVICES.

☞ The annual meeting of the friends of the City Mission, will be held in the Stone Church, to-morrow evening. Address by Rev. Dr. Burroughs.

☞ Rev. Mr. Willis, at the Universalist Church, will deliver the 5th lecture of his course, on Sunday morning: subject—The Judgment as authorized by Scripture and reason.

☞ Rev. Mr. Moore will deliver the fourth of his series of sermons on the Lord's Prayer, at the North Church, on Sabbath afternoon. The subject will be the petition,—"Thy Kingdom come."

☞ Rev. Mr. Spalding will deliver a lecture at the Methodist Church, to-morrow evening, on the Tendencies of Romanism.

How Thanksgiving was kept.—On a rainy, dirty day, a few people assembled in each of the churches, and listened we suppose, to a first rate sermon, which we think, in some cases at least, might be properly and profitably repeated by the parson, on some sun shiny day, when he sees a house full of people.

Next, there was in every dwelling-house, at least one "gudewife" getting dinner, often with a daughter or some other cook's mate. Next, some fast men were driving fast horses through the mud, toiling hard for pleasure.

Then came a cluster of boys and some old boys, brave fellows shooting tied turkeys and imprisoned chickens; then minepins, cards and dice, accompanied with frightful oaths, and with dreadfully bad liquor which men put, an enemy, within their mouths, to steal away their brains.

Lastly: but we will let the card speak for itself. We copy it from the veritable pasteboard article, which was found in one of our streets on Wednesday:

"Sport for Thanksgiving Day!—At —— Hall, a number of Cock-Fights, with other amusements, will occur during the day, and oyster soup and clam chowder will be served up gratuitously in the evening."

The suggestion that this gratuitous feast had a quid pro quo in some money spent in gambling, drinking, and cock-fighting, is natural to any yankee mind, except to the miserable victims who willingly enter such a net of folly.

☞ Towle & Co. at Congress Block, have this day opened and advertised a great variety of Goods, some particulars of which may be seen in the advertising columns of the Chronicle this morning.

Our thanks for a couple of neat and valuable specimens of Fancy Goods—of which they have an assortment, to suit any body and every body.

RESPECT FOR MR. HARRIS.

At a meeting of the pupils of the deceased, held on Wednesday afternoon, Wm. Simes was chosen chairman, and Wm. H. Sise secretary. A committee consisting of Messrs. J. F. Shores, Jr., Wm. H. Rollins, and T. G. Senter, was appointed to make suitable arrangements for the attendance of the Pupils at the funeral of the deceased. And a committee, consisting of Messrs. T. G. Senter, Wm. H. Rollins, I. B. Claggett, A. B. Bennett and Edwin F. Mathes, was appointed to draft resolutions expressive of their feelings.

At a meeting held at the Academy on Friday afternoon, at 2 o'clock, the committee on resolutions reported the following, which were unanimously adopted:

Whereas, The intelligence of the sudden death of WILLIAM C. HARRIS, while in the midst of his labors, having filled the hearts of us, his pupils, with the deepest sorrow, we regard it fitting, that we should, on this solemn occasion, give expression to our sense of his eminent worth,—therefore,

Resolved, That in his death the community has sustained the loss of a Teacher, whose fidelity, energy, untiring industry, and eminent tact in educing the talents, imparting instruction and winning the affections of his pupils, are seldom equalled and never have been excelled—a teacher who has done more than any other person to render the Sons of Portsmouth eminent as pioneers in the field of American enterprise.

Resolved, That we, whose happiness it was to be blessed with his instruction, regard our prosperity and success in life, as mainly attributable to his fidelity in unfolding the latent energies of our minds, infusing within us a love of literature, and "teaching us how to study."

Resolved, That we do, and must ever cherish the memory of the venerable deceased (whose chief delight through life has been to rejoice in our prosperity) with sentiments of the highest regard; and though we deeply mourn his sudden removal while in the actual discharge of his arduous duties, and in the midst of his usefulness, we find consolation in the blessed hope of his being at rest in the bosom of Infinite Love.

Resolved, That we deeply sympathize with his bereaved family, and in token of our sympathy request the chairman of this meeting to furnish them with a copy of these resolutions.

Resolved, That the Press be furnished with a copy of these resolutions.

Resolved, That as a token of our respect, we now proceed to attend the funeral.

The Funeral of Mr. Harris was attended by his scholars, who formed a procession at the Academy, and accompanied the remains from his late dwelling to St. John's Church, where the burial service was read by the rector, Rev. Dr. Burroughs, in the presence of a large congregation.

MARRIED.

Judd's Baking Powder.

THIS is a Nutritious and Healthy Baking Powder, to be used instead of yeast, and is made of prepared Corn Starch and Arrow Root.

In the ordinary method of raising bread with yeast, a large amount of the best portion of the flour is lost by the decaying process of fermentation. 100 lbs. of dried flour, yeasted and baked, and then dried from moisture, leaves but 86¾ lbs.—13¼ lbs. is lost by fermentation; but 100 lbs. of dried flour and 6 lbs. of this powder, baked and dried as above, leaves 105¼ lbs. of real unfermented nourishment. There is, then, gained from a barrel of flour, used with Judd's Baking Powder, about 40 lbs. of bread.

This powder contains no injurious substances, but is a simple, nourishing compound, put up on dietetic principles by Mr. Judd, the inventor, a thorough practical Chemist. It is daily used and recommended by some of the ablest physicians at New Haven, who are acquainted with the manufacturer and his process of preparing it.

It is manufactured by Wm. L. Rogers & Co., New Haven, and is put up in boxes of three sizes, at 12, 25 and 37 cts. each, with directions attached.

IMPORTANT FROM EUROPE.

ARRIVAL OF THE CANADA.

By the steamship Canada, the Portland Advertiser has Liverpool news to 12th inst.

The papers contain the Russian Emperor's declaration of war against Turkey, a very religious document in its tone, but packed with falsehoods enough to make a large sized lying preamble. One paragraph will answer as a specimen.

"The Porte has commenced hostilities on the Danube. Russia is provoked to the combat. No other means is left, then, than a recourse to arms, to compel the Ottoman Government to respect treaties, and to obtain from it the reparation of the offences by which it responded to our most moderate demands, and to our legitimate solicitude for the defence of the Orthodox faith in the East, which is also the religion of the Russian people."

Complete Defeat of the Russians.—An official telegraphic despatch from the Consul of France at Bucharest to M. de Bourquenay, dated November 6, has the following :—

"On the 2d and 3d of November, the Turks crossed the Danube from Turtukai to Oltenitza, to the number of about 18,000 men. On the 4th, Gen. Parloff attacked them with nine thousand men, and after a brief cannonade, a combat with the bayonet took place between the two armies. The Turks maintained their position at Oltenitza, and have fortified them.

The combat lasted three hours. In it the Russians lost several officers and 136 privates killed, and six superior officers, eighteen subalterns and 479 privates wounded. The loss on the Turkish side is not known.

Four thousand Turks occupy Kalarache, 2,000 have established themselves on an island in the front of Giurgivo, and 12,000 are in lesser Wallachia.

A private account of the same battle, received by way of Vienna, states that fourteen superior officers fell. The Turks remained masters of the field, and the Russians were retreating on Bucharest.

Previous to the battle, the Turks had constructed a tete du pont at Kalafat, which served as the basis of their operations.

It appears that Omar crossed at three points —with 13,000 at Oltenitza, 4,000 at Kalavache, and 2,000 at Giurgivo.

Skirmishes continually occurred at outposts.

Before the crossing of the Danube, a body of Cossacks came to the river bank and made signs of insult, and the Egyptians rushed to their boats, rowed across the river in the face of the Cossacks' fire, and having punished them well and chased them some distance inland, returned in triumph to the camp.

There are rumors of several other movements of the Turks at different points along the Danube, and of the destruction of a Russian steamer at Horsova ; but these reports, though probable, do not rest on sufficient authority to state as facts.

First Battle in Asia.—Constantinople, Oct. 11.—Lebanon is disturbed. Selim Pacha has crossed the frontier in Asia, and a battle has taken place near Battourn. Five thousand men were engaged, and both armies fell back as night came on.

Second Battle—The Russians Defeated !—October 20.—Mustar Bey, officer of Selim Pacha's staff, with a small force, was suddenly attacked by a body of Russian cavalry. He fell back, fighting, towards the main body of the Turkish army, and the battle speedily became general. Fifteen thousand Russians were engaged. After hard fighting, the Russians were defeated, and fled, pursued by the Turks, who planted the Sultan's standard and made their quarters at the Russian position of Orelle, eight hours distance from Ciorockdere, where the battle began.

The Russian force defeated and beaten back to Bucharest was the main body of the Russians under General Danemberg, and was thirty to forty thousand strong.

If this be true, the news is summed up thus triumphantly for the Turks :—

The Turks have beaten the Russians in Asia.

The Turkish left wing in Europe has beaten the Russian right wing, comprising their principal force, while the Turkish centre has whipped nine thousand Russians at Turtukai, and is now pressing in upon Bucharest !

May the Crescent live !

The Tactics.—The policy of the Russians is supposed to be to draw the Turks from their present and advantageous positions, and with the aid of reinforcements now on the way, to bring them to a battle that shall decide the campaign.

The intention of Omar is to keep his promise to drive the Russians from the principalities, and make his head quarters at Bucharest. Diplomacy lies uselessly in the rear of the fighting, and even yet hopes to adjust matters, but not until a decisive battle shall have been fought, the condition being that to save the Czar's amour propre, negotiations shall not be recommenced after any engagement, in which the Russians are worsted.

Other News from the Seat of War.—The typhus fever was ragingin the Russian ranks, and had reduced the number of fighting men to 85,000, and it would be six weeks before a re-inforcement can arrive from Bessarabia.

The Czar has requested the Montenegrines to operate against the Turks.

The Porte has décided that foreign refugees shall not be employed in Europe—but may serve in Asia.

Abdi Pacha is to be removed from the Asiatic command.

Constantinople is quiet.

Britain.—The British fleet at Spithead is ordered to be ready for sea on the 11th, but the destination is not stated.

The London Mayor's banquet was attended by all the Cabinet Ministers, and also Mr. Buchanan. The best speech was merely complimentary to a successful issue. The Earl of Aberdeen referred to his known policy of peace, but said that while he still followed a peace policy, it was not impossible to engage in war to prevent great evils. The other ministers made no political allusions.

A full Cabinet was held on the receipt of the Indian news, but no deliberation took place.

The weather in England is very favorable for wheat sowing.

Latest Intelligence.—Five Russian officers had arrived at Constantinople prisoners of war.

Admirals Dundass and Hamelin are at Constantinople. The fleets are anchored in the Bosphorus.

☞ There is a rumor, perhaps premature, that Bucharest has been stormed.

The son of Abas Pasha is named Minister of War, and fresh levies are raising in Egypt.

The pay of the Turkish army is distributed annually.

Vienna, evening 10th.—The following are the conditions insisted on by Omar Pacha, in a note forwarded to Gortschakoff : All the strongholds in the Principalities to be immediately given into the hands of the Turks ; the complete evacuation of the Principalities as speedily as possible ; and a guarantee of all the powers against similar invasion.

PARIS, evening 11th.—According to latest accounts here from Constantinople, the Sultan has positively rejected all proposals which the diplomatists have submitted to him.

It is freely repeated that 25,000 French troops will be sent to Turkey, but orders are not given to the Ministers of War until the receipt of despatches from Gen. De Hillers at Constantinople.

Liverpool Breadstuffs.—Breadstuffs dull in the early part of the week, but recovered towards the close. Wheat was reported in moderate demand at nearly the currency o of last week. United States and Canada Flour in good request at full previous rates.—Indian corn held firmly at former quotations. Oats easier.

THE CELEBRATED
LOWELL COAL & GAS BURNER

For Anthracite Coal.
MANY futile attempts have been made to construct COAL STOVES which should consume the gases, and at the same time be simple and easily managed.
We think that Mr. D. G. LITTLEFIELD, the Patentee of this Stove, has been eminently successful in his efforts to produce this result—indeed it is so unlike all other stoves, and so superior to them, that the whole truth would hardly be believed, except by those who have used them.
One ton of coal burned in this Stove will generate as much heat as TWO TONS consumed in any other Stove extant.
For a particular description we would refer the public to the following communication from Mr. Littlefield :
All skilful coal burners, and stove manufacturers, are conscious that a great error has pervaded the forms of all the apparatus for burning anthracite coal. No one, however, has been able to determine where the difficulty lay. Nearly all attempted improvements for consuming the gases, have been based upon the presumption that the common method of burning in a tight pot of some kind, either of cast iron or sheet iron lined with stone or brick, was correct, and their improvements have been made over and above this point in the apparatus. It is true the form of the pot has been changed from time to time, from the long cylinder with grate at the bottom, to the short and broad cylinder, and then to the bottle form, then square, then oval, and then contracted at the top, and then at the bottom, and very shallow, each having its advantages and disadvantages, but all operating substantially in the same manner in one respect, namely, that the gases are expelled from the coal and immediately rise unburned to the upper part of the apparatus, where they cannot burn perfectly, being withdrawn from the action and greatest heat of the fire, and must either pass through the flues, or into the apartment to be heated, thus causing a great loss of heat, and the only unpleasant difference between heat produced by coal and that of the wood fire.
Carburetted and sulphuretted hydrogen are freely liberated in burning coal. These gases, although perfectly combustible, and therefore easily disposed of, are really the direct cause of nearly all the inconvenience in burning coal. Being very volatile, a large portion of them escape through the flues unburned, or into the room from open stoves, and through the joints of close stoves, producing various unpleasant sensations, such as langor and headache, so common among those who live in a room heated by coal. In addition to this, they act upon and in time destroy the stove and pipe, particularly that part near the chimney. In any city where anthracite coal is used to any extent, the effects can be seen in that part of the chimney above the roof of nearly every house which has been built five years.
I wish now to call the particular attention of the reader to the common method of burning coal in a cylinder, with a flat grate at the bottom. It is well known that when a hard coal fire is started, it is with charcoal or some other very combustible material. The first impression made on the anthracite coal is to heat it; this expels the gases or most inflammable portion of the coal, which being volatile, and the pot open at the top, immediately rises above the coal, and is consequently out of reach of the strongest action of the fire. It is a well-known principle that a gaseous substance, expelled from a solid body by the action of heat, rises above and mostly escapes any further action of the same heat which expelled it. The experience of every one that has given attention to coal burning is, that the best results are obtained with the common pot, by a very slow process of burning, covered with ashes, or wet and fine coal. The reason is obvious. By this method more of the volatile substances are retained and consumed within the pot, and in contact with the coal, thereby producing a more perfect combustion of the fixed matter, as well as being burnt themselves, preventing the accumulation of cold coal on the grate, and making no clinkers. Sometimes, with great care, a stove can be made to run from week to week, a result very desirable, but only obtained by the utmost care and skill. We need no better evidence that there is a radical defect in past construction of fire pots, than that with them the nicest calculation, prudence and judgment were necessary, to obtain comparatively poor results.—In fact, we may safely say that the form of pot open at the top, and with a grate at the bottom, for burning anthracite coal, is all wrong. The fire by its own action becomes wrong side up. The volatile matter, which is combustible, is expelled, and passes off imperfectly burned, instead of being consumed before it escapes, and helping as nature designed it, to consume the fixed matter in the bottom. A method of burning coal that accomplishes this object, that is, the combustion of the volatile matter in contact with the coal, is the only one that has any claim to be called scientific.
A stove constructed upon the principle above referred to, has been invented, and, after repeated experiments, has been so far perfected as to justify its introduction into the market. Its construction is exceedingly simple, requiring but little skill in the operator, when a fire is once started, (which is easily done); all that is necessary is a constant supply of coal, and a little attention from time to time, to keep a fire from month to month.
The subscriber has secured the right to manufacture and sell this Greatest Discovery of the Age.

PLANTERS, Farmers, Families and others can purchase no Remedy equal to DR. TOBIAS' VENITIAN LINIMENT, for Dysentery, Colic, Croup, Chronic Rheumatism, Sore Throat, Toothache, Sea Sickness, Cuts, Burns, Swellings, Bruises, Old Sores, Headache, Musquito Bites, Pains in the Limbs, Chest, Back, etc.

If it does not give relief, the money will be refunded; all that is asked is a fair trial, and use it according to the directions.

It is an English Remedy, and was used by William IV. late King of England, and certified to by him, as a cure for Rheumatism, when everything else had failed.

Over 10,000,000 bottles have been sold in the United States, without a single failure, and many have stated that they would not be without it if it was $10 per bottle, in case of Croup, as it is as certain as it is applied.

It cures Cholera, when first taken, in a few hours; Dysentery in half an hour; Toothache in five minutes. It is perfectly innocent to take internally and is recommended by the most eminent physicians in the United States. Price 25 and 50 cents.

Dr. Tobias could fill a dozen Newspapers with certificates and letters relating to the wonderful cures accomplished by his Liniment, but considers warranting it sufficient, as any person who does not obtain relief, need not pay for it.

Dr. Tobias has put up a HORSE LINIMENT in pint bottles, which is warranted cheaper and better than any other for Cholic, Scratches, Old Sores, Galls, Swellings, Cuts, Bruises, etc.

Price 50 cents. Dr. Tobias's Office, 240 Greenwich street, New York.

PROF. ALEX. C. BARRY'S

Tricopherous, or Medicated Compound.

FOR beautifying, curling, preserving, restoring and strengthening the Hair, relieving diseases of the Skin, curing Rheumatic Pains and healing external wounds. Bounded by no geographical lines, the reputation of Barry's Tricopherous pervades the Union. The sale of the article of late years have increased in a ratio that almost exceeds belief. Prof. Barry, after a careful examination of his sales book, finds that the number of bottles delivered to order, in quantities of from half a pint upward, during the year 1852, was within a trifle of 950,000.

It is unnecessary to present at length the evidences of the wonderful properties of the Tricopherous when the public have furnished such an endorsement as this. The cheapness of the article, and the explanations given of its chemical action upon the hair, the scalp, and in all cases of superficial irritation, first recommended it to the attention of the people. This was all that the inventor desired. Every bottle advertised itself—The effects of the fluid exceeded expectation. It acted like a charm. The ladies would not be without it. Country dealers in every section of the United States found they must have it; and thus was built up a wholesale trade of an extent hitherto unheard of as regards articles of this kind.—The highest point has not yet been reached, and it is believed that the sales this year will be a million and a half of bottles.

Liberal discount to purchasers by the quantity, and by all the principal Druggists throughout the United States, and Canada, Mexico, West Indies, Great Britain, France, &c., and by Weeks & Potter, Brewers, Stevens & Cushing, and Wm. Brown, Boston. d&w6m jo22

DR. CONINE'S

SYRUP OF GINSENG & MALVA.

The Great Chinese Remedy.

THIS Medicine depends more upon its own virtues and actual merit than any other ever before offered to the public.

The recipe is from Dr. CONINE, a gentleman who travelled many years in China, and in the islands of that vicinity where this compound is the potent and effectual remedy for the numerous diseases arising from a disordered or debilitated stomach, and

Affections of the Lungs.

But what will particularly attract attention is its astonishing

DISSOLVENT POWER,

By which it at once removes ALL PHLEGM or extraneous matter from the Throat, Stomach or Lungs. It is therefore

Anti-Expectorant,

And from attentions of trial here, it is now offered as NATURE'S KINDEST REMEDY for the removal of Consumption, Whooping Cough, and all Coughs, by precipitating the Phlegm, instead of creating irritation by expectoration.

It is AROMATIC, and increases the general warmth, possessing the exhilarating qualities of the Tea Plant, which is one great cause of its universal popularity in all India beyond the Ganges, where as an

APPETISER

It probably has no equal in the Vegetable Kingdom

AS A DYSPEPTIC REMEDY, IT IS UNEQUALLED.

Its natural, genial warmth keeps the digestive powers ever in proper tone, soothing all irritation of the nerves, &c.

It will prove a more pleasant, safe and effectual Tonic than any Sarsaparilla or other boasted tonic remedy, and even nutritious, as well as exceedingly palatable. It will continue to be prepared in the best manner—no expense being spared—and in quart bottles.

Besides the numberless testimonials which we are receiving daily, of the good effect of the above medicine, we are allowed to refer to several physicians, who are now using the Syrup of Ginseng and Malva with great success.

"A Splendid Remedy."

THE GREAT REMEDY is at last discovered. Consumption can be cured!! and Coughs and Colds, the parents of that fell disease that so often brings woe to the homes of our land, vanish, as if by magic, before this SOVEREIGN REMEDY. This is that which has so long been sought for, and is in full faith offered to the public as a certain cure for Coughs, Colds, Whooping Cough, Croup, Asthma and Consumption, and will in any case where lungs sufficient are left to sustain life, check the ulceration and raise the patient to health. This is not an idle boast, nor is this remedy sent into the market without a thorough trial, but has proved beyond a doubt that what has been asserted CAN BE DONE!!

NEW CASTLE.—No. IV.

Among the former pastors of the ancient church in this place, but one was a native of New Hampshire, and none of New Castle. Nor is it known that more than two persons have, at any time, entered the ministry, who were natives of this town. They were the following.

1st. Rev. Joseph Walton—born May 27th, 1742. He descended from some of the earliest and most respectable inhabitants. Hon. Mr. Walton, his father, for a long time was President of the Provincial Council. He having deceased, his son, from his earliest infancy, was left in the care of his mother, a daughter of Joseph Jackson, Esq., of New Castle. He enjoyed only the ordinary means of acquiring an education; but these he diligently and successfully improved; "from his youth reading serious and instructive books, and especially the sacred scriptures."

He pursued the occupation of a cooper. He was married, March 14th, 1768, to Mary, daughter of Paul Couch, of Newbury, Mass. Of his children, eight in number, one son now survives, at the age of fourscore years, a resident of Portsmouth.

Mrs. Walton died July 30th, 1784, and he was subsequently married to Mrs. Hannah Ayers Moses, who deceased Jan. 20th, 1826. In early life, he united with the church in Portsmouth, under the pastoral care of Rev. Samuel Langdon, D. D. And after the period of three years, he became a member of the Third or Independent Congregational Church, of which Rev. Samuel Drown was pastor.

In the year 1777, he was elected a ruling elder, and in 1789 was inducted to the office of pastor by his church, without a Council, or other assistance.

Rev. Mr. Walton possessed a mind, richly gifted by the Father of Spirits—vigorous and discriminating—of moral principles, pure and elevated—ardently pious, devout, zealous—and in his life blameless and exemplary. Adams, in his Annals, says, "He was greatly beloved by his people, and highly respected by the ministers and christians of other denominations in the town."

With fidelity and success, he discharged the sacred duties of his office, till a short time before his death, which occurred at the advanced age of fourscore years. His remains rest in the Cotton Burying Ground. On the monument at his grave, is the following inscription:

In memory of Joseph Walton
Pastor of the 3d Congregational Church,
Portsmouth,
who died Jan. 10th, 1822,
aged 80.

2d. Rev. Benjamin Randall—a native of New Castle—born 1749—son of Capt. Benjamin Randall. In youth he acquired a decent mercantile education, and was employed in the occupation of a sail maker.

From childhood, his mind was peculiarly susceptible of religious impressions; but became more deeply interested in the subject of religion, under the itinerant and ministerial labors of Rev. George Whitefield. In the year 1772, he united with the church under the pastoral charge of Rev. Stephen Chase.—In 1775, having embraced the principles of the "General Baptists," he was baptized by immersion at Madbury, N. H.

Having been accustomed to exhort, and occasionally to preach, he was ordained as an Evangelist, at New Durham, N. H., April 5th, 1780; and there organized a church of the Free Will Baptists—the first ever established of a denomination of Christians, numerous, wide spread and efficient—now comprising more than a thousand churches and ministers, and rising fifty thousand members, in the United States.

He deceased in the year 1808. The Conference of the denomination of which he was the founder, erected, at New Durham, a monument to his memory, with the following inscription:

Sacred to the memory of Elder Benjamin Randall,
the Founder of the Free Will Baptist Society in America.
He laboured in the ministry
30 years.
He died Oct. 22d, 1808, aged 59 years.

NOTE.—In the last article, previously published, No. 3, two dates were incorrectly printed, viz.: Rev. Mr. Chase was not born in 1704, but in 1705; he was not installed in 1756, but in 1750.

A GEORGIA GOVENOR.—Hon. George R. Gilmer, late Governor of Georgia, speaks thus of temperance reforms in his own State, where he must be allowed to know something about the facts.

"The candidates for the legislature who are still strong in faith, that electioneering with half-pints will get more votes than doing what good men desire, are led into their mistakes by the triumphs of the dram candidates in for-me bo
narrow way, sometimes followed in the reeling tracks of their flocks; when the special treat giving to a visiting neighbor was to draw out a bottle; when merchants encouraged the people to buy by decanters of whiskey upon their counters; and when on muster days, election days, and court days, every one considered it a mark of regard to drink with his neighbor. If the whiskey candidates will look beyond their noses, they will see that the Bible now is in every house; that the old lifelong drunkards are all gone; that the preached word comes from the lips unpolluted by whiskey; that our teachers are the sober men of our country; that the neighbor who now offers whiskey blushes from the consciousness of the wrong done; that the decanter has been taken away from the counter, lest solvent men should be kept away from the store; and the candidate for the legislature who offers the half-pint to a voter, is eyed as a fit person to be sent somewhere else.

"The time is rapidly passing away, if not already gone, when the old may lead the young to dram-shops; when fights between neighbors in cups make delightful amusement for the crowd; when the legislature can sell the inheritance of the people for bribes, and members cannot read the laws which they help to pass.

Men have the power to discern good from evil—and yet with all the aids they can call to their assistance, they find it difficult to do right. Will the dram drinkers strive to continue the temptation which, when indulged in, fuddles the brain beyond discernment?

In ancient times, when kings wanted money, they sold licenses to commit crimes. Shall our republic, in these enlightened times, grant licenses for money to evil doers to sell what excites to the commission of the most flagrant offences?

MORALS OF CHARLESTOWN.—On Monday evening, in Charlestown, pursuant to a call signed by all the clergy of the city, a large meeting was convened at the Winthrop Meeting House, to listen to the address upon the subject of Temperance. Reading of the scriptures by the Rev. Mr. Hutchins; opening address by Rev. G. E. Ellis, who acted as moderator of the meeting. He enlarged upon the obligations binding upon all, to labor for the suppression of vice and intemperance in that city, which was a great and crying evil. All from the youngest to the oldest was bound to do something to stem the tide of evil amongst us. The meeting was also addressed by Revs. Shephard and Everett, ministers at large, Flint of the Episcopal Church, Hutchins of the High Street Baptist, Tappan of the Winthrop, Budington of the First Congregational, and Studly of the Methodist Episcopal. It was conceded on all hands that something must be done. Statistics were given, showing a lamentable state of affairs, and the addresses of all the gentlemen were calculated to rouse the minds of slumberers upon this subject. No definite plan was suggested as a remedy for the evil in question, but strong desires were expressed by several of the speakers, that the laity would mature plans that might be effectual, to a certain extent at least, in eradicating the vice under discussion.

DONATION.—It is stated that Horace White, Esq., of Syracuse, has given $15,000 to the Hobart Free College (Episcopal) at Geneva.

A PUFF.—The Rockland Gazette says:—"We have received a book entitled 'Arabella, a Tale of Tenderness.' The author is a fool."

Morning Chronicle.

MONDAY, NOV. 28, 1853.

To New Subscribers.—To each person not now on our list, who shall subscribe for the Daily or Weekly Chronicle for the year 1854, and pay for the same in advance, we will supply the paper to Jan. 1, gratis. Terms for the Daily $3—Weekly $1.

Vesture and Liturgy.—The Rochester American mentions that the Rev. Mr. McIlvaine, of the First Church in that city, appeared on Sunday in clerical robes. It adds: "This innovation in the custom of the Presbyterian churches in this section, has been introduced by the new church—"St. Peter's"—which, with the gown for the clergy, has adopted a portion of the ritual of the Church of England in its regular service. The mode is more like that of the Free Church of Scotland. The eastern churches have gradually abandoned the old style, and assimilated their service to that familiar to people in the West, which is perhaps essentially Congregational, rather than Presbyterian—Presbyterian Americanized. Their clergy retain the gown, however, and the people do not rise in prayer, as at St. Peter's, but sit during the entire service—only a few of the older men, who do not like to change from their long accustomed and revered practice, rising during that part of the devotion."

In respect to all matters—forms and dresses as well as others, let every man be fully persuaded in his own mind. Liturgical services have their advantages, which no sensible man will deny; and to many persons, from habit, association or taste, they have a peculiar charm. But against one usage, that of "sitting during an entire [religious or devotional] service," let us earnestly protest, as the laziest, most undevotional, uncomfortable and ungraceful usage that has been devised. Not that a posture is a prayer. A feeble woman or an old man, in a congregation, may sit in prayer, and no one should say or think evil of it. But for comfort, apparent devotion, and good taste, commend us to the Episcopal or Catholic usage, a succession of standing, sitting and kneeling, which prevents weariness, and makes an agreeable variety of posture for the young and healthy, the comely and graceful. But if any one must have the puritan stiffness so that he will not kneel; let him also have a little puritan sturdiness, so that he is able to stand.

Maine.—The Gardiner, Me. Fountain, a temperance paper, expresses its apprehensions that a more rigorous effort than ever, is to be made to break down the Maine Law.—It says, amidst the various influences that will be in the next Legislature, who can feel sure that rum will not triumph! And if it triumph and the law is repealed, either by that Legislature or the next, who can tell of the miseries and woes which will ensue before another as effectual can be obtained? I am not one who is apt to despair. I always look hopefully upon the future. Yet I cannot disguise the fact that there is cause of alarm.—At any rate, the law will live only by the untiring vigilance and activity of its friends.—At no time during the last twenty-five years, has there been so much need of continued and persevering action as now. It is determined upon by our enemies that it shall be the issue in all the elections of the next year. Let no friend of Temperance lay the flattering unction to his soul that such will not be the case. In all the localities where the anti law party is strong, at our municipal elections in the spring, the attempt is to be openly made to elect town and city officers opposed to the law. In places where the party is not so strong, the same result is to be obtained, if possible, by management. Then agents are to be appointed to sell for medicinal purposes, who, under the cloak of their official capacity, will furnish to all who want it. Illegal sellers will start up every where and do their work of death with impunity. Then comes the canvassing for the fall elections, and packed conventions of delegates elected by nobody knows whom, will give as candidates openly or stealthily, just as the case may be, opposed to the law. And when the campaign is opened, the state of things which these men have themselves produced, will be urged as a reason why men should be elected to the Legislature who will repeal the law. The ——, ——, ——, with perhaps a dozen other poisonous sheets which will have started into life merely for the occasion, will flood the State with every imaginable fallacy and falsehood, and who can tell where will be the noblest act ever passed by a legislative body?

A public sentiment for such a result is being now formed as fast as the most unscrupulous falsehoods can form it.

I recently attended an evening's discussion of the merits of the law by some young men attending an Academy in this county. After they had spent the evening in debating the pro's and con's, and some of the most glaring falsehoods of these newspapers had been put forth with all the assurance of acknowledged truths, the vote was taken, and eleven out of twenty voted against the law. I was surprised at the result; but it taught me the potency of the poisonous trash which weekly visits the homes of thousands, in forming public opinion.

This is not strange. An immense trading interest, whose centre is Boston, extends all over New England, and must fight against such laws, or see itself dishonored and diminished. This must be constantly borne in mind by all who wish to promote temperance in any way, especially by law.

Kluster of Ks from the Kitchen Kabinet.—We clip the following from the Augusta Age:

[Kommunikated.]

Koalition Konstitution Killed!—Kollateral Knuse—Kaleb Kushing's kruelly kastigating, konfoundedly kalamitous, konsummately "knock"ing, Kabinet kommunikation. O. K.

The Clawson Heirship.—Some time since, it was rumored that the wife of the Rev. Samuel Clawson, of Va., had fallen heir to an immense fortune in England. The Weston (Va.) Herald says the facts of the case are as follows:

"There was originally the sum of thirty-six millions of dollars, the estate of the Earl of Lancaster, in England, and upon the death of the Earl and his brother, a dispute arose between the house of York and the house of Lancaster, (instituted by the former, because of an intermarriage between the two houses,) the house of York suing for the heirship.

The suit was protracted, from the lower to the higher courts, from fifty to a hundred years, and was finally decided at the exchequer, (the Queen's bench,) in favor of the house of Lancaster. After this decision, advertisements were scattered abroad over the world for the heirs of the Lancaster estate, and the mother of Mrs. Clawson, wife of the Rev. Samuel Clawson, is one of the heirs. Attorneys are employed by the heirs to secure their interests, and it is supposed that the whole affair will be settled up during this winter, when the heirs will receive their portions.—The above sum of thirty-six millions has been at interest for more than sixty years, which interest will pay the costs of law and leave the original clear fat!"

"Boston is still in disgrace for being the only large town in Massachusetts which does not have a high school for girls." That sentence formed a part of the Thanksgiving sermon of Rev. Theodore Parker. The fact is without dispute, and the sooner the "disgrace" is removed the better.—Boston Courier.

When the Courier and Mr. Parker agree in any statement, it had better be set down as a fact. And when they agree in opinion, we may be sure "there's a good time coming" speedily.

Poultry.—The supply of poultry in the Newburyport market on Wednesday, was altogether insufficient for the demand, and in the afternoon turkeys sold from 22 to 27 cents a pound, having been steadily advancing each hour during the day. In Boston they sold at from 15 to 17 cents a pound, for good articles, and on Thanksgiving morning, the speculators having got frightened, there were sales outside the market at six and eight cents a pound.—Courier.

Poultry was sold in Portsmouth on Wednesday from 10 to 15 cents; a large proportion of it 12 to 13. It was abundant, and generally good.

PUTNAM'S MONTHLY.

From Fetridge & Co., Boston, via Mr. Shores of this city, we have received Putnam's Monthly for November 1853, completing the first year, and the second volume of the work. The present number contains 16 Articles, besides numerous and valuable brief notices.

The publishers acknowledge their success, in a pecuniary as well as literary point of view—and promise, while they mean to add some new attractions, of illustrations, not to depart from their original plans in the next volume. We have no doubt it will deserve and receive a generous support. Now is the time to subscribe.

The Vanderbilt Steamboat Case.—An action has been brought against the Vanderbilt line of steamers, by a passenger, to recover damages sustained by him in consequence of detention on the Isthmus of Nicaragua, and loss of health, while on his journey to San Francisco. The plaintiff alleged that he had been misled by an advertisement which set forth the great saving of distance of this route over any other, and promised a speedy and comfortable transit between the two oceans. Influenced by this representation, the plaintiff purchased a ticket and embarked on the Prometheus on the 8th of March, 1852. Besides several minor detentions, he was obliged, on arriving at San Juan del Sud, to wait fifty-four days for a steamer to convey him to San Francisco. Failing in this object he returned and instituted a suit against the defendant.

The chief point alleged by the defence was, that the North America, for which steamer the plaintiff held tickets, was wrecked and lost—an occurrence wholly beyond the control of the company. The court charged the jury that the plaintiff, though not entitled to recover exemplary damages, was entitled to recover back the price of his ticket, the expenses of his journey, and such sum for the loss of his health as the jury might deem reasonable. The jury, thus instructed, brought in a verdict for the plaintiff of $1,250.

Appearance in the Wall.—Sunday forenoon the congregation in attendance at one of the churches in South Boston, were surprised in the midst of divine service to see a human leg suddenly protrude through the ceiling over the singing seats, carrying with it about eight feet of plastering, and lathes.—A momentary alarm was caused, but no damage of consequence was done. It appears that an adventurous boy had obtained entrance to the belfry, by clambering through an unoccupied and unplastered closet, and then ascending upon the lathes on the wall some fifteen or eighteen feet. On landing on the beams running from the eaves, the lad made a false step, and the consequence was a foot and leg, encased in pepper and salt pants, blue stockings and thick shoes made its appearance in the wall.

☞ The monster clipper ship Great Republic, has sailed from Boston, to load at New York for Liverpool. She is owned by her builder, Donald McKay, and commanded by his brother.

Escape of a Railroad Robber.—Justus Squires, the celebrated railroad robber, who has escaped from several prisons, and several times attempted to commit suicide, escaped from the state prison in Concord, on Friday morning, scaling the walls by means of a plank.

LOCAL.

THE GERMANIANS.

By a notice in another column this morning, it will be seen that the Boston Germania Musical Society propose to give a series of entertainments in Portsmouth, one a week for three weeks. The subscription for the course is now open at Dr. Preston's—tickets rating from 25 to 50 cents for each Concert. Everybody who has the least taste for and appreciation of fine music, should hear this band. No vocal assistance is announced, but the managers in the matter will spare no practicable exertions to give our citizens all they will pay for. It is due the merit of the performers, the enterprise of Messrs Preston and Edmonds, and the name of our city abroad—that so large and good an orchestra, performing at so low a rate, should be greeted with a full house. And we have no doubt that they will "have a hearing"—for all who have heard them will miss no opportunity to do so again, and will induce their friends to attend an entertainment "excellent of its kind." Let every one who intends to go, put his name on the list immediately.

MUSIC IN PORTSMOUTH.

We have never known a time when there were so few singers or so little singing in our city, as the present season;—we mean, of course, singers and singing of which public cognizance can be taken. There is not a full church choir in the city; and there are but very few singers, who pretend to be able to lead one. Soprano singers, able to sing new music readily, and sustain a part with any certainty, are very few in number. Formerly the singer's seats in most of our churches were filled, and in each were several singers capable of doing whole duty. We used always to have a singing school during cold weather, until within a year or two—sometimes several, conducted in many instances, under the direction of the parishes. In other cases, they were got up by private effort, under the sole direction, and at the risk, of the teacher. Now we believe there is none—and an attempt recently made to get up a course of lessons, by a competent teacher, failed for lack of female voices.

Now we are going to blame nobody for this sad state of things—but we much regret it.—We would suggest that somebody, competent and popular, open an eligible hall, and give the young a chance to improve their voices and enjoy themselves. We are glad to see an increasing attention manifested in the Societies for the improvement of the young among us—we say "the young," in a general way, for whatever tends to improve the young men, must also elevate the young women. The Mercantile is flourishing, and also the Christian Association—one Lyceum is filled to overflowing, and another pretty well attended—evening parties, sewing circles, &c., have good attendance,—but never a bit of a singing school is there about. We say it is too bad—and hope somebody will remedy the evil.

It cannot be for want of musical talent to be discovered in the pupils; nor is there a lack of teachers. But there is something wrong in the fashion of the day, which has come in from abroad, or which has grown up on the soil, making it less fashionable or less genteel to be a respectable chorus singer, or a useful member of a church choir.

Singing, as a mere accomplishment, accompanied frequently with the ability to execute some music on a piano, is by no means uncommon; and there are not a few individuals of various ages among us, who are capable of singing well. But from some cause or other they are not available for any public use or purpose whatever; and the change of system from a large choir to a small one; from that to a quartette, and from that to only two or three parts sustained by a single voice each, seems to be a sort of progress toward nothing, in the line of church music; and is also the means of destroying one source of innocent pleasure, and of breaking up one happy place of resort, viz.: a regular and improving rehearsal.

FINANCIAL FACTS.

We are informed that in the Alms House in this city there are 92 inmates. This is not above the usual number at this time of the year. Our population is about 10,000.

We have also been informed, on good authority, that in the alms-house in the city of Portland there are, at present, only 60 inmates. Their population is 24,000; and their former number of inmates, a few years ago, with a much smaller population, was 130.

We bring out these facts for the purpose of comparison: and wish every tax paying citizen to look about him, and ask why it is that we, in this city, have to maintain nine paupers to every thousand people, while in Portland they have only about two and a half to the thousand.

We know of only one great cause for this disparity, viz. the execution of the law of Maine for the suppression of drinking houses and tippling shops.—If any of our readers know of other causes, we should like to hear from them. We were startled by the comparison, and hold it open to correction; but if it be correct, it surely deserves more thought than has yet been bestowed upon it.

Fatal Accident.—John Martin, a hand on the Portsmouth & Concord Railroad, was killed near Epping Depot on Saturday evening. He was connected with a hand car, which was run into by a train, and in trying to save the hand car, he lost his life. He was an Irishman, aged 30, and lived at Epping, where he leaves a widow and one child. He was a useful and worthy man in his station.

Portsmouth and Concord Railroad.—We understand that the disputed case, between Hon. Richard Jenness and the above corporation, has been settled, to the mutual satisfaction of the parties.

☞ A meeting of the City Missionary Society will be held at the Fleet street Vestry, this evening at half-past 7 o'clock. Friends of the cause are respectfully invited to attend.

New Castle.—The fourth number of the series of interesting articles we are publishing, on the history of Great Island, will be found on the outside of this paper.

Installation at Stratham.—On Wednesday, Nov. 30th, Rev. Jon M. Steele will be installed as pastor over the Congregational Church in Stratham.

FLAGG'S WRAPPING PAPER.—A lot this day received and for sale by n28 JOHN S. HARVEY.

NEW YORK, Nov. 25.—Charles Edward Wedemayre, the Commissioner of the German Department of the Crystal Palace, was arrested yesterday for stealing a bottle of perfumery from the French Department. Many stolen articles were found at his lodgings.

Two men were arrested at Toledo, Ohio, last week, on a charge of attempting to rob a returned Californian. Upon searching them, $1900 of the $37,000 stolen from the counter of the Bank of the State of New York last month, was found upon them. They have been sent here for trial.

The anniversary of the evacuation of the city by the British, has been celebrated here to-day by the veterans of the last war, and other military companies. Flags have been displayed from the shipping, and public buildings, and the City Hall is brilliantly illuminated this evening.

TWO WEEKS LATER FROM CALIFORNIA. —Arrival of the United States.—$1,000,000 on the way.—New Orleans, Nov. 25.—The steamer United States has just arrived at the Balise from Aspinwall, with California dates to Nov. 1st.; she reports the steamer Illinois sailed for New York, on the 19th, with one million in gold dust, and 150 passengers.

WASHINGTON NEWS.

Now is the season for Washington despatches and letters, crude, contradictory and absurd. A despatch of the 24th says:

An investigation at the Treasury Department has developed the extraordinary fact that the uncollected balances due to the government on the Treasury books on the 4th of March last, were over one hundred millions of dollars, of which twenty millions have been secured, and about eighty millions still remain unsettled.

One of these ballances, we suppose, is on the books of a neighboring custom house, where it has lain 40 years. Doubtless also it has long since been paid; and is incorrectly reported.

Another says, "The news by the Canada produced a marked sensation among the members of the government, and the following from the Union is supposed to embody the views of the President."

The views are not worth copying: they are nothing more nor less than guesses about the chances of war between Turkey and Russia. If they are the President's guesses—why should his opinions on such matters be better than Mrs. Partington's or Mrs. Grundy's!

The President's Message is understood to have received its final touches yesterday, when it was read before a full meeting of the Cabinet.

The conduct of Mr. Crampton, British Minister, at Jullien's concert on Thursday evening is severely commented upon, on account of what is considered his marked contempt in declining to rise with the rest of the audience during the execution of Hail Columbia. The front box in the dress circle at the National Theatre has been set apart for the President and Cabinet, who are expected to attend the next Concert.

Trash! Trash!

POLITICAL.—The Washington Union had an article headed "The Campaign of 1856," in which it charges the Hards of New York with a deliberate design to break down the administration for the purpose of elevating upon its ruins a favorite aspirant, meaning Mr. Dickenson.

For the Morning Chronicle.

MORE MATHEMATICS.

Messrs. Editors:—The analysis of the question which appeared in your paper of the 19th inst., being required, I offer the following:—

It is stated in the question that the product of the heights of the two towers is equal to the square of the distance between them. It is therefore evident that the product is a square; it is also evident that the numbers which produced this square are squares themselves, because no two different numbers can produce a square, unless the numbers are squares also; therefore the height of each tower is represented by a number that is a square, which we find by the following method: divide 175 into two such numbers as will give a difference of one between them, thus, $88 + 87 = 175$, and $88 - 87 = 1$.

$88 \times 88 = 7744$	7744	7569
175 1 175	7344 =	7344

We divide 175 as above, because when the difference between any two numbers is one, the difference between their squares is in all cases the sum of the numbers. But we find that the two first squares, viz: 7755 and 7569 gives two large a product when their sum is multiplied by the distance between the towers, which distance is the square root of the product of their heights. We therefore proceed to find the only other two squares which are less, and contain 175 difference between them, which we find as follows:—Deduct from 7744 and 7569, two such squares as will have the remainders equal, and the two squares thus deducted is the height of each tower, thus:

$$\left.\begin{array}{l} 7744 - 400 = 7344 \\ 7569 - 225 = 7344 \end{array}\right\} \text{Remainders}$$

625 sum of their heights

This number multiplied by the square root of the product of their heights, 300, gives 187500, the given product.

$400 \times 225 = 90000$, product of their heights,
$300 \times 300 = 90000$, square of distance apart,
sqr. root of $90000 = 300$, sqr. root of product.

PROOF.

$400 - 225 = 175$
1st tower 400 feet high,
2d " 225 " "

A. square = 7744 B. square = 7569
C. square = 400 D. square = 225

remainder = 7344 = 7344 rem.
A. 7744 C. 400
B. 7569 D. 225

remainder = 175 = 175 rem.

In all numbers that are squares, if we deduct C from A, and D from B, and the remainders are equal, then if we deduct B from A and D from C the remainders will also be equal.

Judd's Baking Powder.

THIS is a Nutritious and Healthy Baking Powder, to be used instead of yeast, and is made of prepared Corn Starch and Arrow Root.

In the ordinary method of raising bread with yeast, a large amount of the best portion of the flour is lost by the decaying process of fermentation. 100 lbs. of dried flour, yeasted and baked, and then dried from moisture, leaves but 86½ lbs. —13½ lbs, is lost by fermentation; but 100 lbs. of dried flour and 6 lbs. of this powder, baked and dried as above, leaves 105½ lbs. of real unfermented nourishment. There is, then, gained from a barrel of flour, used with Judd's Baking Powder, about 30 lbs. of bread.

This powder contains no injurious substances, but is a simple, nourishing compound, put up on dietetic principles by Mr. Judd, the inventor, a thorough practical Chemist. It is daily used and recommended by some of the ablest physicians at New Haven, who are acquainted with the manufacturer and his process of preparing it.

It is manufactured by Wm. L. Rogers & Co., New Haven, and is put up in boxes of three sizes, at 12, 25 and 37 cts. each, with directions attached.

Cooking Stoves.

THE improved EMPIRE STATE—all sizes—for sale as cheap as can be be bought this side of New York, at the cheap Stove Store, corner of State and Water street, by n3 ANDERSON & EMERY.

THE CELEBRATED
LOWELL COAL & GAS BURNER

For Anthracite Coal.

MANY futile attempts have been made to construct COAL STOVES which should consume the gases, and at the same time be simple and easily managed.

We think that Mr. D. G. LITTLEFIELD, the Patentee of this Stove, has been eminently successful in his efforts to produce this result—indeed it is so unlike all other stoves, and so superior to them, that the whole truth would hardly be believed, except by those who have used them.

One ton of coal burned in this Stove will generate as much heat as TWO TONS consumed in any other Stove extant.

For a particular description we would refer the public to the following communication from Mr. Littlefield:

All skilful coal burners, and stove manufacturers, are conscious that a great error has pervaded the forms of all the apparatus for burning anthracite coal. No one, however, has been able to determine where the difficulty lay. Nearly all attempted improvements for consuming the gases, have been based upon the presumption that the common method of burning in a tight pot of some kind, either of cast iron or sheet iron lined with stone or brick, was correct, and their improvements have been made over and above this point in the apparatus. It is true the form of the pot has been changed from time to time, from the long cylinder with grate at the bottom, to the short and broad cylinder, and then to the bottle form, then square, then oval, and then contracted at the top, and then at the bottom, and very shallow, each having its advantages and disadvantages, but all operating substantially in the same manner in one respect, namely, that the gases are expelled from the coal and immediately rise unburned to the upper part of the apparatus, where they cannot burn perfectly, being withdrawn from the action and greatest heat of the fire, and must either pass through the flues, or into the apartment, with a flat grate at the bottom. It is well known that when a hard coal fire is started, it is with charcoal or some other very combustible material. The first impression made on the anthracite coal is to heat it; this expels the gases or most inflammable portion of the coal, which being volatile, and the pot open at the top, immediately rises above the coal, and is consequently out of reach of the strongest action of the fire. It is a well-known principle that the gaseous substance, expelled from a mild body by the action of heat, rises above and mostly escapes any further action of the same heat which expelled it. The experience of every one that has given attention to coal burning is, that the best results are obtained with the common pot, by a very slow process of burning, covered with ashes, or wet and fine coal. The reason is obvious. By this method more of the volatile substances are retained and consumed within the pot, and in contact with the coal, thereby producing a more perfect combustion of the fixed matter, as well as being burnt themselves, preventing the accumulation of old coal on the grate, and making no clinkers. Sometimes, with great care, a stove can be made to run from week to week, a result very desirable, but only obtained by the utmost care and skill. We need no better evidence that there is a radical defect in past construction of fire pots, than that with them the nicest calculation, prudence and judgment were necessary, to obtain comparatively poor results.—In fact, we may safely say that the form of pot open at the top, and with a grate at the bottom, for burning anthracite coal, is all wrong. The fire by its own action becomes wrong side up. The volatile matter, which is combustible, is expelled, and passes off imperfectly burned, instead of being consumed before it escapes, and helping as nature designed it, to consume the fixed matter in the bottom. A method of burning coal that accomplishes this object, that is, the combustion of the volatile matter in contact with the coal, is the only one that has any claim to be called a scientific.

A stove constructed upon the principle above referred to, has been invented; and, after repeated experiments, has been so far perfected as to justify its introduction into the market. Its construction is exceedingly simple, requiring but little skill in the operator, when a fire is once started, (which is easily done); all that is necessary is a constant supply of coal, and a little attention from time to time, to keep a fire from month to month.

The subscriber has secured the right to manufacture and sell this

PATENTS.
American and Foreign Office.
AGENCY FOR BUSINESS
With the U. S. Patent Office, Washington,
No. 22 State-Street, Boston.

IMPORTANT INFORMATION TO INVENTORS. The Subscriber (late a patent of the U. S. Patent Office, under the Act of 1837) determined to present advantages, in applying for Patents, superior to those offered to inventors by others, has made arrangements whereby on applications prepared and conducted by him, INVENTORS WILL (instead of twenty, as paid back by others,) will be remitted by him in case of failure to obtain a patent, and the withdrawal through him within thirty days after the rejection. Caveats, Specifications, Assignments and all necessary papers and drawings, for procuring patents in this and foreign countries prepared, and advice rendered on legal and scientific matters respecting inventions, and infringement of patents.

Inventors can not only here obtain their specifications on the most reasonable terms, but can here avail themselves of the experience of 20 years' practice, an extensive library of legal and mechanical works, and correct accounts of patents granted in this and other countries; besides being saved a journey to Washington, the usual great delay there, as well as all personal trouble in obtaining their patents. Copies of claims of any patent furnished by remitting one dollar.—Assignments recorded at Washington.

R. H. EDDY,
Solicitor of Patents.

"During the time I occupied the office of Commissioner of Patents, R. H. Eddy, Esq., of Boston, did business at the Patent Office, as Solicitor of Patents. There were few, if any persons acting in that capacity, who had so much business before the Patent Office; and there were none who conducted it with more skill, fidelity, and success. I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the best informed and most skilful Patent Solicitors in the United States, and have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a person more competent and trustworthy, and more capable of putting their application in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office.

EDMUND BURKE,
Late Commissioner of Patents."

"PATENT OFFICE, ——

"R. H. EDDY, Esq., Boston, Mass.

"SIR:—Your facilities for the prosecution of any business connected with this Office, are equal to those of any other agent I am very respectfully,
Yours, &c. THOMAS EWBANK,
Commissioner of Patents."

PROF. ALEX. C. BARRY'S
Tricopherous, or Medicated Compound.

FOR beautifying, curling, preserving, restoring and strengthening the Hair, relieving diseases of the Skin, curing Rheumatic Pains and healing external wounds. Bounded by no geographical lines, the reputation of Barry's Tricopherous pervades the Union. The sales of the article of late years have increased in a ratio that almost exceeds belief. Prof. Barry, after a careful examination of his sales book, finds that the number of bottles delivered to order, in quantities of from half a gross upward, during the year 1852, was within a trifle of 950,000.

It is unnecessary to present at length the evidences of the wonderful properties of the Tricopherous when the public have furnished such an endorsement as this. The cheapness of the article, and the explanations given of its chemical action upon the hair, the scalp, and in all cases of superficial irritation, first recommended it to the attention of the people. This was all that the inventor desired. Every bottle advertised itself.—The effects of the fluid exceeded expectation. It acted like a charm. The ladies would not be without it. Country dealers in every section of the United States found they must have it; and thus was built up a wholesale trade of an extent hitherto unheard of as regards articles of this kind.—The highest point has not yet been reached, and it is believed that the sales this year will be a million and a half of bottles.

Liberal discount to purchasers by the quantity, and by all the principal Merchants and Druggists throughout the United States, and Canada, Mexico, West Indies, Great Britain, France, &c., and by Weeks & Potter, Brewers, Stevens & Cushing, and Wm. Brown, Boston. d&w6m je22

DR. CONINE'S
SYRUP OF GINSENG & MALVA.
The Great Chinese Remedy.

THIS Medicine depends more upon its own virtues and actual merit than any other ever before offered to the public.

The recipe is from Dr. CONINE, a gentleman who travelled much in China, and in the islands of that vicinity where this compound is the potent and effectual remedy for the numerous diseases arising from a disordered or debilitated stomach, and

Affections of the Lungs.

But what will particularly attract attention is its astonishing

DISSOLVENT POWER,

By which it at once removes ALL PHLEGM or extraneous matter from the Throat, Stomach or Lungs. It is therefore

Anti-Expectorant,

And from attentions of trial here, it is now offered as NATURE'S KINDEST REMEDY for the removal of Consumption, Whooping Cough, and all Coughs, by precipitating the Phlegm, instead of creating irritation by expectoration.

It is AROMATIC, and increases the general warmth, possessing the exhilarating qualities of the Tea Plant, which is one great cause of its universal popularity in all India beyond the Ganges, where as an

APPETISER

It probably has no equal in the Vegetable Kingdom AS A DYSPEPTIC REMEDY, IT IS UNEQUALLED.

Its natural, genial warmth keeps the digestive powers ever in proper tone, soothing all irritation of the nerves, &c.

It will prove a more pleasant, safe and effectual Foe to than any Sarsaparilla or other boasted tonic remedy, and even nutritious, as well as exceedingly palatable. It will continue to be prepared in the best manner—no expense being spared—and in quart bottles.

Besides the numberless testimonials which we are receiving daily, of the good effect of the above medicine, we are allowed to refer to several physicians, who are now using the Syrup of Ginseng and Malva with great success.

CAN AND DO ATTEST TO ITS USEFULNESS.

BRONCHITIS,

A Disease which is annually

SWEEPING THOUSANDS!

To a premature grave

IS CURED BY IT!

This expectorant immediately suppresses the Cough and Pain, subdues the Inflammation and Fever, removing the Difficulty in Breathing by producing a free and

EASY EXPECTORATION,

So that a Cure is soon Effected.

It is useless for the Proprietor to state any more than the article really is, for upon trying it will fully testify. In case it does not give satisfaction,

"A Splendid Remedy."

THE GREAT REMEDY is at last discovered. Consumption can be cured!! and Coughs and Colds, the parents of that fell disease that so often brings woe to the homes of our land, vanish, as if by magic, before this SOVEREIGN REMEDY. This is that which has so long been sought for, and is in full faith offered to the pub ic as a certain cure for Coughs, Colds, Whooping Cough, Croup, Asthma and Consumption, and will in any case where lungs sufficient are left to sustain life, check the ulceration and raise the patient to health. This is not an idle boast, nor is this remedy sent into the market without a thorough trial, but has proved beyond a doubt that what has been asserted CAN BE DONE!

THE ROCKY MOUNTAINS.

Some of our readers remember Lieut. Stevens, of the U. S. Engineers, who was here a few years ago, recruiting his corps; and who was also in this city pending the last presidential canvass, electioneering for Gen. Pierce. Lieut. Stevens is now the Governor of Washington Territory, and also commander of an exploring expedition through the various passes of the Rocky Mountains.

Every reader who is at all conversant with Western Geography, or who cares anything about a Pacific Railroad, will be interested in the following letter from Gov. Stevens to the editor of the Boston Post, giving an account of his explorations. The letter is dated Fort Benton, Upper Missouri, Sept. 16, 1853.

My advance parties from the Mississippi and the Pacific have met on the ridge of the Rocky Mountains. A good pass has been found, and there seems scarcely a doubt of the entire practicability of the great Northern Railroad. Our subsequent efforts the present season will be directed to a thorough examination of this pass in the mountains and of others in the intermediate range to the Pacific, viz: the Bitter Root and Cascade ranges. I have long been satisfied that between the head waters of the Missouri and Columbia rivers there must be good passes, lower and more practicable than the South Pass.—Our attention had especially been given to the passes from the forks of the Missouri—those from the forks of the Marias and the intermediate one in which my advance parties met. Before leaving Washington it was determined to direct the explorations upon this pass first, and Lieut. Saxon, a son of Massachusetts, in command of the advance party from the Pacific, had orders to establish a depot at St Mary's village, just west of the mountains, and to cross the mountaids and meet me at Fort Benton. I arrived here on the first day of this month, and not hearing from him I sent forward a small party under Lieut. Grover, to reconnoitre the pass and ascertain whether he had reached the St. Mary's village. They met just this side of the ridge. The pass in excellence exceeds every expectation. The ascent in both directions is gentle, and it would seem that the whole range had been sunk at this point for the express purpose of allowing the passage of a railroad. According to the barometer it is more than two thousand five hundred feet below the South Pass; but I will not venture to pronounce it more than one thousand feet lower until the result is tested by subsequent examinations. To-day the main party under Lt. Donelson, a son of Major Donelson, the former editor of the Washington Union, moved forward to carefully examine this pass with an experienced scientific party.

Lieut. Mullen is now exploring a pass from the forks of the Missouri. But the pass north, leading from the forks of the Marias River to the Columbia, will, it seems to me, be found to be the best of the three. I had assigned to Mr. Leander, one of the civil engineers, the duty of examinig the pass; but learning from Lieut. Saxton that the Cadot's pass was excellent, and that much work remained to be done west of the moutains, I determined to push my whole force through it in order to insure reaching the Pacific before the close of the season. Lt. Mullen had been despatched before Lieut. Saxton's arrival, and the express giving information of his coming overtook me sixty-five miles on my way from Fort Benton to the Blackfoot camp, where I was going with Mr. Leander to procure guides and get detailed information as to the best route through the Marias pass. The great difficulty in exploring the passes of the Rocky Mountains and the country west is in the great quantity of timber, obstructing a view of the country and the trails pursued by the Indians. This is particularly the case with the Marias pass, and more time would have been required in the examination than I had at my disposal. It should be carefully examined another year. The mountains west of the Rocky Mountains, viz., the Bitter Root and Cascade ranges, are also densely wooded, and snows on the dividing ridge occur the last of October. The Indians cross these with their families till early in November, but a proper survey is very difficult at a later period. Hence the necessity of despatch in crossing the mountains and surveying the region west.

Lieut. Saxton depicts in glowing colors the magnificent scenery, fertile valleys, beautiful rivers, and the extraordinary forest growth of Washington Territory. Out of the very luxuriance of nature arises the principal obstruction to the exploration of the country. Vast forests cover the hill tops and fill the valleys, making it difficult to make one's way. The beautiful St. Mary's Valley, at the western base of the Rocky Mountains, is fertile beyond description, has a mild climate, and cattle keep fat in winter as well as in summer on its nutritious grasses. This valley connects all the passes, and is only five or six days journey from the falls, of the Missouri River. I am satisfied that the Missouri is navigable for steamers to the falls, but I am now having it surveyed to determine this question. Lieut. Donelson has already made the survey from its mouth to above Fort Union, and Lieut. Grover will by the close of October have completed it to the falls. The data will then be collected for an official report.

Much has been said about the obstructions to railroads by snows, and this will be the great objection to this route. We shall the ensuing winter collect many facts bearing upon this question by a meteorological post which I have established at Fort Benton under Mr. Doty, and one which I propose to establish at St. Mary's under Mr. Mullan.—But more is to be done. Lieut. Grover, a man of iron nerve and great resources, will start from this fort in January with a dog train, and will in the dead of winter pass over the whole route to the Pacific, crossing the Rocky Mountains, and the Bitter Root and Cascade ranges. It seems an impracticable undertaking; but I know Lieut. Grover, and do not doubt its successsful accomplishment.

In consequence of Lieut. Saxton bringing more men to work, I have decided to send back all but three of the dragoons attatched to the expedition. I advised several of the hired men, in my judgement not good mountain men enough for the duty before us, to return also. They entreated me to go on. Not one wishes to turn back. Every man wishes to identify himself with the work before us, and the utmost confidence prevails.

In the Cascade Range that gallant and able officer, Capt. McClellan, one of my noble brothers in Mexico, is now ascertaining the most practicable pass, and in one month I hope to exchange congratulations with him at the entire success of our undertaking.

Lieut. Saxton will go down the Missouri in charge of the returned men, and to carry information to the departments in Washington of the condition of the exploration, before the session of congress. As an evidence of my sense of his services, I published an order, of which I send you a copy.

Lieut. Donelson, in charge of the main party, brings to his duty great force of character, high intelligence, and an unsurpassed diligence and fidelity.

But our experience among the Indians is as extraordinary as it is unexpected. We have traversed the region of the terrible Blackfeet—have met them in the war parties and in their camps, and have received nothing but kindness and hospitality. They have brought us fresh meat, guided us on our way, brought into camp strayed animals, and have guareded us while we slept. Not one of our men has been touched, not the smallest thing has been taken. We were wending our way to the northern Blackfeet camps when I was called back by the express informing me of Lieut. Saxton's arrival,—a little party surrounded by our Blackfeet friends, and not even keeping any guard whatever at night. I treated them as true friends, took them at their word, and directed all my men at night to go to sleep. Lieut. Saxton had precisely the same experience with the Indians west of the mountains. At this very moment Mr. Stanley, the artist of the expedition, with four men is in their midst, under the 50th parallel, and I am only awaiting his return to push forward and join Lieut. Donelson. The government has yet done nothing for these Indians, and I have invited them to Fort Benton to give them a message from the Great Father, and to ascertain whether they will agree all time to come to treat all whites as they have treated me and mine.

These Indians range from the Sasteatchawan to the California trail, and in the winter have their lodges on the Milk and Missouri rivers. Milk river, the principal northern tributary of the Missouri, instead of running north into the British territory, as laid down on all the maps, runs nearly due west to within one hundred miles of the mountains, and then deflecting rapidly to the north has its sources in the Cypress Mountain and the adjacent spurs of the Rocky Mountains. At the base of the mountains, between the Milk river and the forks of the Missouri, the country is a plateau rising gently to the several passes, in every direction practicable for a railroad. There are several tributaries flowing through to the Missouri, and several very lofty bulles, three over three thousand feet above the plateau.

The Milk river line affords extraordinary facilities for building a railroad, and has a natural connection with every pass.

The country south of the Missouri to the Black Hills, and that between the Milk and Missouri rivers have been explored by Dr. Evans, the geologist of the expedition, who has not only made great additions to the topography of the country, but has made a very large geological collection. He is now in the passes of the mountains on his way to Oregon.

Before closing this letter I must notice by obligations to the gentlemen of both the fur companies in St. Louis, for their uniform kindness and aid to the expedition. To Mr. Campbell particularly I am indebted for his disinterested and untiring services in our behalf. To Mr. Sibley and Mr. Culbertson, partners in the American Fur Company, in charge of the posts on the Mississippi and Missouri am I especially indebted; the former, both in Washington city and at his residence on the St. Peters, devoted much time and attention to the survey, and rendered us very valuable assistance.

I met Mr. Culbertson in St. Louis in May, and found his great experience, derived from twenty years' residence among the Indian tribes of the upper Missouri, and his perfect knowledge of men and things in the country through which we had to pass, fitted him for a most valuable adviser. I appointed him special agent among the Blackfeet Indians, subject to the approval of the Indian commissioner. He has been untiring and indefatigable in his discharge of duty, and has rendered invaluable aid to the expedition. At a great loss of time and absence from his business, he has continued up to this time with the expedition, and to his great influence with the Indians, and prudent advice, I feel much is due for the success which has attended all our intercourse with the Indians.

His good lady, a member of the blood tribe of the Blackfeet nation, asked to accompany him on the expedition, fearing difficulties might occur between members of the survey and some of her people, which her presence might obviate. On the night before leaving Fort Union, she said to Mr. Culbertson, "I will go with you; I will do what I can to settle differences, and where you die, I will die." Her devoted kindness to us has obtained my friendly regard, and much of the unpleasantness of camp life has been removed by her presence.

Daylight now breaks through the struggles of three months.

On the 8th of June the supply train left Camp Pierce on Lake Amelia, and on the 8th of September the parties from the Mississippi and the Pacific shook hands across the continent. The Pass of the Rocky Mountains is found to be more than one thousand feet below the South Pass, and is not only practicable, but expressly made to our hands for the great northern railroad.

EUROPEAN PROSPECTS.

The following extracts from three different sources, will give the reader the means of understanding something of the feeling between the Turk, the Russian, and the Greek Church.

The London News has the following notice of the force of the Russians:—

The force of the Russians that had crossed the Pruth amounts, on paper, to fifty five thousand men, and in reality numbers 40,000, of whom many are ill. The total available force amounts to upwards of 30,000 men, whose headquarters are at Bucharest. Of this force, 9000 men have been defeated, with a loss of upwards of 700 killed and wounded at Oltenitza, and about 20,000 are with Prince Gortschakoff, somewhere about Krajova. We have yet to learn how Omar Pasha will deal, or rather by this time how he has dealt, with these. His army far outnumber them, and are full of health and enthusiasm.

A letter from Paris of the 10th inst. remarks upon the movements thus far—

That has taken place which few anticipated, and that which most people were confident could not occur has actually been realized; the perilous operation of crossing the mighty stream which appeared to be the sure barrier between these two armies, has been executed; and, if the latest accounts be correct, the first important affair on the field has been decidedly to the advantage of the Turks. As Omar Pasha advances, his plan of operations begins gradually to be understood. The left wing of his army, with its tete du post at Widdin, advancing by Krajova, was to occupy Lesser Wallachia; the centre to advance from Giurgevo; the right wing to make the same upward movement from Oltenitza, and the three corps were to sweep away all intervening obstacles, and march simultaneously on Bucharest. At that spot Prince Gortschakoff would have no alternative but to accept battle or abandon the province altogether and retire to Moldavia. Should he do so, it would argue that the effective force at his command is not so great as was supposed, and that the fact of its reduction, by disease and by desertion, is not wholly without foundation.

The sympathy for the Turks among the public, with few exceptions, has increased tenfold; and it may be taken as an indication of what the government feels on the subject that the venders of the evening papers at some, if not all the stands, repeatedly announced, last night, and with a loud voice, "Defeat of the Russians; victory of the Turks." This is contrary to the police regulations, as such cries have been forbidden for the last few years, the only one allowed being the name of the paper.

The Russians here persevere in stating that the day is approaching fast for the annihilation of the Turkish armies in Europe and Asia; and they speak with as much certainty as if it was already a fait accompli. Within a month from the present time, they say an overwhelming force from Bessarabia will sweep the Turks from the principalities like chaff before the wind, and the Ottoman empire itself will be at the mercy of the Czar.

The Patrie states that it was not the fort of Isatchka, but a small village near it of that name, and the houses of which were built of wood, that was burned by the fire of the Russian gunboats.

With regard to the feeling of the Greeks in Turkey, a letter from Constantinople of October 27, says—

The new Greek Patriarch at Constantinople, accompanied by a great number of members of the clergy, and of the most respectable of his co-religionists, proceeded on the evening of the 24th ult., to the residence of Reschid Pacha, and handed to him an address full of assurances of sympathy and devotedness to the Ottoman Porte, in the name of the whole Greek community.

Newburyport Almshouse.—We are informed that the number of inmates in the Newburyport Almshouse is 100. The population of the city is about 12,000. This gives the proportion of 8 1-3 paupers to the 1000 inhabitants,—not quite equal to Portsmouth with 9 1-5—but it is more than three times as bad as Portland, with her 2 1-2 paupers to the 1000. We know of no other great cause for the disparity, except the comparative strength of temperance in each case.

Death of Ex-Governor Crafts.—We learn that the Hon. Samuel C. Crafts died at Craftsbury, Vt., on Saturday, 19th instant, at the age of about eighty years. As representative in the House and Council, member of Congress, Governor of the State and United States Senator, and in minor offices, he had been for full half a century a faithful public servat.

New York Election.—The official returns from every county in New York have been received. The lowest candidate on the whig ticket leads the highest candidate on other tickets upwards of 61,000 votes. By the figures, the Hards lead on five candidates and the Softs on three; but the Softs have an average majority over the Hards of 312.

A Western paper says:—"When you see a girl so weak that she can't sweep her own seven-by-nine chamber, and then goes to a shindy and dances all night with the power of a locomotive, make up your mind that she is 'got up' on bad principles. The sooner you take your hat and departure the better.—Such a sort of calico has been the ruin of many a man."

There is a mustache mania at present in England. Mechanics and others who are employed in the open air, seem to be very generally discarding the razor.

Roman Catholic Church Property.—The question, as to whether the church property should be vested in the Bishops or Trustees of the churches, has long been a subject of controversy among the Catholics in different parts of the country, and M. Bedini, the Pope's Nuncio, now in this country, appears to have been charged with the duty of settling this trouble. His decision in the case of St. Louis Church at Buffalo, it will be remembered, was in favor of the Bishop, and the Trustees resist it on the ground that the temporalities belong to themselves. The Trustees at Belleville, N. J., however, in consequence of the decision, have voluntarily acceded to the principles as laid down by M. Bedini and have resign the temporalities hitherto vested in them, to ecclesiastical authority.—This is said to be the first case of voluntary submission to the decision.

The New York Herald contains a letter from John Thomas, Bishop of Buffalo, in which he threatens to excommunicate the Church of St. Louis, in Buffalo, if they will not comply with the requisition to pass over the Church into the Bishop's hands. It seems the law has been altered, and the Catholics of the St. Louis Church held under a former trustee law. That law the Protestant Episcopal and Dutch reformed Churches petitioned to have altered, and it was altered. But the St. Louis Church, being under the old, refuses to come under the new.

The following is the close of the Bishop's letter:

The Bishop simply asks this—that you act in the noble manner in which so many Protestant churches have acted, and decline using a privilege which is contrary to the holy discipline of your church. Certainly, after having appealed to Rome—after having invited the Nuncio of the Pope to decide between you and your bishop, and after his solemn declaration that, as Catholics, you cannot sanction the acts of your trustees, and that you are bound by the laws of God's church, to do as your bishop requires; certainly, after all this, you can now with honor say, like those respectable Protestant churches:—"We will forego the benefit of incorporation rather than submit to an alteration and subversion of the usual peculiar government of our Church."

Why should you so cling to a law which Protestants rejected; or rather be separated from the Church than from it? For, dearly beloved, though it will deeply grieve us, yet our duty will force us to pronounce sentence of excommunication upon those who resist. With anguish of heart we now warn you! Oh! may God grant to our tears and fervent prayers, your return to the obedience of the children of God! to the arms of your bishop and Father in Christ, who would cheerfully give his life for your salvation!

Beloved in Christ, make one generous effort, and your troubles will be over, and you will insure a lasting peace for yourselves, for your children, and for your children's children. Your bishop will then appoint seven upright men of your congregation, who will administer for God's worship the offering which you freely give to God. Once or twice a year they will give you an exact account of the receipts and expenditures.

May the God of charity and peace bless you in the acceptance and observance of this advice. †John, Bishop of Buffalo.

Buffalo, Feast of St. Elizabeth.

Rev. William S. Clarke, formerly a Universalist minister at Chatham, Cape Cod, but now a presbyterian or Orthodox minister, has written an acknowledgement that he was urged on by malice in aiding the prosecution of Rev. Mr. Rockwell at Chatham, several years ago, when he was fined for defaming a lady.

We know nothing more of Rev. Wm. S. Clarke, than what the above paragraph tells us: but remember Rev. Mr. Rockwell distinctly, as a jolly ex-chaplain in the navy, not very likely to defame any body, unless in jest. The acknowledgement of malice offers a remarkable case of conscience; and cannot but be gratifying to Mr. Rockwell.

The Parisian Palace of Industry.—This edifice will be completed in ample season for the great exposition of 1855. The external walls, constructed of a pale buff colored stone, are up to the second tier of windows. It will be lighted with 700 large windows, and a portion of the roof will be of glass. The building is only about two-thirds as large as the palace at Hyde Park, London. A distinct building is to be erected for the exhibition of the fine arts, to be connected with the other by a corridor.

Not Bad.—Henry Ward Beecher, having been reported as preaching four sermons in favor of "spirit manifestations," but "covertly, and as his congregation could bear," says in reply to the charge:—"We have heard of a man who said that he 'accidentally cleared up forty acres of land.' We think it would be a tougher accident than that for us to preach four sermons on spiritualism so covertly as not to know it ourselves." He then goes on to say, soberly, that while he has no idea of anything supernatural in the case, he considers it due to science and society, that the alleged facts, so well attested as many of them are, should be thoroughly and fairly investigated by competent men, and not left either to the credulous or contemptuous.

Taking Care of the Baby.—Last week a fire occurred at Homer, Courtland county, in a building occupied by eight or ten Irish families. During the excitement, one of those crazy busy bodies who always attend fires, and do more harm than good, caught up an infant and threw it out of the window of the second story. Luckily, a gentleman below saw it coming, and succeeded in catching in in his arms, thus barely saving it from certain death. We have seen mammoth mirrors and delicate china ware thrown from high windows during large fires, but the "saving of a baby" in that fashion is a stretch of "economy and humanity" unprecedented in our reading and observation.—Albany Register.

CITY MISSION.

The annual report of the City Missionary was presented to the Society and its friends, at the Stone Church on Sunday evening; on which occasion Rev. Dr. Burroughs delivered an address, advocating the diligent use and encouragement of this christian charitable institution.

The missionary's report abounds in statements of facts, and practical suggestions.

The amount of funds disbursed, not including those of the Howard Society, was $116,13, of which $94,28 was expended on families severely afflicted by sickness. Of this sum 57,04 was paid by the city.

When the truant law first went into operation, 65 children were found who were either habitual truants, or belonged to no school whatever. Their number has been greatly reduced by the operation of the law.

The reopening of the Old South Church is favorably noticed; it is mentioned that a Sabbath School, varying from 30 to 50 scholars, is there gathered, who previously went to no Sabbath School, and a congregation also, embracing a number of persons and families who were previously attached to no religious society. [That congregation, we add, is somewhat numerous, and appears to be gradually insreasing.]

The evening school is stated to be prosperous. Street begging is discouraged, and citizens are requested to send all unknown applicants for charity to the City Missionary's Rooms, where their claims will be sifted, and their wants attended to.

Among the evils, which cause want and misery, are mentioned two. First, the want of two distinct places, as a House of Correction, and an Alms House, instead of having the two blended together, as now.

Second, and chiefly, intemperance. Of 176 arrests, made by the Police of the City, from March 1, to Nov. 1, 148 of the persons were drunk when arrested; and more than 19-20ths of the arrests were directly caused by intemperance.

The Report recommends, as a remedy, a city law, in the passage of which it is believed a large majority of our people will agree, prohibiting entirely the sale of liquors on the Sabbath, and not suffering liquors to be sold and drank in shops at all.

The Germanians.—Since our notice of yesterday, we have learned that the proposed series of Concerts by this Band, will be in all respects similar to their late Concert here—except the change of programme. The same vocal attraction as before will be presented.—So drop in at Preston's and fill up the list, and let us have the first Concert as soon as possible. The arrangements as announced have been changed, so that the Concerts will be given once in two weeks.

Death of an Aged Couple.—Died, in Rumney, Nov. 9th, Mr. John Spokesfield, aged 97 years and 5 months; 7th, Betsey, his wife, aged 82. Both were buried in one grave. John Spokesfield was born in Portsmouth, and early enlisted in the service of his country, in the time that tried men's souls. He helped to build the forts in Portsmouth harbor, and afterwards entered on board the privateer 'Friend's Adventure,' Capt. Rice.—They captured at one time three prizes and brought them safe into port. He was taken prisoner by a British man of war, and carried to England; at the end of three months made his escape, and secreted himself on board a vessel bound for Philadelphia; the vessel was searched, but he eluded their vigilance and arrived safe in this country. After the war, he was an early pioneer to the wilds then of his native State, active and useful; and such was his vigor, that so late as his 97th year, he would engage in the active duties of a farmer's life.

A Conscientious Miser.—An Albany paper mentions the death of an old Dutchman named Shumm, who has for a number of years resided in one of the most wretched hovels in that city. After the death of the old man, it was learned that about twenty-five years ago he was a porter to a mercantile house in Hamburg, and was frequently entrusted with considerable sums of money for conveyance. In an evil hour he violated his trust and absconded to this country with a large sum. Having arrived in Albany, he purchased two houses, which before he could effect an insurance upon them, were destroyed by fire. Considering that a judgment of Heaven, he determined to devote the remainder of his life to a severe course of industry and parsimony, with the design of making restitution to those whom he had injured.—He adopted another name, and commenced business as a tobacconist, and in five years he had accumulated $14,000; which was equivalent to the principal an interest of the sum which he had embezzled. The sum he paid over to a branch establishment of the Hamburg firm, in New York. The interest however, was generously returned to him by the son of one of the partners, and this, with some further accumulations, amounted at the time of his death, to $3700, principally doubloons, which he always carried with him, in a private pocket. The property was bequeathed by him to several children and grand-children residing in New York and Albany.

Hon. Zeno Scudder slipped on the steps of Eldridge's hotel, at Barnstable, on Tuesday, and broke his thigh. This accident will prevent his taking his seat in congress.

SANDWICH ISLANDS.—The steamship United States, at New Orleans, whose arrival has been telegraphed, brings ten days later advices from the Sandwich Islands, received via California. Another change has been made in the Ministry, Prince Kamehameha having resigned the office of Prime Minister, and John Young being appointed his successor.

COUNTERFEIT MONEY.—Marshal Walker, of Bath, Me., last week obtained information that Mr. Jabez Upham, of Liberty, was acting as agent of a gang of counterfeiters, to dispose of their counterfeit money in Maine. Mr. Waldo, in company with the Sheriff of Waldo, went to Liberty, arrested Upham, and carried him to Belfast, where he was bound over for trial. The money is supposed to have been made in New York. Upham is postmaster at Liberty.

A VALUABLE DONATION TO A NEWSPAPER.—The Gazette des Hospitaux, one of the oldest medical journals in France, has just received a donation of 10,000f. a year, from a physician attached to one of the hospitals in Paris, on condition, 1st, that the donor's name shall be kept inviolably secret; 2d, that 3000f of the sum shall be employed in encouraging the authors of useful and practical papers published in the Gazette; and 3d, that the remaining 7000f. shall be employed in distributing copies of the Gazette to physicians or students who are too poor to pay the whole or any part of the subscription, the simple declaration to that effect of the applicants being all that is to be required. This is probably the first time in the history of the periodical press that a journal has been the object of such munificence.

A Connecticut minister having walked through a village church-yard, and observed the indiscriminate praises bestowed upon the dead, wrote upon the gate-post the following lines:—"Here lie the dead, and here the living lie!"

It is proposed to organize a Fire Insurance Company of the Methodist Episcopal Church, for the mutual insurance of the $10,000,000 worth of churches and parsonages belonging to that denomination.

A very judicious proposal; and one easy to be carried into effect.

The Lowell News says that the workmen in the Lowell machine shop have presented to their brother mechanic who had his legs cut off some six weeks ago, the handsome sum of $650.

The clergy of the Roman States, including monks and nuns, number sixty thousand.—Their united incomes amount to ten millions and a half of dollars. The population of the Roman States is about equal to that of the State of New York. So says Father Gavazzi in his new paper, The Crusader.

FATAL ACCIDENT.—On Wednesday evening last, about six o'clock, Jacob Tilton, of Kingston, was found dead on the road leading to Kingston. He had left Exeter with a loaded team, about an hour before, and being partly intoxicated, it is supposed that he fell and the wheel passed over him, as marks of its course were discernible upon his body, although no broken bones were discovered.—An inquest was held by Freese Dearborn, Esq., Coroner, and a verdict rendered in accordance with the above statement. The deceased was 46 years of age.—News Letter.

EXPLOSION AND LOSS OF LIFE.—An explosion took place in the distillery of Mr. N. S. Childs on Monday, by which two men who were employed in the establishment were killed. Thomas Crosby almost instantly; and John McGoor was so seriously scalded that he lingered until yesterday, when he died in the New York Hospital. N. Y. Courier.

EXPLOSION AND LOSS OF LIFE.—An explosion took place in the distillery of Mr. N. S. Childs, on Monday, by which two men who were employed in the establishment were killed. Thomas Crosby almost instantly, and James McGoor was so seriously scalded that he lingered until yesterday, when he died in the New York Hospital.—N. Y. Courier.

SENTENCE OF DEATH.—In Huntingdon county, Pa., on Friday, Judge Taylor pronounced sentence of death against Elizabeth Harker, convicted of poisoning her sister Mary Harris.

IMMIGRATION.—Since the 21st of October, 35,416 immigrants have arrived at New York from Europe. 6976 arrived there last week, in 32 different vessels, principally from Bremen, Havre, and British and Irish ports.

Rev. Alanson Rawson, of New Boston, who was injured on the Boston and Maine Railroad, at the time the son of Gen. Pierce was killed, has commenced an action against the road. His injury is so severe that he cannot preach, and he is partially blind.

HAZARDOUS VOYAGE ACROSS THE ARCTIC SEA.—We learn from Tromso, in the north of Norway, that a ship sent from that port to fish in the Arctic Sea around Spitzbergen, has just returned under very peculiar circumstances. While the greater part of the crew, together with the captain, were absent in the boat, fishing, the vessel was by the wind and ice driven out into the open sea, and the two men left on board, being unable to manage her so as to bring her alongside the shore again, were obliged to let her go before the wind, and they soon reached the coast of Norway. The rest of the crew, on their return, deeming it certain death to remain on the island exposed to the rigors of an Arctic climate without any means of subsistance, determined to endeavor to reach home in the little boat. Their heroic attempt was crowned with success; for about ten miles from Northcap, they were taken up by a vessel bound to Hammerfest, and thence they returned to Tromso by steamer. The hardships they have had to encounter on their long voyage across the Arctic sea, may be judged from the fact that their boat had no sails, that they had no food but the raw flesh of an ice bear, and no water to drink but the rain drops that fell from heaven, and which they were able to collect.

Judd's Baking Powder.

THIS is a Nutritious and Healthy Baking Powder, to be used instead of yeast, and is made of prepared Corn Starch and Arrow Root.

In the ordinary method of raising bread with yeast, a large amount of the best portion of the flour is lost by the decaying process of fermentation. 100 lbs. of dried flour, yeasted and baked, and then dried from moisture, leaves but 86¾ lbs.—13¼ lbs. is lost by fermentation; but 100 lbs. of dried flour and 6 lbs. of this powder, baked and dried as above, leaves 105¼ lbs. of real unfermented nourishment. There is, then, gained from a barrel of flour, used with Judd's Baking Powder, about 40 lbs. of bread.

This powder contains no injurious substances, but is a simple, nourishing compound, put up on dietetic principles by Mr. Judd, the inventor, a skilled practical Chemist. It is daily used and recommended by some of the ablest physicians at New Haven, who are acquainted with the manufacturer and his process of preparing it.

It is manufactured by Wm. L. Rogers & Co., New Haven, and is put up in boxes of three sizes, at 12, 25 and 37 cts. each, with directions attached.

Revelenta Arabica.

THIS very delicate Food for Invalids and Infants, is very much superior to Arrow-root, Groats, Prepared Barley, or any other preparation whatever. It is easily tolerated by the most irritable stomachs, and as a cure for the most inveterate Dyspepsia has no equal. It comes most highly recommended, and is daily prescribed by our most celebrated physicians—Drs. Warren and Jackson, J. V. C. Smith, Jeffries, Ware, Homans, Hoffendahl, Gregg, Thayer, West, &c. &c. of Boston, use it in their practice.

n2 ANDERSON & EMERY.

THE CELEBRATED
LOWELL COAL & GAS BURNER

For Anthracite Coal.

MANY futile attempts have been made to construct COAL STOVES which should consume the gases, and at the same time be simple and easily managed.

We think that Mr. D. G. LITTLEFIELD, the Patentee of this Stove, has been eminently successful in his efforts to produce this result—indeed it is so unlike all other stoves, and so superior to them, that the whole truth would hardly be believed, except by those who have used them.

One ton of coal burned in this Stove will generate as much heat as TWO TONS consumed in any other Stove extant.

For a particular description we would refer the public to the following communication from Mr. Littlefield:

All skilful coal burners, and stove manufacturers, are conscious that a great error has pervaded the form of all the apparatus for burning anthracite coal. No one, however, has been able to determine where the difficulty lay. Nearly all attempted improvements for consuming the gases, have been based upon the presumption that the common method of burning in a tight pot of some kind, either of cast iron or sheet iron lined with stone or brick, was correct, and their improvements have been made over and above this point in the apparatus. It is true the form of the pot has been changed from time to time, from the long cylinder with grate at the bottom, to the short and broad cylinder, and then to the bottle form, then square, then oval, and then contracted at the top, and then at the bottom, and very shallow, each having its advantages and disadvantages, but all operating substantially in the same manner in one respect, namely, that the gases are expelled from the coal and immediately rise unburned to the upper part of the apparatus, where they cannot burn perfectly, being withdrawn from the action and greatest heat of the fire, and must either pass through the flues, or into the apartment to be heated, thus causing a great loss of heat, and the only unpleasant difference between heat produced by coal and that of the wood fire.

Carburetted and sulphuretted hydrogen are freely liberated in burning coal. These gases, altho' perfectly combustible, and therefore easily disposed of, are really the direct cause of nearly all the inconvenience in burning coal. Being very volatile, a large portion of them escape through the flues unburned, or into the room from open stoves, and through the joints of close stoves, producing various unpleasant sensations, such as langor and headache, so common among those who live in a room heated by coal. In addition to this, they act upon and in time destroy the stove and pipe, particularly that part near the chimney. In any city where anthracite coal is used to any extent, the effects can be seen in that part of the chimney above the roof of nearly every house which has been built five years.

I wish now to call the particular attention of the reader to the common method of burning coal in a cylinder, with a flat grate at the bottom. It is well known that when a hard coal fire is started, it is with charcoal or some other very combustible material. The first impression made on the anthracite coal is to heat it; this expels the gases or most inflammable portion of the coal, which being volatile, and the pot open at the top, immediately rises above the coal, and is consequently out of reach of the strongest action of the fire. It is a well-known principle that a gaseous substance, expelled from a solid body by the action of heat, rises above and mostly escapes any further action of the same heat which expelled it. The experience of every one that has given attention to coal burning is, that the best results are obtained with the common pot, by a very slow process of burning, covered with ashes, or wet and fine coal. The reason is obvious. By this method more of the volatile substances are retained and consumed within the pot, and in contact with the coal, thereby producing a more perfect combustion of the fixed matter, as well as being burnt themselves, preventing the accumulation of old coal on the grate, and making no clinkers. Sometimes, with great care, a stove can be made to run from week to week, a result very desirable, but only obtained by the utmost care and skill. We need no better evidence that there is a radical defect in past construction of fire pots, than that with them the nicest calculation, prudence and judgment were necessary, to obtain comparatively poor results.—In fact, we may safely say that the form of pot open at the top, and with a grate at the bottom, for burning anthracite coal, is all wrong. The fire by its own action becomes wrong side up. The volatile matter, which is combustible, is expelled, and passes off imperfectly burned, instead of being consumed before it escapes, and helping as nature designed it, to consume the fixed matter in the bottom. A method of burning coal that accomplishes this object, that is, the combustion of the volatile matter in contact with the coal, is the only one that has any claim to be called scientific.

A stove construction on the principle above referred to, has been invented; and, after repeated experiments, has been so far perfected as to justify its introduction into the market. Its construction is exceedingly simple, requiring but little skill in the operator, when a fire is once started, (which is easily done); all that is necessary is a constant supply of coal, and a little attention from time to time, to keep a fire from mouth to mouth.

IMPORTANT INFORMATION TO INVENTORS. The Subscriber (late Agent of the U. S. Patent Office, under the Act of 1837) determined to present advantages, in applying for Patents, superior to those offered to inventors by others, has made arrangements whereby on applications prepared and conducted by him, THIRTY DOLLARS (instead of twenty, as paid back by others,) will be remitted by him in case of failure to obtain a patent, and the withdrawal through him within thirty days after the rejection. Caveats, Specifications, Assignments and all necessary papers and drawings, for procuring patents in this and foreign countries prepared, and advice rendered on legal and scientific matters respecting inventions, and infringement of patents.

Inventors can not only here obtain their specifications on the most reasonable terms, but can here avail themselves of the experience of 20 years' practice, an extensive library of legal and mechanical works, and correct accounts of patents granted in this and other countries; besides being saved a journey to Washington, unusual great delay there, as well as all personal trouble in obtaining their patents. Copies of claims of any patent furnished by remitting one dollar.—Assignments recorded at Washington.

R. H. EDDY,

Solicitor of Patents.

"During the time I occupied the office of Commissioner of Patents, R. H. Eddy, Esq., of Boston, did business at the Patent office, as Solicitor of Patents. There were few, if any persons acting in that capacity, who had so much business before the Patent Office; and there were none who conducted it with more skill, fidelity, and success. I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the best informed and most skilful Patent Solicitors in the United States, and have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a person more competent and trustworthy, and more capable of putting their application in a form to secure for them as early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office.

PROF. ALEX. C. BARRY'S

Tricopherous, or Medicated Compound.

FOR beautifying, curling, preserving, restoring and strengthening the Hair, relieving diseases of the Skin, curing Rheumatic Pains and healing external wounds. Bounded by no geographical lines, the reputation of Barry's Tricopherous pervades the Union. The sales of the article of late years have increased in a ratio that almost exceeds belief. Prof. Barry, after a careful examination of his sales book, finds that the number of bottles delivered to order, in quantities of from half a gross upward, during the year 1852, was within a trifle of 800,000.

It is unnecessary to present at length the evidences of the wonderful properties of the Tricopherous when the public have furnished such an endorsement as this. The cheapness of the article, and the explanations given of its chemical action upon the hair, the scalp, and in all cases of superficial irritation, first recommended it to the attention of the people. This was all that the inventor desired. Every bottle advertised itself.—The effects of the fluid exceeded expectation. It acted like a charm. The ladies would not be without it. Country dealers in every section of the United States found they must have it; and thus was built up a wholesale trade of an extent hitherto unheard of as regards articles of this kind.—The highest point has not yet been reached, and it is believed that the sales this year will be a million and a half of bottles.

Depot: nd manufactory, No. 137 Broadway, New York. Retail price 25 cents a large bottle.

Liberal discount to purchasers by the quantity, and by all the principal Merchants and Druggists throughout the United States, and Canada, Mexico, West Indies, Great Britain, France, &c., and by Weeks & Potter, Brewers, Stevens & Cushing, and Wm. Brown, Boston. d&w6m je22*

DR. CONINE'S

SYRUP OF GINSENG & MALVA.

The Great Chinese Remedy.

THIS Medicine depends more upon its own virtues and actual merit than any other ever before offered to the public.

The recipe is from Dr. CONINE, a gentleman who travelled many years in China, and in the islands of that vicinity, where this compound is the potent and effectual remedy for the numerous diseases arising from a disordered or debilitated stomach, and

Affections of the Lungs.

But what will particularly attract attention is its astonishing

DISSOLVENT POWER.

By which it at once removes ALL PHLEGM or extraneous matter from the Throat, Stomach or Lungs. It is therefore

Anti-Expectorant,

And from attentions of trial here, it is now offered as NATURE'S KINDEST REMEDY for the removal of Consumption, Whooping Cough, and all Coughs, by precipitating the Phlegm, instead of creating irritation by expectoration.

It is AROMATIC, and increases the general warmth, possessing the exhilarating qualities of the Tea Plant, which is one great cause of its universal popularity in all India beyond the Ganges, where as an

APPETISER

It probably has no equal in the Vegetable Kingdom

AS A DYSPEPTIC REMEDY, IT IS UNEQUALLED.

Its natural, genial warmth keeps the digestive powers ever in proper tone, soothing all irritation of the nerves, &c.

It will prove a more pleasant, safe and effectual Tonic than any Sarsaparilla or other boasted tonic remedy, and even nutritious, as well as exceedingly palatable. It will continue to be prepared in the best manner—no expense being spared—and in quart bottles.

Besides the numberless testimonials which we are receiving daily, of the good effect of the above medicine, we are allowed to refer to several physicians, who are now using the Syrup of Ginseng and Malva with great success.

"A Splendid Remedy."

THE GREAT REMEDY is at last discovered. "Consumption can be cured!" and Coughs and Colds, the parents of that fell disease that so often brings woe to the homes of our land, vanish, as if by magic, before this SOVEREIGN REMEDY. This is that which has so long been sought for, and is in full faith offered to the public as a certain cure for Coughs, Colds, Whooping Cough, Croup, Asthma and Consumption, and will in any case where lungs sufficient are left to sustain life, check the ulceration and raise the patient to health. This is not an idle boast, nor is this remedy sent into the market without a thorough trial, but has proved beyond a doubt that what has been asserted CAN BE DONE!

N. B.—BEWARE OF COUNTERFEITS, and observe the Signature of the remittance Note, with the fac simile signature of the proprietor, on every genuine box:

PATENTS.
American and Foreign Office.
AGENCY FOR BUSINESS
With the U. S. Patent Office, Washington,
No. 22 State Street, Boston.

IMPORTANT INFORMATION TO INVENTORS. The Subscriber (late Agent of the U. S. Patent Office, under the Act of 1837) determined to present advantages, in applying for Patents, superior to those offered to inventors by others, has made arrangements whereby on applications prepared and conducted by him, THIRTY DOLLARS (instead of twenty, as paid back by others,) will be remitted by him in case of failure to obtain a patent, and the withdrawal through him within thirty days after the rejection. Caveats, Specifications, Assignments and all necessary papers and drawings, for procuring patents in this and foreign countries prepared, and advice rendered on legal and scientific matters respecting inventions, and Infringement of patents.

Inventors can not only here obtain their specifications on the most reasonable terms, but can here avail themselves of the experience of 20 years' practice, an extensive library of legal and mechanical works, and correct accounts of patents granted in this and other countries: besides being saved a journey to Washington, the usual great delay there, as well as all personal trouble in obtaining their patents. Copies of claims of any patent furnished by remitting one dollar.—Assignments recorded at Washington.

R. H. EDDY,
Solicitor of Patents.

"During the time I occupied the office of Commissioner of Patents, R. H. Eddy, Esq., of Boston, did business at the Patent Office, as Solicitor of Patents. There were few, if any persons acting in that capacity, who had so much business before the Patent Office; and there were none who conducted it with more skill, fidelity, and success. I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the best informed and most skilful Patent Solicitors in the United States, and have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a person more competent and trustworthy, and more capable of putting their application in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office.
EDMUND BURKE,
Late Commissioner of Patents."

THE CAT LAW.

Great injustice is often done to judges, juries and parties, by condensed newspaper reports, which in some cases are so compressed as to squeeze most of the truth out of them, and sadly to distort what little remains. Of an able charge, and especially of the ruling and direction, on many points in a case, it is next to impossible to make a very brief abstract that shall be truly accurate. Much injustice has been done to Judge Curtis, in two paragraphs which went the rounds, purporting to give a view of his charge on the anti-flogging law, and of his directions to the jury in a flogging case, lately tried at Providence, R. I.

We have republished those paragraphs; and having commented plainly, as is our wont, on the trashy decisions therein contained,—we must say, now that we have carefully read the charge and directions, fully reported, Judge Curtis did not make one of those which we condemned. They were made by telegraphic news agents or editors, who were so successful in compressing, that they not only pressed the truth out, but also pressed in one distinct and glaring falsehood.

There is not a word, either in the charge or directions, about a whaling officer's not having heard of the anti-flogging law. Some item maker, after hearing the judge, perhaps at second hand, gave his views of what the judge said or rather meant; and hence a most discreditable report went out.

Now we publish the report of the case, the fullest we have seen, not only as an act of justice to the misrepresented judge; but also as a truly scholarlike and manly document, of which no good lawyer need to be ashamed.—The charge is too long for our columns; but its proper conclusions are summed up in this report, which first appeared in the Providence Journal.

CIRCUIT COURT OF THE UNITED STATES—Nov. Term, at Providence, 1853.

United States vs. Charles B. Cutler.—This was an indictment under the third section of the act of March 3, 1835. (4 Stat. at Large 776) against the master of the whaling bark Dolphin, for beating one of the crew. It appeared that the man had been disobedient, and in a quarrel with the boat steerer, under whose command he was at the time, the man had wounded him severely in the head. And that the defendant had caused the man to be seized up, and inflicted on him six blows with a piece of ratlin staff. There was evidence tending to show that when the master was about to inflict punishment, he called all hands and declared that he was unwilling to flog the man, but felt it was his duty to do so; and some of the witnesses testified that he also said he knew it was against the law, but felt obliged to go through it. The following directions were given to the jury:

Curtis, J.—The defendant is indicted under the act of 1835, for beating one of his crew with malice and without justifiable cause. The government must prove, 1st, the beating; 2d, the want of justifiable cause; 3d, malice. The beating is not denied. The first question is, was there justifiable cause. If the punishment inflicted was the punishment of flogging, within the meaning of the act of 1850, there could be no justifiable cause, the authority of the master to punish by flogging being taken away. And it is for the jury to find whether what was done amounted to the punishment of flogging abolished by that act. In order to decide this question, it is necessary for the jury to attend to what is the punishment of flogging referred to in that law, and my instruction is, that it is corporal punishment by stripes, inflicted with a cat, or any punishment which in substance and effect amounts thereto. The particular form of the instrument is not material; what you must look to is the effect produced. If the man was punished by stripes inflicted with a rope, and this, in substance and effect is the same kind of punishment as the punishment of flogging with a cat, then it is prohibited by this law.—The degree of severity of the punishment is not material. It is the kind, and not the degree of punishment, which is important. It may be that one blow with a cat would inflict stripes more painful to be borne than one blow with a piece of ratlin stuff. But this is not material, if both are corporal punishment by stripes, and both are in substance the same kind of punishment. Another question is, whether whaling ships are vessels of commerce within the meaning of this law. I am of opinion they are. I do not state the reasons which have brought me to this conclusion, for they were fully detailed in the charge given to the grand jury at the present term.

It is also incumbent on the government to prove malice. This word is not to be interpreted in its popular sense. It means a wilful departure from a known duty. If the master knew that his act was unlawful, and did it intending to take the consequences, that was a malicious act, within the meaning of this law of 1835.

The act of 1850 is not a penal law, and no indictment can be framed on it. But it has the effect to make an important change in the powers of the master, and consequently has an important effect on the question of justifiable cause and malice, arising under indictments framed on the law of 1835.

The defendant was found guilty. Browne, District Attorney for the United States.—Bosworth for the defendant.

In pronouncing sentence in the above case, Judge Curtis stated, that in determining the sentence to be imposed upon Capt. Cutler, he had considered the suggestions made by the District Attorney, that his conduct as master in the treatment of sailors had always been unexceptionable and exemplary, and also the circumstances of the present case, that the evidence showed that there was justifiable cause for punishing Freeman; that the assault and battery made by him was an offence of an aggravated character, and would, if it had been brought before the Court by an indictment, have exposed him to severe punishment; and that there was therefore, justifiable cause for the punishment, and it was not excessive in degree; the fault of Capt. Cutler consisted in inflicting a punishment of a kind which he had no right to inflict; and however much the circumstance might entitle him to a favorable consideration, he must suffer the consequences of a violation of the law in this respect. The Court sentenced the defendant to pay a fine of $20.

The following is a recapitulation of the questions decided:—

The act abolishing the punishment of flogging in the navy and in vessels of commerce, is not a penal law, and no indictment can be framed upon it.

It applies to whaling ships, which are "vessels of commerce" within the meaning of this act.

It prohibits corporal punishment by stripes, inflicted with a cat, and any punishment which in substance and effect amounts thereto.

The degree of such punishment is not material; it is the kind of punishmenh which is alone to be considered.

It is a question of fact for the jury whether the punishment inflicted was, in substance and effect, the punishment of flogging.

Under an indictment founded on the third section of the act of March 3. 1835; (4 Stat. at Large 776.) if the punishment inflicted was flogging, it was without justifiable cause.

But it is incumbent on the government to prove not only that the act was without justifiable cause, but that it was malicious, that is was a wilful departure from a known duty.

If the master knew that this act was illegal it was malicious in the sense of this act of 1835.

A NEW MASTER OF ARTS.

The government of Amherst College, Mass., have within the past year, as the fruit of effort, and of co-operation from abroad, erected a new library building, and have more than doubled the contents of the library.

The library building is of Pelham stone, 40 feet square, elegant without, and commodious within; now containing 10,300 vols., and capable of containing 20,000.

South of the library building and connected with it, is a stone tower 60 feet high, built at the expense of Samuel Williston, and commanding a fine view of the Connecticut Valley.

The building is of the Tuscan order of architecture, massive and elegant, built in the most thorough manner, and does great credit to the architect, Henry A. Sikes, of Springfield, Mass.

The dedication of the new building took place on Tuesday, at the village church.—The address of Prof. Edward A. Park, of Andover, was listened to with unalloyed delight by a large audience. On the conclusion of the address, President Hitchcock conferred the degree of Master of Arts on Mr. Henry Alexander Sikes, the architect of the building. Prof. Aaron Warner, who has held the office and ably discharged the duties of Professor of Rhetoric and Oratory, for the last ten years, and who, during the absence of the President in Europe in 1850, discharged the duties of that office, has resigned the Professorship, and the Rev. Thomas P. Field, of Troy, N. Y., lately of Danvers, has been appointed to fill the vacancy.

The grand peculiarity of the day, is the conferring of a well-earned but rare A. M. on an Architect.

Brewster, as a Colporteur.—The Belfast Journal says:

"We understand that Mr. H. B. Brewster, of Bangor, has signified his willingness to labor in the service of the Maine Unitarian Association, as a Home Missionary or Colporteur, as called for in their annual report, and that his offer has been accepted, and Mr. B. will be ready to enter upon the duties of this mission about the first of January, provided the funds and means of support are furnished him."

Brewster is the celebrated writer, well known in this city, under the signature of "Howard." He has made quite a stir in his day—and he is not an old man yet.—Portland Ade.

If it is, as we suppose, our old acquaintance Henry Bickford Brewster, printer, then we doubt not he will make a faithful colporteur for any society that may employ him. His last employment, that we knew of, was lecturing against the Maine Law, in which he was quite zealous: we have never heard whether he was successful or not. We suppose not, by the change.

Massachusetts.—Monday was the day for a second trial to elect Representatives to the State Legislature. The Boston Advertiser reports, as elected on that day, 21 whigs and 2 opposition, which added to the elections before reported, makes a total already heard from, of whigs 187, opposition 103; majority, 84. This seals the fate of the coalition, which must now be numbered among the things that were.

☞ The seats for the Germanians' Concerts are being fast taken up, we are glad to learn. So don't delay securing one. Let us give them a full cheering house this time, and show that good music is appreciated.

LOCAL.

GUTTA PERCHA PENS.

A good looking man, dressed in gray clothes of fashionable cut, wearing a moustache, and rolling a cigar in his mouth like a sweet morsel, called on one of our Druggists on Sunday, and was quite in earnest to have the Druggist become sole agent for the sale of a famous Gutta Percha Pen with a platina point. He wished to receive $50 down, for which he proposed to hand out 25 gross of pens, and to engage the Druggist as sole agent, on condition that he should sell none less than $4 per gross. He gave as a reason for employing druggists to sell pens, that if one bookseller was employed in a place, the others would be jealous, which circumstance might injure the patentee, a great stationer in New York. He stated that a druggist at Great Falls had taken an agency, (which turns out to be true,) and that if the word of a stranger was doubted, by telegraphing to a certain man in Boston, all would be confirmed. The Druggist, however, was in no hurry to make a Sunday trade, and the Pen Manufacturer left.

On Monday the same man applied to another Druggist, for the same purpose, stating that this was his first application, repeating the same offers, proposing to warrant that the 25 gross would sell in 30 days, and mentioning the name of Wilson, Fairbank & Co., of Boston, as agents, who had refused the offer of $1500 for their agency in that city.—This second Druggist at once telegraphed to W., F. & Co., a question as to what they knew about the Gutta Percha Pen and its manufacturer or vender. The answer was, that they knew nothing about either. In the mean time, the man was taken with a great hurry to go to New York, and slipped off in a passing train, without appointing an agent in this city; but saying, as he did so, that he never before failed to appoint the first man to whom he applied in a city or town!

Subsequent examination of the pens, showed them to be steel pens of ordinary character, coated with a solution of India Rubber, and not pointed with anything but steel, worth 50 or 75 cents per gross at most. The pen is a small humbug; the man is rather a great one. Will the press show him up?

Tendencies of Romanism.—Rev. Mr. Spaulding's lecture on this subject, as announced for last Sunday evening, drew together an audience which filled the House.—The tendencies of Romanism were stated to be, towards Idolatry. The speaker had formerly, and before he understood it, been disposed to entertain more favorable opinions of that system and its tendencies;—but a residence of six years in a Catholic Country; a careful perusal of their Missal, Catechisms, and the decrees of their Councils; and frequent and excellent opportunities to watch the workings of the system; had induced the thorough conviction in his mind that they were idolatrous and tended to idolatry.

This conviction, the speaker endeavored to fasten on the minds of the hearers, not by invective or declamation; but by apt quotations from Roman Catholic Books, which defended and advocated the worship of the Virgin Mary, the Host and Relics, and which exhibited and glorified the doctrine of transubstantiation.

He closed by recommending to the hearers the kindest treatment of those catholics who come among us, coupled with taking some pains to inform themselves, what the catholic books really teach, that the merits and demerits of the system may be understood, and its errors met and refuted.

☞ The Lyceum Lecture at the Temple on Tuesday evening, was by Rev. Thomas D. Anderson of Roxbury, Mass. His subject was the Creations of the Ideal, and their uses. The speaker must be a pleasant and effective pulpit orator; and he viewed his philosophic subject through a christian medium.

The discourse was well written and clearly delivered; but lacked some important elements of a popular lecture.

Look Out.—There has been a strange fellow about town for a day or two, borrowing small sums of money under various pretences—to make up enough for some specified purpose, to just get a bit of meat at the market, &c. He examines the traders' signs, and walking into a store, addresses whoever happens to be tending, with the name he learns from the door post, with the request above named. So take care how you hand out your change.

☞ We yield up our entire outside to our advertising patrons to day. Those advertisements may be found to contain as much of interest to readers, as the best selected miscellany of another sort. At any rate, if any readers think otherwise, just let them be content for this time with the thought that "their loss is our gain"—which, being a very obliging set of patrons, they will doubtless do.

☞ The Steamer Prometheus, arrived at New York, Nov. 29, brings 600 passengers from California, among them John Mitchell; and $1,754,000 on freight.

Illustrated Magazine of Art, No. 12, vol. 2, for December, is just received from Frederick Parker of Boston, via J. P. Morse of this city.—Among the illustrations this month, are four large cuts from Schiller's Brave Man; half a dozen sea pictures from Wm. Van de Velde; a Roadside Inn; Winchester Cathedral; Balmoral Castle, &c. &c.

People's Journal, No. 1, vol. 1.—This is to be a monthly: the present number contains 32 large pages, and numerous cuts. Price 50 cts. a volume. New York; Alfred A. Beach, publisher.

Knud Inverson. The Chicago Democratic Press proves that those who have branded the story of this youth's martyrdom as a "humbug" are mistaken. It says that all who have investigated the subject are satisfied of the truth of the first account, and have contributed to his monument. The Milwaukie Free Democrat says that the employes of the M. C. R. R. at Detroit have contributed $120 towards the Knud Inverson Monument Fund, and the Unitarian Church in that city, $55.

Renunciation of Romanism and Liberal Donation to the Protestant Episcopal Church.—Mr. G. W. Back, of Prospect Hill, Somerville, Mass., made a public renunciation of Romanism, and a declaration of adherance to the communion of the Protestant Episcopal Church in the United States of America, on Sunday morning last, at Christ church, in Boston. The form was administered interrogatively by the Rev. W. T. Smithett, and witnessed by the Rev. Dr. Eaton, as the present and past rectors of this ancient parish, of which, in early life, Mr. Beck had been a parishioner and a Sunday scholar. With this public demonstration of his faith and sentiments, Mr. Beck has given a substantial proof of disinterestedness and sincerity. He has conveyed to the Bishop of this diocese the establishment long known as the Roman Catholic Orphan Asylum, Prospect Hill, Somerville. This property, valued at a sum between $5000 and $6000, Mr. Beck has given in trust for "the education of orphans," but hereafter in the doctrine, discipline, and worship of this reformed branch of the Catholic church.—Christian Witness.

FOUR DAYS LATER FROM EUROPE.

NEW YORK, Nov. 29.—The steamship Atlantic, from Liverpool Wednesday, the 16th inst., (four days later) arrived at 3 o'clock this morning, brings 160 passengers, and has encountered very bad weather.

The Bank of England has given notice that it will discount the amount of petty stocks due in January at the rate of three per cent. instead of four, as previously notified.

The Bank of Amsterdam has raised the rate of interest half per cent.

Nothing really later has occurred to notice in Turkish matters, but we have rumors of a decisive battle being fought near Bucharest, though it is not known who had the victory. We have, however, the details of the recent affair at Oltenitza, which was a brilliant Turkish victory, in which 1200 Russians were killed or wounded. More or less fighting goes on daily. The Turks have now nearly 100,000 men across the Danube.

The Russian commander Gortschakoff, has received orders to act on the offensive.

It is said that the Turks captured eight guns at Oltenitza on the 4th.

The Poles in the Russian service are disaffected. They favored the passage of the Danube, and gave no alarm when they saw the Turks were crossing.

The Anglo French fleet is in the sea of Marmora.

Russia lays an embargo on Turkish shipping from the 22d inst. Neutral flags will be respected.

The Circassians continue their success in Asia.

The Emperor Napoleon expresses himself strongly in favor of active operations to aid the Turks.

The British Government evidently vacillates.

Prussia notifies the world that it reserves to itself liberty of action in Eastern affairs.

Austria professes neutrality.

LATEST.—VIENNA, Monday. On the 8th, the Russian Commander moved forward to Oltenitza to chastise the Turks with 24,000 men, most infantry. On the 11th, they met. A pitched battle ensued; the Russians were compelled to retreat, the second time, in disorder, on Bucharest, having lost in four attacks on Oltenitza 3,000 men. This is reliable. On the 9th, the Turks were driven from the island, opposite Guirgero. Reinforcements afterwards came up, when they re-took the island and held it. The Czar has summarily discharged all English operatives from the Navy Yards.

ARRIVAL OF CALIFORNIA MAILS.

NEW YORK, Nov. 28.—The steamer Illinois with the California mails of the 1st of November, $800,000 on freight and $200,000 in the hands of her passengers, about 300 in number, arrived at this port at 9 this evening.

Contrary to general expectation the name of John Mitchell, the Irish patriot, is not on the list of passengers by the Illinois. The I. left Aspinwall on the 19th inst.

In the explosion of the steamer Stockton, the Captain, J. B. Sharp was so badly injured that he died on the following day. The names of the killed by the explosion of the American Eagle, were George Stackman, second engineer; Frank Hudson, fireman; —— Gallop, watchman; Charles Brenham, porter; Charley ——, second cook, and fourteen passengers, names unknown. Numerous others were more or less scalded, amongst them Mr. Henry Dart, part owner of the Stockton; Mr. McArdle, 1st engineer of the American Eagle.

The Mitchell dinner was a grand affair, about 400 attended.

Governor Bigler presided, assisted by Mayor Purdy, &c. Amongst the guests were Ex-Governor McDougal of California, Major General Sutter, and numerous other distinguished men.

Mr. Mitchell made a long speech, which was received with enthusiastic applause.

The miners on the Yuba are doing better than in any previous year.

The San Joaquin miners are doing well; many claims paying from $16 to $50 per man.

On Feather River at the Union claim, large sums were being taken out, on one day the yield was $10,000.

The Board empowered to dispose of $750,000 of San Francisco City Bonds, had rejected all the bids, on the ground that they were not as favorable to the city as she had a right to expect, being only 84 1-4c on the dollar.

The papers as usual, teem with accounts of crime and casualities.

The body of a man named I. Howard, formerly of Thomaston, Me., was found on the beach with his throat cut. Is supposed to have committed suicide.

Notwithstanding the vigilance of the government, a part of the Sonora expedition is said to have got off in the bark Carolina, which was towed outside the heads during the night.

John Mitchell took passage by the Nicaragua line, and will probably arrive per Prometheus, on Tuesday morning.

DEATHS.—In Sonora, Franklin Sergeant, aged 25 years, of Mass.; Willard Holt of West Wilton, N. H.

On board steamer Pacific, passage up, Miss M. McMory, of Boston, and D. S. Bonnell, of Boston.

Valparaiso dates are to the 15th of October. Busines was tolerably active. Flour in limited demand at $9,50 and $10. Freights remained as last quoted.

The opening of a line of steamers to England, via the Straits of Magellan was in agitation.

The American Consul and Minister at Valparaiso had chartered the Chilian brig Express to proceed to the unknown Island, on which the brig Chatham, Capt. Snow, was lost in January, and bring off the crew, if still alive, as they are among cannibals. The brig was to be manned from a United States storeship.

Dates from Peru are to the 24th Oct. The Brazilian Government had despatched a special minister to Peru, Bolivia, Equador, and New Grenada, for the purpose of effecting a treaty, to monopolize the entire trade of the Amazon. The gold discoveries on the Amazon continued to excite great interest.

The committee appointed for the purpose, report about twenty-five million tons of guano remaining on Chincha Islands.

Judd's Baking Powder.

THIS is a Nutritious and Healthy Baking Powder, to be used instead of yeast, and is made of prepared Corn Starch and Arrow Root.

In the ordinary method of raising bread with yeast, a large amount of the best portion of the flour is lost by the decaying process of fermentation. 100 lbs. of dried flour, yeasted and baked, and then dried from moisture, leaves but 86¾ lbs.—13¼ lbs, is lost by fermentation; but 100 lbs. of dried flour and 6 lbs. of this powder, baked and dried as above, leaves 105¼ lbs. of real unfermented nourishment. There is, then, gained from a barrel of flour, used with Judd's Baking Powder, about 40 lbs. of bread.

This powder contains no injurious substances, but is a simple, nourishing compound, put up on dietetic principles by Mr. Judd, the inventor, a thorough practical Chemist. It is daily used and recommended by some of the ablest physicians at New Haven, who are acquainted with the manufacturer and his process of preparing it.

It is manufactured by Wm. L. Rogers & Co., New Haven, and is put up in boxes of three sizes, at 12, 25 and 37 cts. each, with directions attached.

DR. CONINE'S

SYRUP OF GINSENG & MALVA.

The Great Chinese Remedy.

THIS Medicine depends more upon its own virtues and actual merit than any other ever before offered to the public.

The recipe is from Dr. CONINE, a gentleman who travelled many years in China, and in the islands of that vicinity where this compound is the potent and effectual remedy for the numerous diseases arising from a disordered or debilitated stomach, and

Affections of the Lungs.

But what will particularly attract attention is its astonishing

DISSOLVENT POWER.

By which it at once removes ALL PHLEGM or extraneous matter from the Throat, Stomach or Lungs. It is therefore

Anti-Expectorant,

And from attentions of trial here, it is now offered as NATURE'S KINDEST REMEDY for the remote Tout of Consumption, Whooping Cough, and all Coughs, by precipitating the Phlegm, instead of creating irritation by expectoration.

It is AROMATIC, and increases the general warmth, possessing the exhilarating qualities of the Tea Plant, which is one great reason of its universal popularity in all India beyond the Ganges, where as an

APPETISER

It probably has no equal in the Vegetable Kingdom AS A DYSPEPTIC REMEDY, IT IS UNEQUALLED.

Its natural, genial warmth keeps the digestive powers ever in proper tone, soothing all irritation of the nerves, &c.

It will prove a more pleasant, safe and effectual Tonic than any Sarsaparilla or other boasted tonic remedy, and even nutritious, as well as exceedingly palatable. It will continue to be prepared in the best manner—no expense being spared—and in quart bottles.

Besides the numberless testimonials which we are receiving daily, of the good effect of the above medicine, we are allowed to refer to several physicians, who are now using the Syrup of Ginseng and Malva with great success.

Greatest Discovery of the Age.

PLANTERS, Farmers, Families and others can purchase no Remedy equal to DR. TOBIAS' VENITIAN LINIMENT, for Dysentery, Colic, Croup, Chronic Rheumatism, Sore Throat and Toothache, Sea Sickness, Cuts, Burns, Swellings, Bruises, Old Sores, Headache, Musquito Bites, Pains in the Limbs, Chest, Back, etc.

If it does not give relief, the money will be refunded; all that is asked is a fair trial, and use it according to the directions.

It is an English Remedy, and was used by William IV. late King of England, and certified to by him, as a cure for Rheumatism, when everything else had failed.

Over 10,000,000 bottles have been sold in the United States, without a single failure, and many have stated that they would not be without it if it cost $1 per bottle. As a case of Croup, as it is as certain as it is applied.

It cures Cholera, when first taken, in a few hours; Dysentery in half an hour; Toothache in five minutes. It is perfectly innocent to take internally, and is recommended by the most eminent physicians in the United States. Price 25 and 50 cents.

Dr. Tobias could fill a dozen Newspapers with certificates and letters relating to the wonderful cures accomplished by his Liniment, but considers warranting it sufficient, as any person who does not obtain relief, need not pay for it.

Dr. Tobias has put up a HORSE LINIMENT in pint bottles, which is warranted cheaper and better than any other for Cholic, Scratches, Old Sores, Galls, Swellings, Cuts, Bruises, etc.

Price 50 cents. Dr. Tobias's Office, 240 Greenwich street, New York.

PROF. ALEX. C. BARRY'S

Tricopherous, or Medicated Compound.

FOR beautifying, curling, preserving, restoring and strengthening the Hair, relieving diseases of the Skin, curing Rheumatic Pains and healing external wounds. This article, unrivalled by no geographical lines, the reputation of Barry's Tricopherous pervades the Union. The sales of the article of late years have increased in a ratio that almost exceeds belief. Prof. Barry, after a careful examination of his sales book, finds that the number of bottles delivered to order, in quantities of from half a gross upward, during the year 1852, was within a trifle of 850,000.

It is unnecessary to present at length the evidence of the wonderful properties of the Tricopherous when the public have furnished such an endorsement as this. The cheapness of the article, and the explanations given of its chemical action upon the hair, the scalp, and in all cases of superficial irritation, first recommended it to the attention of the people. This was all that the inventor desired. Every bottle advertised itself—The effects of the fluid exceeded expectation. It acted like a charm. The ladies would not be without it. Country dealers in every section of the United States found they must have it; and thus was built up a wholesale trade of an extent hitherto unheard of as regards articles of this kind.—The highest point has not yet been reached, and it is believed that the sales this year will be a million and a half of bottles.

Liberal discounts to purchasers by the quantity, and by all the principal Merchants and Druggists throughout the United States, and Canada, Mexico, West Indies, Great Britain, France, &c., and by Weeks & Potter, Brewers, Stevens & Cushing, and Wm. Brown, Boston. 4&wlm je29

"A Splendid Remedy."

THE GREAT REMEDY is at last discovered. Consumption can be cured!! and Coughs and Colds, the parents of that fell disease that so often brings woe to the homes of our land, vanish, as if by magic, before this SOVEREIGN REMEDY. This is that which has so long been sought for, and is in full faith offered to the public as a certain cure for Coughs, Colds, Whooping Cough, Croup, Asthma and Consumption, and will in any case where lungs sufficient are left to sustain life, check the ulceration and raise the patient to health. This is not an idle boast, nor is this remedy sent into the market without a thorough trial, but has proved beyond a doubt that what has been asserted 'CAN BE DONE'

THE CELEBRATED

LOWELL COAL & GAS BURNER

For Anthracite Coal.

MANY futile attempts have been made to consume the gases, and at the same time be simple and easily managed.

We think that Mr. D. G. LITTLEFIELD, the Patentee of this Stove, has been eminently successful in his efforts to produce this result—Indeed it is so unlike all other stoves, and so superior to them, that the whole truth would hardly be believed, except by those who have used them.

One ton of coal burned in this Stove will generate as much heat as TWO TONS consumed in any other Stove extant.

For a particular description we would refer the public to the following communication from Mr. Littlefield:

All skilful coal burners, and stove manufacturers, are conscious that a great error has pervaded the forms of all the apparatus for burning anthracite coal. No one, however, has been able to determine where the difficulty lay. Nearly all attempted improvements for consuming the gases, have been based upon the presumption that the common method of burning in a tight pot of some kind, either of cast iron or sheet iron lined with stone or brick, was correct, and their improvements have been made over and above this point in the apparatus. It is true the form of the pot has been changed from time to time, from the long cylinder with grate at the bottom, to the short and broad cylinder, and then to the bottle form, then square, then oval, and then contracted at the top, and then at the bottom, and very shallow, each having its advantages and disadvantages, but all operating substantially in the same manner in one respect, namely, that the gases are expelled from the coal and immediately rise unburned to the upper part of the apparatus, where they cannot burn perfectly, being withdrawn from the action and greatest heat of the fire, and must either pass through the flues, or into the apartment to be heated, thus causing a great loss of heat, and the no inconsiderable difference between heat produced by coal and that of the wood fire.

Carburetted and sulphuretted hydrogen are freely liberated in burning coal. These gases, altho' perfectly combustible, much therefore easily disposed of, are really the direct cause of nearly all the inconvenience in burning coal. Being very volatile, a large portion of them escape through the flues unburned, or into the room from open stoves, and through the joints of close stoves, producing various unpleasant sensations, such as langor and headache, so common among those who live in a room heated by coal. In addition to this, they act upon and in time destroy the stove and pipe, particularly that part near the chimney. In any city where anthracite coal is used to any extent, the effects can be seen in that part of the chimney above the roof of nearly every house which has been built for years.

I wish now to call the particular attention of the reader to the common method of burning coal in a cylinder, with a flat grate at the bottom. It is well known that when a hard coal fire is started, it is with charcoal or some other very combustible material. The first impression made on the anthracite coal is to heat it; this expels the gases or most inflammable portion of the coal, which being volatile, and the pot open at the top, immediately rises above the coal, and is consequently out of reach of the strongest action of the fire. It is a well-known principle that a gaseous substance, expelled from a solid body by the action of heat, rises above and wholly escapes any further action of the same heat which expelled it. The experience of every one that has given attention to coal burning is, that the best results are obtained with the common pot, by a very slow process of burning, covered with ashes, or wet and fine coal. The reason is obvious. By this method more of the volatile substances are retained and consumed within the pot, and in contact with the coal, thereby producing a more perfect combustion of the fixed matter, as well as keeping the burnt themselves, preventing the accumulation of old coal on the grate, and making no clinkers. Sometimes, with great care, a stove can be made to run from week to week, a result very desirable, but only obtained by the utmost care and skill. We need no better evidence that there is a radical defect in past construction of fire pots, than that with them the nicest calculation, prudence and judgment were necessary, to obtain comparatively poor results.—In fact, we may safely say that the form of pot open at the top, and with a grate at the bottom, for burning anthracite coal, is all wrong. The fire by its own action becomes wrong side up. The volatile matter, which is combustible, is expelled, and passes off imperfectly burned, instead of being consumed before it escapes, and helping as nature designed it, to consume the fixed matter in the bottom. A method of burning coal that accomplishes this object, that is the combustion of the volatile matter in contact with the coal, is the only one that has any claim to be called scientific.

A stove constructed upon the principle above referred to, has been invented; and, after repeated experiments, has been so far perfected as to justify its introduction into the market. Its construction is exceedingly simple, requiring but little skill in the operator, when a fire is once started, (which is easily done,) all that is necessary is a constant supply of coal, and a little attention from time to time, to keep a fire from month to month.

The subscriber has secured the right to manufacture and sell this
